BEAUTY OF LOVELY WOMAN ECLIPSED BY ELOQUENCE OF HER TONGUE

Debaters of Chatham Literary Society Confute Arguments of Poet and Novelist by Practical and Utilitarian Facts

Poets have raved about the eloquence of a woman's face. They have penned heart-throbbing pages about a pair of violet eyes which overtook empires; they have penned palpitating paragraphs of Cupid's bow lips. And with romantic fervor youth yearns for a better job and a home on the Main Line wherein he might give shelter to the girl of the novel, who is too beautiful for human description.

But had such romancers been present at the debate last night on "The Beauty of a Woman's Face," they would have been the laughing stock of the evening. The contest was held by the Chatham Literary Society at the Baptist Temple.

Despite the eloquence of beauty, it was brought out by those who took the opposite side that many a woman would suffer constant agony were the chance denied her to speak her mind.

When the department store sent her the wrong hat or the waiter at the summer hotel brought her the things she didn't order? Worst of all, what could she do when the man of her heart courted her and she denied the use of her tongue. Such were a few of the arguments introduced by those who failed to see the use of mere beauty.

What would become of the telephone which is connected with hubby's office? It was asked. And when he came home at 3 from the office would woman be satisfied to write him a letter about it the next day?

As a crushing blow, the advocates of the tongue pointed out, what a country this would have been if we simply had beautiful but tongueless school teachers.

The supporters of the beautiful face pleaded for breath. Their highly colored phrases floundered about the room.

But an adherent of beauty made a wise plea. The suffragists, he declared, would have won their fight by merely presenting themselves at City Hall and their plea for the vote would have been granted. Another advocate of beauty pointed to the fact that many women of stately poise were engaged for important positions before they spoke a word. Still others declared that love at first sight had nothing to do with the tongue.

For a time the beauty followers became enthusiastic, but their hopes were routed when the rebuttal came. It was like a storm, for it chased the sunshine from

Why a Woman's Tongue Is More Eloquent Than Beauty

Beauty may fade away, but who ever heard of a woman's tongue wearing out?

The persuasive tongue outweighs the nagging tongue.

The last organ to be stilled in a dying woman is her tongue.

The woman with an active organ of speech is not necessarily a shrew.

If a man were drowning, what would he rather see, a beautiful face or a lively tongue that could yell "help."

How few women are beautiful, yet all have tongues.

Beauty is only skin deep, but a tongue is six inches from tip to root.

A tongue is protected from the ravages of age, but a face suffers from the seasons.

It matters little how beautiful she may be if she has no tongue to say yes.

beauty with hard facts which fancy phrases could not deny.

"What if a man were drowning," said the tongue champions, "could a woman save him with her eyes or a smile? Ah, no, 't would be much better if she unleashed a scream for help."

Then, getting down to other practical views, one of the oral advocates pointed out that beauty was only skin deep, whereas medical authorities will agree that the tongue is six inches or more—according to the woman's vocabulary and temper.

And as to durability—then came the finishing squelch. Those who stood back of the tongue reminded their hearers that a tongue is protected from the rain, the snow, the sun and the wind—but as to the face, it is out in the open and actually gets tired from the ravages of time.

As a last effort the affirmative referred to the beauty of Cleopatra, but could not show that her beauty was used to any real advantage.

"Would a mother have time to write all the reprimands when Tommy splashed through his soup at the table? Just then the vote was taken, and it resulted in a decided victory for those who defended the efficiency of the tongue. But one vote was recorded against them.

The speakers on the affirmative side of the debate, that is, the advocates of the potency of woman's beauty, were A. P. Hausman, the Rev. Orlando T. Stewart and Oscar Beasley. The victorious champions of the power of the feminine tongue included Harold Loeb, the Rev. Samuel Williams and the Rev. W. E. P. Haas.

BREWERS' CONTEMPT HEARING POSTPONED

Counsel for Accused Officials Gets Time in Slush Probe Cases

PITTSBURGH, March 7.—The hearing in the contempt proceedings in the United States Court against Edwin A. Schmidt, ex-president of the United States Brewers' Association, now treasurer of the Pennsylvania Brewers' Association; John P. Gardner, president of the Pennsylvania Brewers' Association; and Gustav Lembeck, treasurer of the United States Brewers' Association, was postponed this morning by Federal Judge W. H. S. Thomson.

The cases were to have been heard Thursday, but this morning Attorney George E. Shaw, for the respondents, asked that the cases be postponed until Wednesday of next week, as his time this week was occupied with other cases. This was granted by Judge Thomson.

The case against Hugh F. Fox, secretary of the United States Brewers' Association, which was to have been heard Thursday, also will be heard Wednesday of next week.

Judge Thomson also handed down an order this morning dismissing the petition of Fox, filed March 2, asking that the contempt proceedings against him be quashed.

United States District Attorney E. Lowry Humes, together with his assistants, Neil W. McGill, Daniel S. Horne and E. M. Price, worked all day yesterday and until late yesterday evening going over the papers in the records in the eight large packing boxes of the records seized in the New York offices that were marked "historical" and "confidential."

MORE EXPERTS HEARD IN ELECTRIC CASE

Additional Evidence Granted to Submit Day on Suit by Cooke

Four electrical experts were called before the Public Service Commission today to give further testimony in the Philadelphia Electric rate case.

It was planned to conclude the hearing with today's session, but the additional testimony caused Commissioner John Monaghan to announce an extension of one day for the filing of documentary evidence.

The first expert called was William C. Eglin, chief engineer of the Philadelphia Electric Company. He submitted testimony, with exhibits, to show the cost of currents at the various substations of the Philadelphia Electric Company. Prof. D. C. Jackson, of Boston, was called to give details of certain items appearing on the appraisal of the Philadelphia Electric Company's plant. Others who testified were Edward L. Moreland, assistant to Professor Jackson, and Clayton W. Pike, former Director of the Electrical Bureau.

Today's testimony added many pages to the 5000 or more typewritten sheets of evidence, which has been recorded since the opening of the case.

BAKER'S NOMINATION SENT TO THE SENATE

His Speedy Confirmation as Secretary of War Confidently Expected

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The President today sent to the Senate the nomination of Newton D. Baker, former Mayor of Cleveland, O., to be Secretary of War. His speedy confirmation is confidently expected by Senator Pomerene, who is in charge of the nomination.

"Baker is only as much of a pacifist as the President himself," said Pomerene. "Like the President, he has a passion for peace and will not be led by hysteria in a preparedness program. He is a thorough believer in making this country ready to meet its national duties."

Indications were that Progressive Republicans, as well as Democrats, were highly pleased with the appointment.

MORE THAN 500 MISSING WITH WRECKED LINER

Spanish Steamship Principe de Asturias Sank Five Minutes After Striking Rock

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 7.—More than 500 passengers and sailors of the Spanish steamship Principe de Asturias are still missing today and are believed to have perished when the vessel was wrecked off San Sabastao Point on Sunday. Government tugs sent from Santos are searching the sea around San Sabastao Island, and the coast is being patrolled, but no survivors have been found in addition to the 143 landed at Santos by the Swedish steamship Vega.

A dispatch from Santos states that among those rescued by the Vega was Charles Tredele, the American Consul at Santos. The same dispatch said that the captain of the Principe de Asturias shot himself on the bridge when he realized that his ship was doomed.

WASTE IN CIGARETTES WOULD AID BELGIANS

Appeal Made Here for Additional Contributions to Soldiers' Fund

The value of cigarette "butts" thrown away in seven days would be sufficient to pay the weekly tobacco bill of 30,000 for the 200,000 Belgian soldiers.

On tobacco smoking, gathered by figures on tobacco smoking, secretary of the Belgian Soldiers' Tobacco Fund, had led him to believe that the sum needed weekly by the fund represents even less than the tobacco wasted by cigarette smokers in that time.

Contributions, in the meantime, are being larger week by week, as the people realize the importance of the appeal to tobacco. A trifling less than $2000 was received last week by the treasurer, J. Morgan & Co., bringing the total to $977.74. Philadelphia has aided in the sum with generous amounts. Drexel Co. yesterday reported $172.25.

A dollar given here means that the Belgian soldiers will receive a dollar's worth of tobacco and smoking material, for American cigarette manufacturers have cooperated with the fund in making advantageous arrangements. Concessions also have been obtained from various Governments as regards duty and freight.

MAYOR'S OBJECTION TO SUNDAY CONCERTS NOT 'CONSCIENTIOUS'

Says City Is Without Financial Means to Pay for "Luxury"

Mayor Smith today explained his opposition to making any appropriation for free Sunday concerts by the Philadelphia Orchestra on economic and not on conscientious grounds. The city, he said, can not afford a luxury of this kind under present financial conditions.

Discussing the plan to have the city appropriate $15,000 for Sunday concerts to be given next winter, the Mayor said:

"I have no objection on conscientious grounds to the giving of the concerts, but I am opposed to the city spending $15,000 in this way. How to find the money is the question in the way. As a matter of fact we have no money for such a purpose. There is another thought in my mind and that is that we have no right to tax the many for the benefit of the few. There is no theatre in Philadelphia large enough to hold many people, and an appropriation of a fund for concerts would result in using money derived from taxing the whole city for the pleasure and benefit of a comparatively small number. Those are my only grounds for opposing the plan to have the city appropriate money for this cause."

the soup of the epicure

The music of your children's laughter

It is largely a matter of—dinner!

Soup is but one small item in the menage, but it is a significant fact that "golden lads and lassies" dwell in the homes where Franco-American Soups are served. The parents who are most solicitous for their children's health are precisely those who most appreciate the splendidly nourishing quality of Franco-American Soups.

The "French deliciousness" in these soups is not gained at the expense of wholesomeness. In the Franco-American list are soups so light, so delicate, so readily assimilated, and with so substantial in food value that better "providence" for the youngsters is unimaginable.

The capable manager of the home also appreciates the "preparedness" of these soups—the fact that they are finished—ready to serve except for the heating.
