

TENDLER WINS FIVE OF SIX ROUNDS FROM HERMAN—BIG MOTORBOAT SCHEDULE READY

PETE HERMAN IS DEFEATED BY LEW TENDLER AT OLYMPIA; VISITOR MAKES BAD START

Local Boxer Has Better of Five Rounds and Outclasses Boy Who Held Kid Williams to a Draw; Frankie White Does Well

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL.

WELL, now that it is all over, what are you going to do about it? Pete Herman, who held Kid Williams to a draw in New Orleans a couple of weeks ago, was seen in action at the Olympia...

R. W. MAXWELL

even Kid Williams to hold him on even terms. But once more the granddaddy was shot to pieces, and now we are wondering if Kid Williams has gone back, did Kid Herman have an off night, or is Lew Tandler good enough to take a fling at the bantamweight title?

Presenting the Alibis In justice to Herman, however, it must be said that Pete arrived here Friday after a long railroad trip and stepped into real winter weather instead of the fact that he had been in New Orleans, and he was not acclimated, and more than that, he was not accustomed to short-distance bouts. But all of this can be used for alibis only. The fact remains that Tandler won the bout and deserves all of the credit for pulling the unexpected.

When he squared off against Tandler in the first round, Herman met one of the toughest propositions in his career. Lew looks like an awkward novice, but he recovered sufficiently to step into the ring against Tandler. He was not acclimated, and more than that, he was not accustomed to short-distance bouts. But all of this can be used for alibis only. The fact remains that Tandler won the bout and deserves all of the credit for pulling the unexpected.

Herman Is Bleeding In the first round Herman's nose began to bleed, and it kept on running until the fifth and some more was spilled. In the sixth round Tandler drove Herman all over the ring, hitting him almost at will, and had him backed in a corner, where he was when the going put an end to the fracas.

Frankie White Makes Hit A very stout person sitting near the ring enjoyed the preliminaries so much that he slept through the first two bouts, roused himself long after the first round, a few feeble cheers while Frankie White and Larry Hansen put on their duet and after that lost all interest in the proceedings.

J. WILLARD ASKS JOHNSON'S STUNTS TO REPERTOIRE

Heavy King Has Improved and Looks Like Real Champion

CONFIDENT OF ABILITY

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—Jess Willard looks—and acts—like a real champion in his workouts here for his 10-round quarrel with Frank Moran on March 25. "The champ stands as of Jack Johnson's stuff, that's what he did," ventured a bystander at Willard's workout here today. And that's the opinion among the "experts" who have seen him in action.

Never Quit Training

The heavyweight king grinned and said: "Well, I'll answer that by saying that I never have quit training since the day I beat Johnson. But it hasn't been strenuous training—just enough to keep me in shape. I do not suppose the public knew I was doing some work every day, and that's why so many wild stories got around about my weighing anywhere from 300 pounds to half a ton."

Willard has acquired a left stab since the Johnson fight. In other years of his career he used his right hand for jabbing purposes, reserving the right for the "clean-up" wallop. That's what he did in the Johnson fracas. But now Willard has a left-handed punch that seems to have the same crushing force that is behind his right.

Willard's training schedule calls for a three to six mile jaunt in the morning through and around parts of Central Park. This exhibition is free to all those who happen to be in the neighborhood where the heavyweight is running or walking.

Eight-Act Stunt

"Why, look what Jess does for 25 cents," said Tom as he chanted the bill: "Act one—Three minutes shadow boxing. Act two—Three minutes shadow boxing. Act three—Two three-minute rounds with Jack Hemple. Act four—Two three-minute rounds with W. Hermon Monaghan. Act five—One three-minute wrestling match with Yussuf Hussane. Act six—Jess lays on the floor and does exercises designed to strengthen his stomach (three minutes). Act seven—Sparring partners throw 12-pound medicine ball at Willard's stomach (three minutes). Act eight—Willard executes some thrilling back exercises (three minutes)."

SCRAPS ABOUT SCRAPPERS

A checker move was made on the local stage board the other day when Jack McGonigle, Eddie Andrews and their last king, dropping Sam Robbeaux and Jack McCarron, took over the reins of the National title from the hands of the late Leonard. The new duo, Broad and Callowhill streets, in the penultimate bracket above-mentioned trio joined Mrs. C. R. Wainwright, also of the Philadelphia Cricket Club, who won the title in the competition yesterday. This leaves three women from the Philadelphia Cricket Club and one from the country club to contest for the final honor.

