

ILLUSTRATED

Evening Ledger

THURSDAY
March 2, 1916

NOTES AND COMMENT ON THE NEWS OF THE DAY AS GRAPHICALLY TOLD BY THE CAMERA

Photo by International Film Service

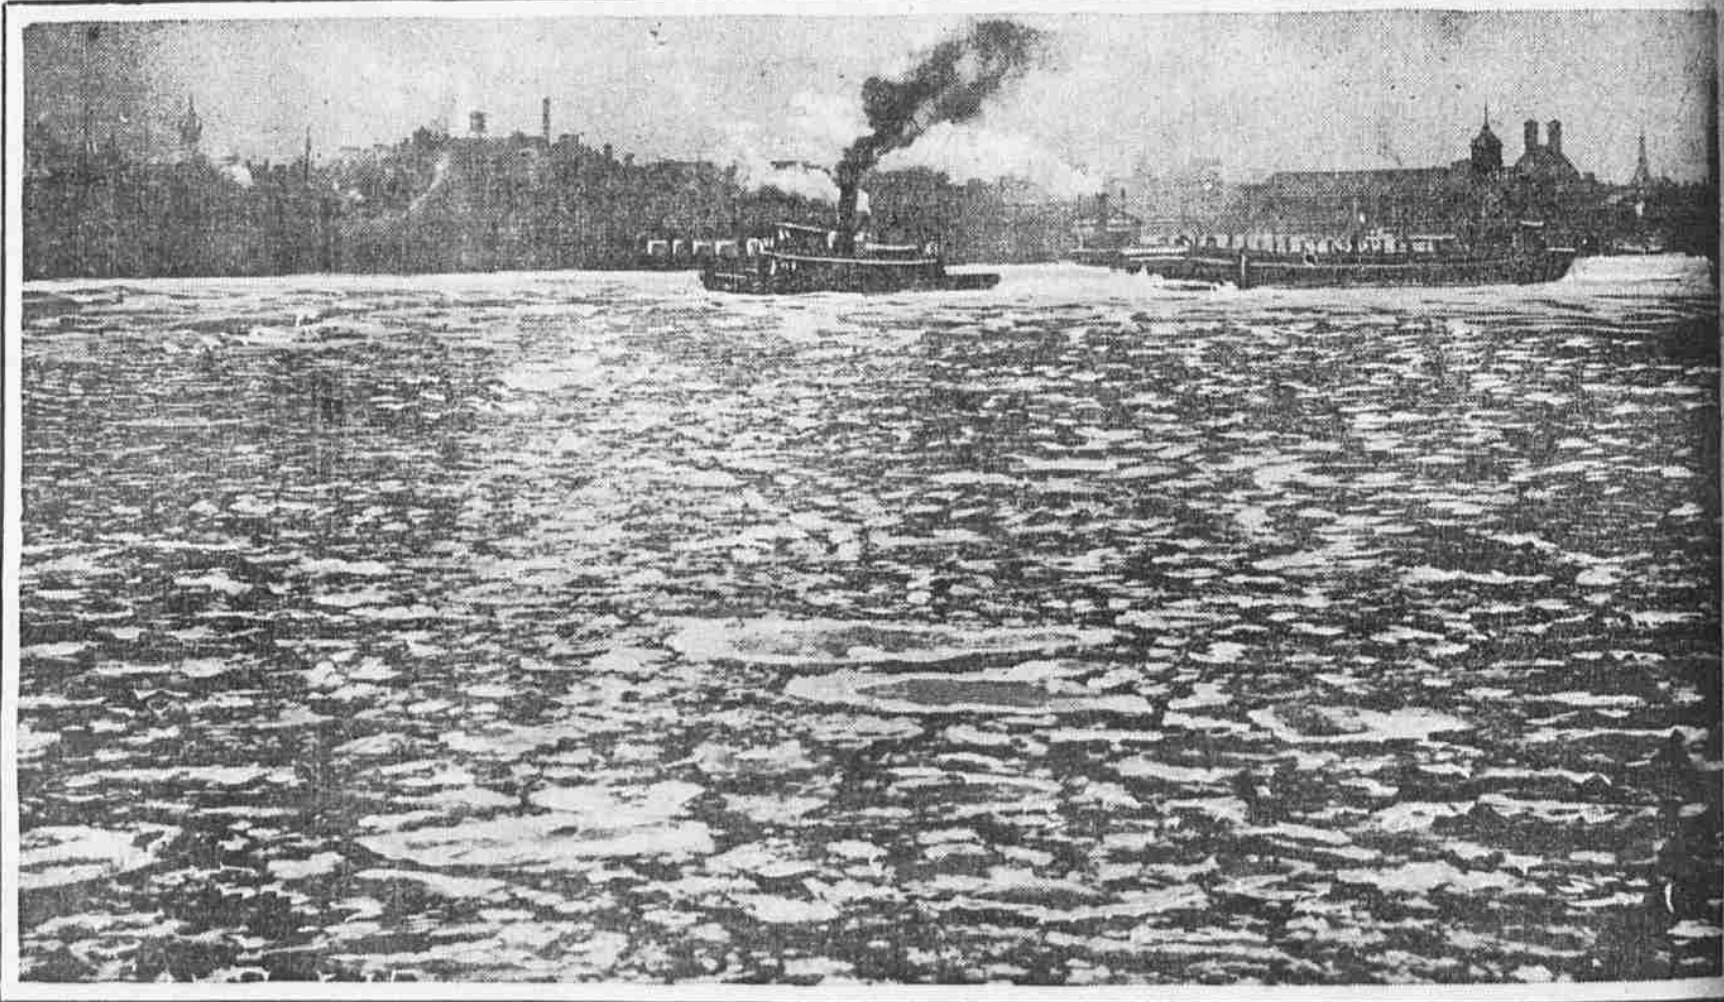

HOOSIER POET GETS A GREAT WELCOME ON VISIT TO FLORIDA
James Whitcomb Riley was the centre of a great celebration at Miami last week, when folks came from far and near to pay him honor and tell him how they liked his homely verse.

