

ILLUSTRATED Evening Ledger

FRIDAY
March 3, 1916

NOTES AND COMMENT ON THE NEWS OF THE DAY AS GRAPHICALLY TOLD BY THE CAMERA

PHILADELPHIA ORCHESTRA AND CHORUS WHICH LAST NIGHT GAVE MAHLER'S EIGHTH SYMPHONY FOR FIRST TIME IN AMERICA

In the centre stands Leopold Stokowski, conductor. In the middle background are the eight soloists: Florence Hinkle, Inez Barbour, Adelaide Fischer, Margaret Keyes, Susanna Dercum, Lambert Murphy, Reinald Werrenrath and Clarence Whitehill. More than 1000 persons took part. The chorus was recruited partly by the Philadelphia Orchestra, partly from existing local organizations. Music lovers are here from many cities to attend.

"MODEL STORE" TEACHES PUPILS PRACTICAL LESSONS IN BUSINESS DEALINGS

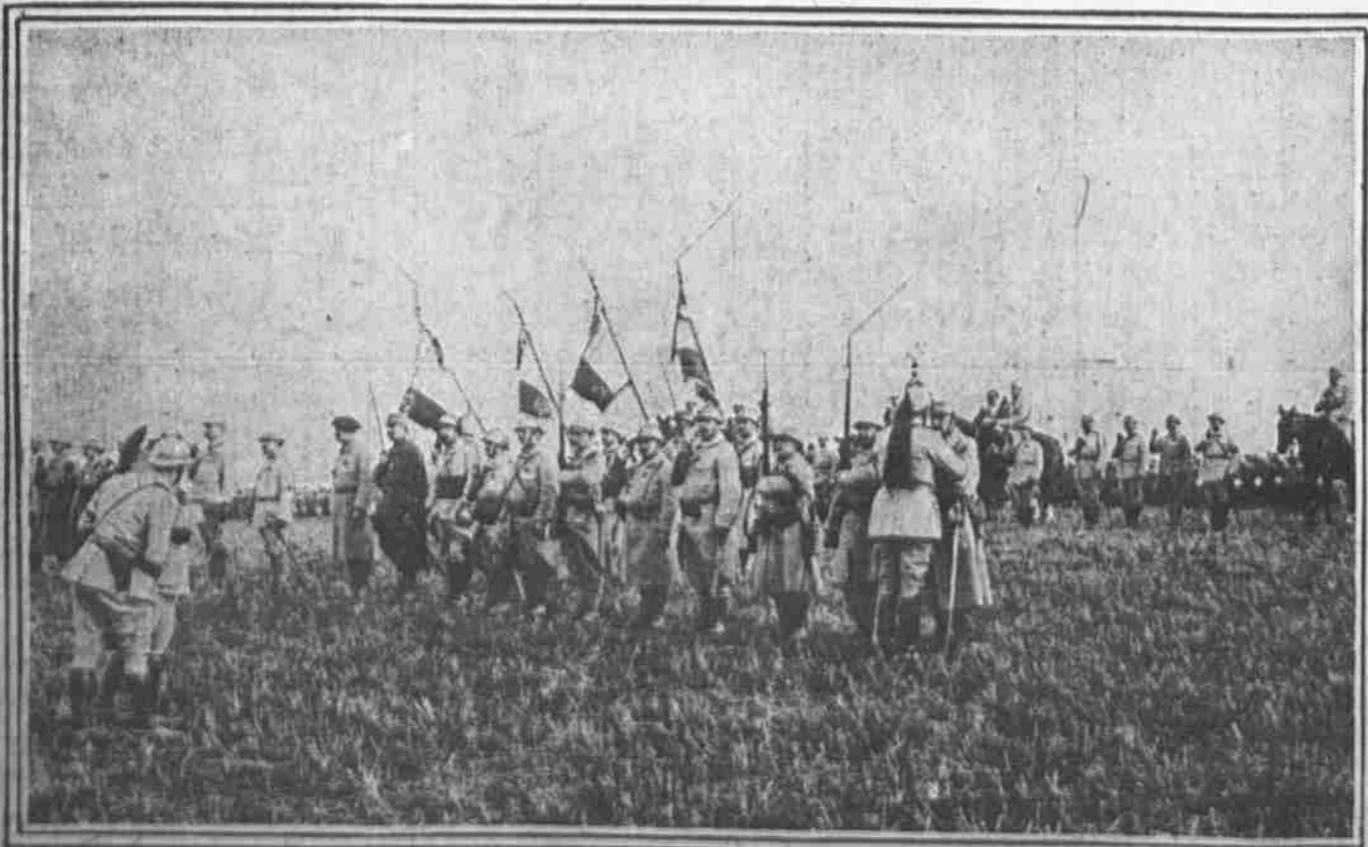

Left to right are Gladys Crowther, James McMullen, Dorothy Litzenberg, John Gray and Katherine Kraus, the "store-keeper," of the Rosemont School, Garrett Hill, as they appear transacting business in their own grocery store.

Photo by Underwood & Underwood

PALM BEACH SOCIETY ENACTS ITS OWN MOVIE PLAY

Miss Rosamond Lancaster, of Boston, dancing at the dinner party at which the engagement of the Hero and Heroine is announced. After the film was shown for charity it was destroyed.

FRENCHMEN DECORATED FOR VALOR IN LAST BATTLE OF CHAMPAGNE

A French colonel of dragoons is shown at the right pinning the medals on the "pouus" at a review held not far behind the battle line.

PARIS VIEWS NEW GUNS AND WARPLANES TAKEN FROM THE GERMANS

The court at the Invalides has been set aside, according to ancient custom, for the display of trophies and weapons captured from the enemy.