Mrs. Harvey advanced today at the expense of Miss Phyllis Walsh, of Merion, recent winner of the singles championship of the Women's Indoor Tennis Club. Miss Thayer's progress was due to a victory over Mrs. D. Smoker, Belvidere, in the first round and by receipt of a default from Miss Sarah Nelson, of Merion, in the second. Mrs. Walbridge defeated Mrs. Robert Herold, of Belvidere.

By all odds the best match was between Mrs. Harvey and Miss Walsh. Mrs. Harvey began in great style, winning the first five games of the opening set without reply from her opponent. Miss Walsh then won the six games to 30, and followed it up by capturing the seventh, the score going to deuce half a dozen times. Mrs. Harvey settled down thereafter and won the set game to 15.

Mrs. Harvey went into the lead in the second set at 2-love. Miss Walsh won the third game on service, then Mrs. Harvey won two more and put the final result beyond doubt. Miss Walsh was not to be so easily beaten, however, and, winning the next two games, she brought the score to 4-3. Mrs. Harvey made it 5-3 in the next game, and as the following two games were divided the set and match went to Mrs. Harvey. Score: Mrs. Harvey 6-3, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2.

Miss Thayer had little difficulty in disposing of Mrs. Smoker in straight sets at 6-3, 6-1, and Mrs. Walbridge defeated Mrs. Herold in like manner at 6-1, 6-1. In the first round of the men's doubles Thomas Smith and J. R. Lance defeated W. B. Miles and O. S. Carter, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

The semifinal matches in the women's singles will be played Thursday morning, with the final round scheduled for Thursday evening. The women's doubles will get under way tomorrow.

Summary: WOMEN'S SINGLES. First Round. Miss Thayer, Philadelphia Cricket, defeated Mrs. D. Smoker, Belvidere, 6-3, 6-1, 6-2. Second Round. Mrs. Gilbert Harvey, Philadelphia Country Club, defeated Mrs. Phyllis Walsh, Merion, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2. C. C. Walbridge, Philadelphia Cricket Club, defeated Mrs. Robert Herold, Belvidere, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2.

CINCINNATI'S POWERFUL PITCHING STAFF MAKES IT DANGEROUS IN NATIONAL RACE

If Latest Additions Show Form Corps Will Be the Best in the League

By CHANDLER D. RICHTER

CINCINNATI IS THE dark horse of the National League race. It is a team with such a powerful pitching staff that it is bound to be dangerous if Manager Herzog can do three things.

He must not lose sight of the fact that the pennant race is a six-month affair instead of a few weeks. By this we mean that he should not work his pitchers to death in the early stages of the race or throw away two stars in one afternoon trying to save a game which is almost hopelessly lost. Among other managers who have done this mistake and spoiled a good pitching staff is Charley Doolin, with the Phillies in 1913.

Last season Herzog worked Toney, Schneider and Dale unusually hard for a long stretch. Overwork took away much of their quick shifty, too, and in the closing weeks of the season, but the fighting leader of the Reds was compelled to do this because Ruben Benton and Phil Douglas refused to keep in condition, and were finally cut adrift.

Herzog's two other tasks are to install into his men his own wonderful spirit, and to fill second base in a capable manner. Fully by the addition of McKerny, a good pitching staff is Charley Doolin, with the Phillies in 1913.

Pitching Staff Powerful Pitching is more than half the battle, and the powerful trio of Toney, Schneider and Dale will be strengthened wonderfully by the addition of McKerny, a Northwestern League recruit who pitched grand ball for Herzog during the last six weeks of the 1915 season; Heinie Schulz, a star left-hander who was with the Cardinals at the Federal League, and Mitchell, the sensational young left-hander from Denver.

Herzog needs but two running mates for Toney, Dale and Schneider to have the most powerful hitting corps in the National League—one that is superior to that of the Braves. It will not be as powerful in numbers as the Boston staff, but will be better suited for the pennant grind. Apparently Schutz and Mitchell are the men most needed and who will fit in perfectly with the balance of the staff. Benton was the only southpaw on Herzog's payroll last season, and after he went to the Rays, did not even have a left-hander to pitch to the men in batting practice from July until September, when "Lefty" George was signed.

