The announcement for a plan for a $1,000,000 endowment fund will be the feature of Founder's Day this year.

In addition there will address by prominent educators and ministers. Degrees will be conferred upon former Judge Meyer...

The principal address will be that of Edwin E. Sparks, president of Pennsylvania State College. It will be followed by the presentation of the portrait of Dr. Conwell...

At the Founder's Day dinner at Temple University last night 600 guests of the institution heard Dr. Conwell protest that he should not be idolized as a man.

"Do not consider me a great man," he said. "Do not take me out of your hearts and put me on a pedestal—a man apart from you..."

At another point in his address Dr. Conwell divulged that his ideal of educational development in this city would be to have a university in every ward.

"Put your university where the student can get to it easily, where it is a neighborhood affair," he said; "where, if a boy or girl is compelled to work part of the day, he or she may yet attend classes and work for a degree..."

"This thing can be done, and it will be done," said Dr. Conwell. "It is part of the program of the larger Temple University, and I can see its accomplishment in the immediate future..."

"More than 2000 pupils, young and old, are enrolled in our classes. The institution is coming into close touch with the public schools, and 400 teachers are studying for degrees in our classes..."

"The plan which we contemplate is simply carrying this work to its logical conclusion," Doctor Conwell also told something of his own life and experiences.

"I worked my way through Yale University," he said. "I have never forgotten it. My brother and I worked from 4 in the morning until 8 o'clock in the hotel to get our meals, which consisted of what was left over from the guests' tables..."

LIFE OF JAPANESE WOMAN

Looked Upon as a Creature of and for the Home Only

The Japanese woman exists primarily for and in the family. We still adhere to the old way of thinking that her natural habitat is the home...

The personality of the fair sex is not as generally recognized among us as it ought to be. Let it be far from me to give an impression, already too prevalent abroad and at home, that we look upon women only as cogs in the machinery of the kitchen or as mere puppets and ornaments in the parlor...

FEDERAL JURY BEGINS SLUSH FUND INQUIRY

President of Brewers' Association First Witness Called

SEARCH FOR MULVIHILL

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 16.—United States District Attorney E. Lowry Humes forced the issue in the Federal Grand Jury probe at noon today, when, after an appeal was taken by the brewers to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals...

Charles F. Kischler, ex-Mayor of old Allegheny and president of the Brewers' Association of Western Pennsylvania, was taken into the Grand Jury room a few minutes after noon.

The formal opening of the Grand Jury inquiry capped the climax in a morning of exciting events.

Judge Joseph Buffington, just before noon, said he would endeavor to get his colleagues together for a meeting of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in Philadelphia to hear arguments of counsel for the brewery interests for an appeal from the decision yesterday of Judge W. H. S. Thomson in the United States District Court.

Attorney George Shaw, of Reed, Smith, Shaw & Dea, at the brief session in Judge Buffington's chambers, first suggested to Humes that matters remain in "status quo" pending the result of the appeal.

"The questions on which an appeal is taken affect only a small part of the subpoena," said the Federal prosecutor, adding: "This is another move for delay, purely and simply."

In the brief argument to get the case before Judge Buffington, who informed the lawyers he would not attempt to act before the matter came before the full court, Prosecutor Humes insisted that the points raised on Judge Thomson's decision were not appealable. He made just one citation, a case in which the Circuit Court, with Judge Buffington sitting, had granted, he claimed, an appeal "on all fours with this case," and was reversed in the Supreme Court of the United States.

He added that the Thomson decision, an interlocutory order, as such was not appealable or subject to a writ.

Prosecutor Humes aroused Judge Buffington's ire when, over vigorous protests of Attorneys Shaw and S. P. Tull he said that counsel for the brewers came before Judge Buffington only after they became convinced they could not induce Judge Thomson to grant a writ of error.

"We are here at Judge Thomson's suggestion," Attorney Shaw insisted.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which will decide whether counsel for brewery associations shall be granted an appeal from the Government's method in the Federal Grand Jury probe of campaign contributions, is composed of Judges Victor R. Woodley, Joseph Buffington and John B. McPherson.

ALL OF LIFE'S SUNSHINE LEAVES BLIND MAN WHEN WIFE IS KILLED

Daughters Too Young to Work for Him — Son, Who Earns $4 a Week, Is Sole Support—Woman Was Auto Victim

The only sunshine which remained in the life of Joseph Weik has been taken from him by the tragic death of his wife, Mary.

Weik is blind and at his home, 240 Siegel street, he sat with bowed head today as his 15-year-old daughter, Regina, tried to cheer him. She cannot work to support her father, on account of her age.

The heartbroken man is now solely dependent upon his son, Joseph, 14 years old, who earns $4 a week in an iron foundry. Caroline, another daughter, who is 6 years old, has just started to school.

The Weik home is neat and clean, but the hand of poverty is apparent. The man cannot realize that his wife is dead. He has been sitting constantly beside the little pine box in which her body lies. It was taken home yesterday after she had been struck by a motor truck at Broad street and Fairmount avenue.

Trouble has pursued Weik ever since he lost his sight 18 years ago. For a time he tried to make a living as a huckster. He thought his affliction would be the means of bringing him trade. But instead of sympathy, many of his customers, he said, cheated him at every opportunity, and finally he was obliged to give it up.

"Mary and I were childhood sweethearts," he said, "but we became estranged for a time and I married another woman. Two children were born to us, and they are with me now. Later on, Mary and I met again, but I was blind. She proved her loyalty by marrying me despite my affliction. That was eight years ago. Two years later little Caroline was born. I have a few dollars, but my debt will soon exhaust the little fund. I hate to think of what might happen after that."

Weik said he had a brother, but did not expect any aid from him, because he, too, has burdens which exhaust his resources.

For many years his wife, Mary, earned from $3 to $14 a week as a shirt maker. She lived happy in the thought that she was able to make sacrifices for the man she loved.

A few weeks ago she lost her position, and she was on the way to another yesterday when death ended her plans and brought the little family almost to the verge of destitution.

WOMAN FATALLY BURNED; POURED GASOLINE ON FIRE

Her Children Were Awaiting Luncheon She Was Preparing

Mrs. Lena Belakof, 729 Mercer street, mother of four children, attempted to hurry preparations for their luncheon by pouring gasoline on the kitchen fire. There was an explosion and the mother was enveloped in flames from head to foot.

She had the presence of mind to push a baby carriage, containing her year-old baby out of the way of the fire and then she ran screaming to the street. The sight of their mother tearing through the room paralyzed the children, but Rebecca, 18 years old, followed her.

Mrs. Belakof flung herself in the snow and the child helped to extinguish the flames. Later the woman was taken to the St. Agnes' Hospital by Dr. Leonard Averett, who was passing at the time, and summoned an ambulance. At the hospital it was said that the woman could not survive her injuries.

Too Careful

The women of America are not spending two million and six hundred thousand dollars every year buying a magazine that doesn't satisfy them. They are too careful spenders for that. That's a good deal of money for women to hand over to one magazine. But they do it.

Why?

Because of the very simple fact that they want this particular magazine and are willing to give up their money for it. No other reason could exist.

That is the answer and back of the answer lies American womanhood's over two million and a half of dollars.

It is a convincing answer and it lies in any issue you may buy of
