

NANCY WYNNE CHATS ABOUT THE SUFFRAGE MEETING TOMORROW

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst and M. Cheddio Miyatovich Will Address the Meeting to Be Held Tomorrow at the Garrick Theatre

SOCIETY is much interested in the meeting which will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Garrick Theatre, when Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the well-known English suffragist, will speak, and M. Cheddio Miyatovich, former Minister from Serbia to the Court of St. James, will also give an address. Quite a number of the desks will be present to act as ushers, among them Betty Deane, Sarah Penrose, Gertrude Panzer, Guyendale Baird, Elizabeth Wheeler and Mary Sheppard. Other names will include Louisa Davis, Catherine Chambers, Harriet Deaver, Edith Kelly, Albert Hensel, Dulce Montenegro, Sophy Blenheim, Dorothy Deacon, Mrs. Mitchell Hastings and Mrs. Nicholas Bladde.

The women who are patronesses for the affair are Mrs. George Biddle, Mrs. John Cox, Mrs. Charles Hacker, Mrs. Albert Jackson, Mrs. Lovinger Jones, Mrs. Wilfred Lewis, Mrs. Horatio Lloyd, Mrs. Charles Ludington, Mrs. Charles Rhoads, Mrs. Edgar Scott, Mrs. York Stevenson, Miss M. Carey Thomas, Mrs. Charnegagne Tower and Mrs. Edward Troth.

Then there is a Committee on Arrangements, which includes Miss Sophia Dolles, Mrs. Francis V. Lloyd, of "Orlando" fame; Miss Dorothy Stewart, Mrs. Sam Woodward, Mrs. Harry Lowenberg and Mrs. Sam Warriner.

A delightful feature of the program will be a short organ recital by Philip Goep, who will play the Serbian national hymn and various Serbian airs before the speaking. Altogether I expect it to be most entertaining, and I, for one, do not intend to miss it.

The Masque Ariadne, a Pageant of Spring's Awakening, which was held last night at the Academy of Music, was admirably conducted, and the smoothness with which the performance went in is direct contrast to last year's "Masque of the Primitive Peoples," which, as every one remembers, lasted until midnight, so that there was little time for dancing. Only one set of scenery was used throughout the production, and the costumes were most remarkably carried out.

The turtle, potato bug, grubs, carota, frogs and lizards caused much comment. After the Masque, the performers and audience adjourned to Horticultural Hall, and, believe me, Paris and New York have nothing on Philadelphia when it comes to art students and their stunts, costumes (what there were of them) and dancing. The fun was fast and furious, and when I left at 1:30 a.m. it was still keeping up.

The various stories one hears of the infant terrible, especially of the younger brother variety, are always being augmented by just one more, and the just one more of this paragraph I heard myself at a house I recently visited. The big sisters of the family were going to a dance, and, as is the way with girls, were taking rather long in making their toilette before joining their brother and one or two men who had called for them and who were waiting with other members of the family in the drawing room. Finally the older brother said to the smallest one, who had not yet retired, "Go tell M— and J— to hurry. We will be late." Up trudged little brother, but he did not say that the young men were downstairs waiting. Oh, no! That was a mere detail in his young mind. Imagine the sensations of all present, therefore, when, with loud yells, little brother informed them, "They'll be down soon. They're putting on their preliminaries." Whatever that may mean, I know not, but I do know the remark was greeted with loud guffaws from the inmates of that drawing room, and M— and J— were much embarrassed when it was told to them as they finally descended.

An amusing incident, which proves, by the way, that the present generation of kiddies is a decidedly impressionable one, occurred recently during a performance of "Pollyanna." All the boxes were filled with small tots, and during the pathetic scene, when Pollyanna has met with a cruel accident, nearly all the youngsters were dissolved in tears. Little Beanie Montgomery and Frances Brazier, who were among the small ones of Mrs. Bartol Brazier's party, wept unreservedly, and even Pollyanna herself was so affected that she sent her maid to bring the two children back to visit her. Of course they were delighted and, childlike, rushed into her dressing room. But even Pollyanna, who knows children infinitely better than most of us, was not prepared for their first question, which, delivered through their tears, was, "Oh, Pollyanna, dear, do tell us what KIND of an automobile ran over you?"

As we are not, like Frank Tinney, paid to mention the name of the automobile, the rest of this story is censored.