Herzog has a good southpaw at the time he advanced with five games of first place with six weeks remaining in the pennant race, he may have caused trouble. The absence of a southpaw worked against the Reds three ways; it threw away an opportunity to clinch games against the Chicago Cubs, who were the only team that could not hit Mitchell, and made the Reds weak against southpaw pitching because they never had an opportunity to practice against good portenders.

Southpaws Best Reds On the Reds' second trip East, when the team was going at its best, five games were lost to southpaw pitchers. Tyler beat them twice in one series in Boston, Club, defeated Mrs. Robert Herold, Belvidere, 6-1, 6-1. Mrs. Sarah Nelson, Merion, by default.

MEN'S DOUBLES. First Round. Thomas Smith and J. R. Lance defeated W. B. Miles and O. S. Carter, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2. W. T. Fridge, 2-6, and G. H. Thornton won from A. G. Tridgen and H. Tredwell by default.

MUST ACT QUICKLY IN SIGNING FORMER FEDS National Commission Issues Warning Concerning Men Who Revert to Minors

CINCINNATI, Feb. 29.—The National commission has issued a statement relating to the new rules on players given their unexpired contracts by the Federal League. "In all cases in which a player has reverted to a national agreement club as a result of his unexpired contract by the Federal League or any of its clubs, it is the duty of the club to which he returns to promptly contract with such player, transfer him to another club or waive all claims to him in writing.

"Major league clubs are instructed to notify the presidents of their respective leagues what action, if any, has been taken relative to players which have reverted to them.

Minor league clubs are required to file similar reports with Secretary Farrell. In all instances in which the interested national agreement club does not see ordinary diligence in signing or disposing of the player, its right to him will not be recognized."

FRANK MORAN SPENDS DAY SKATING WITH HIS TRAINER Boxer Also Indulges in Iceboating at Saratoga Springs

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Feb. 29.—Frank Moran, the heavyweight aspirant for championship honors, and his trainer, Willie Lewis, were out on Saratoga Lake skating for an hour before breakfast this morning. Going into Luther's Hotel just long enough for a rub down and to eat, both returned to the sport on the ice and remained there until nearly noon.

Ice boating is the latest training fad and Moran goes at it like a school boy turned loose. "I have driven automobiles at 60 miles an hour," said Moran, "but ice boating has all over automobiles for real thrills."

Moran weighed 295 pounds this morning, and after his rubdown appeared in fine shape.

and Rucker, Marquard and Rixey beat them in Brooklyn, New York and here. If three of these games had been converted into victories, the Reds would have been even closer to the top after the successful home stand which followed this disastrous Eastern invasion.

Schulz's ability is well known. He was a star with the Yankees and should be even better with the Reds. Mitchell holds a unique record. After having been drafted for $10,000 for his release before he has pitched a single game for the Reds. This unusual condition was brought about by the youngster's wonderful work with the All-Nationals on the barnstorming trip to the Pacific coast last fall. Mitchell was picked up in Denver and taken along by Frank Bancroft to fill in. He had not been with the All-Nationals two days before it was learned that he was a remarkable youngster.

During the balance of the trip he worked regularly and lost but one game. In San Francisco he shut the All-Americans out with one hit and struck out 14 men. In his other games also his work was a revelation, which makes it appear as if Herzog had picked up a great pitcher. Herzog has never seen Mitchell, but has heard such glowing reports of his work from veteran players that he has already placed him as a regular.

But Two Real Stars Stanley Dougan, from Duluth; Dowd, from Winnipeg; and a few other youngsters will try for mound positions, but with such wonderful material available

Club, defeated Mrs. Robert Herold, Belvidere, 6-1, 6-1. Mrs. Sarah Nelson, Merion, by default.

REDS MUST IMPROVE IN BASE RUNNING AND STRENGTHEN AT SECOND BASE

There are only two stars on the Red-land team as it will line up. They are Manager Herzog and Heinie Groh, recognized as the best shortstop and best third baseman, respectively, in the National League. There is not another man on the team who is above the average, and it is well for seven other clubs that they are not with such a powerful pitching staff; but, barring Wade Killefer, all are ball players who are certain to improve, and Killefer should be just as good as in 1915.

A second baseman must be found or game after game will be tossed away, as was the case last year. Manager Herzog has three candidates for the position, but is after another, a Philadelphian, Bill Rodgers, who was with the team the last half of 1915; Bill Loudon, purchased from the Feds, and a youngster named Carl Emmer, from the semipro ranks of Columbus, are the prospective candidates for the position, but none of them looks strong enough.

Manager Herzog is trying to sign Allie McWilliams, known to Philadelphians as the greatest basketball guard in the East, but of whose baseball ability little is known. If McWilliams signs the contract offered him he has a splendid chance to make good, as he is a far better ball player than is generally believed.

McWilliams played with Upland, of the Delaware County League, and Frank Baker declares that he is as good as many in the major leagues in fielding, and does not bar his old teammate Eddie Collins. McWilliams could not hit in the Delaware County League and naturally did not attract much attention but he should develop into at least a 250 major league hitter which would prove highly satisfactory to Herzog.

Should Hit Lack of batting practice, due to a business position which prevents him from practicing daily, was responsible for McWilliams' failure to hit at Upland. He steps into the ball well and swings very good. One month in the South with experienced clubbers teaching him, should enable McWilliams to win a regular position or at least easily clinch a utility berth.

One outfielder was badly needed by the Reds last season to team with Tom Griffith and Killefer. Herzog has picked up three promising men in Beal, of Milwaukee; Neale, of Wheeling, and George Anderson, of the Brooklyn Feds. One excellent gardener can be selected from this trio unless suddenly go to pieces.

Beal hit .334 and stole 29 bases in the American Association; Neale batted .351 and pilfered 42 bases in the Central League, while Anderson hit .259 and stole 19 times in the Federal League. The latter improved greatly in all departments in the closing weeks of the season.

Lack of base-running ability was a handicap to the Reds last season but Herzog believes that there is a great improvement this year. Herzog and Molwitz were the only men on the team who ran bases well last year. A striking example of poor base running is shown in the case of Griffith. He hit .307 and was continually on the bases, but stole only six bases. This is unusual because Griffith is a fast man. He was never taught to slide or instructed in the art of getting a lead off first until last year, and will surely improve greatly this year.

TWO CONFLICTING DATES With the announcement of the racing schedule of the Delaware River Yachtsmen's League at the meeting to be held on Tuesday, March 7, at the Hotel Walton, the racing schedule for the coming season, taking in six months from May to October, will be complete except for two Saturdays in August. The schedule will cover the district from Bay Head to Cape May, on the Jersey coast, and the Delaware and Schuylkill Rivers from Trenton to Cape May.

In the complete schedule there are but two conflicting dates. The first is on Saturday, August 12. On the Delaware the Bay Head regatta is scheduled to be held under the auspices of the United Boat Club, of Wilmington.

On this date the South Jersey Association has scheduled its race meet at Ocean City while the special speed boat race of the Delaware River Yachtsmen's League is on the program. However, Appling has promised to have a large number of spectators in the Delaware, and therefore the Delaware River Association plans to shift its boat race to an open date in September.

The following is the schedule of races: June 24—Opening Delaware River Yachtsmen's League season at Columbia Yacht Club. July 5—Opening of South Jersey season at Holly Beach Yacht Club. July 15—Delaware River Yachtsmen's League meet at Trenton Yacht Club, Trenton. July 22—South Jersey meet at Chelsea Yacht Club.

July 29—Delaware River Yacht Racing Association meet at Ocean City. August 1—Interclub race at Ocean City and cruise distant. August 4—Interclub race at Ocean City. August 19—Delaware River Yachtsmen's League meet at Camden Yacht Club. August 26—The Record trophy speedboat race, from Philadelphia to Cape May. August 29—South Jersey meet at Ocean City Yacht Club. September 3—South Jersey final at Cape May Yacht Club. September 16—Delaware River Yachtsmen's League at Farnout, Spoutmen's Association. October 1—Delaware River Yachtsmen's League meet at Wilmington Yacht Club.

There are a number of club championship affairs to be scheduled which will be seriously conflict with any of them. Among these are the Point trophy race for cruisers in the Camden Motorboat Club, the Record Cup race and the annual speedboat race at Flat Rock, the cruise to the Salton Yacht Club watermelon party, the Anchor Yacht Club racing foot contest and others of equal importance.
