It is really quite wonderful how many things are done for charity. One wonders, in the face of the constant drain on pocketbooks, how it is possible to keep all these things up, and yet almost every day we hear of some new fund which is to be raised some new fund which is to be rai for this and that. Today there will be several affairs; in the afternoon Miss Augustine Haughton will give a recital at the Acorn Club for the benefit of Dr. and Mrs. Hunter Scarlett's work in the American Ambulance Hospital at Neuilly-sur-Seine. Mrs. Scarlett was Edith Townsend, you know, and last July she was married in Paris to Doctor Scarlett. ## THURSDAY AFTERNOON AT FINE ARTS ACADEMY

Daniel Garber Will Give the First "Gallery Talk" in a Series to Be Inaugurated

Tomorrow

Great interest is expressed in the in-novation which the Academy of the Fine novation which the Academy of the Fine Arts will inaugurate tomorrow afternoon at 2, when Daniel Garber, a well-known landscape and figure painter, will give the first gallery talk in a series which will continue every Thursday afternoon until the close of the llith annual exhibition on March 28.

The speaker was chairman of the committee which selected and hung the pictures in the current show, and is one of the instructors in the Acodemy schools. He has a large farm along the upper Delaware, where he spends much of his time aware, where he spends much of his time putting on canvas the beauties of that region. A number of artists of national reputation have made that locality their rendezvous, which has resulted in their work generally becoming known as that of the "Delaware Valley School." Mr. Garber differs from his neighbors in seeing landscape through the veil of ro-mance. His pictures of the cliff-edged river and the trees of the primeval for-est carry with them suggestions of poetry and music, though they are none the less well drawn for all that. He is one of the younger painters who have made l'hiladelphia famous throughout the entire country for the high quality of their work, and is a product of the Academy schools. He has several landscapes and one medalled figure painting, "Tanls," on exhibition.

As an immediate result of the announcement of the present series of talks, the Academy has been requested by several out-of-town women's clubs to furnish a "docent" on special occasions, when club members will visit the Academy in a body to inspect the annual exhibition. This "docent," or official guide, will accompany the group and explain the various im portant canvases on the walls

All is in readiness for the grand opera-concert and ball, which will take place at the Believue tonight in aid of St. Rita's Church. Interest in the affair has been aroused to an unusual degree by the Rita's Church. Interest in the affair has been aroused to an unusual degree by the announcement that the musical program will be headed by Mme. Lydia Locke, the famous grand opera prima donna from Hammerstein's London Opera House. Mme. Locke, who is a renowned beauty as well as an artist of celebrity, will be heard in a repertoire of florid arias.

A number of well-known singers of this city, including Mrs. William H. Greene, Mrs. John Leige, Miss Elizabeth Latts. Mr. William J. Haird, Mr. David Griffin, Mr. Philip W. Cooke, Miss Jeanette Hollenback, plunist; Mr. Romeo Cella, 'ceillst,' the La Favorita Quartet, and Mrs. Edith Mahon and Mr. William S. Thunder, accompanists, will take part.

The ball will be opened by an exhibition of dancing by Miss Lytendale Baird and a partner, who will be seen in a series of terpsichorean achievements. Mayor, and Mrs. Smith, as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Connelly, will be among the many notables present, who will include numerous musical celebrities, social leaders and men and women prominent in the artistic and professional life of the city.