Photo by Mutual Film Co.

JUST AFTER SIGNING THAT $670,000 CONTRACT

Few persons who have seen him in the misfit clothes and eyebrow mustache would recognize in this well-groomed young man, the Hon. Charles Chaplin, hero of a million movie fans, who has just signed over his services with a new concern at a frightful figure.

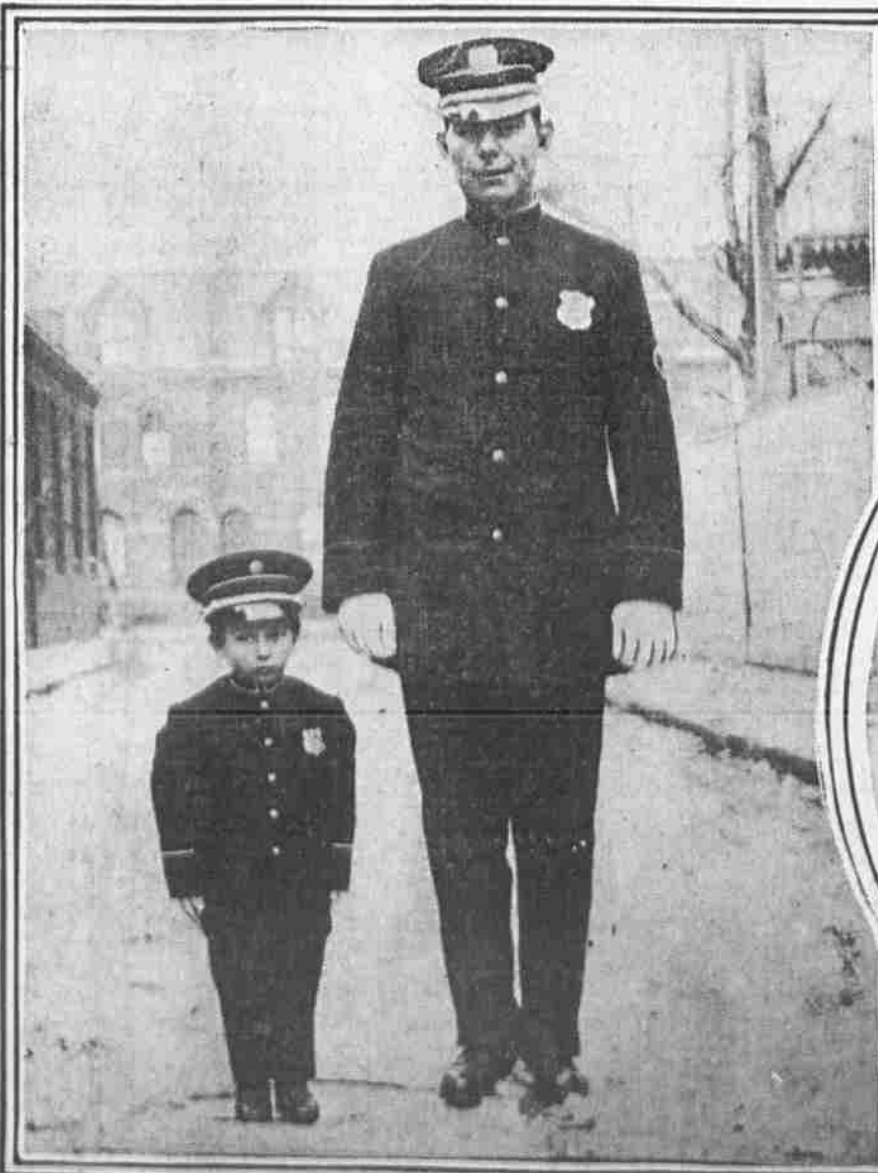

THE PLACID DELAWARE IS ALL BROKEN OUT WITH ICE CAKES

Showing how the historic river looks just now when the Camden ferryboat plows its way across. Though these berglets interfere somewhat with traffic, they would scarcely do for Eliza to repeat her crossing performance on.

MOST FAMOUS OF PHILADELPHIA LAWYERS

A snapshot of John G. Johnson on his daily noontime walk up Chestnut street. He is camera shy and photographs of him are rare.

YOUNGEST TRAFFIC "OFFICER" IN THE CITY, IF NOT IN THE WORLD

Nelson McMichael is his name and he's just three years old. So great is his ambition to be a policeman that his father, George M. McMichael, of 3268 Sanson street, has provided him with a regular uniform. On the right he is shown haughtily holding up an auto p'ty. At the left he proudly compares his height with that of Reserve Officer Caldwell.

Photo
taken with camera
shy and rare