EVENING LEDGER-PHILADELPHIA, FRIDAY, MARCH 10, 1916.

Evening Ledger

PUBLIC LEDGER COMPANY CTRUS H. R. CURTIS, PRIMITIN name and Treasurer; Philip S. Collins, John B.

12 *

EDITORIAL BOARD: CIRUS H. & CUATIS, Chalrman. WHALEY ad daily at Fustic Lapora Building.

Independence Square, Philadelphia.
Lunom CRATRAL	t Street
AttANTIO CIFF	Building
THEROTE ANTICIPATION OF ANTICAL STREET, S28- Ford	Buildin
Gr. Lauis
NEWS PUREAUS.
WAREINGTON BURBAU	Building

Marconi House, Stran .32 Rue Louis le Gran SUBSCRIPTION TERMS

carrier, six conts per week. By mail, postpaid de of Philadeiphia, except where foreign postage quired, one month, twenty-five conts; one year, dollars. All mail subscriptions payable in

Norton-Subscribers wishing address changed must give old as well as new address. BELL, 3000 WALNUT KEYSTONE, MAIN 1000 Ledger, Independence Square, Philadelphia.

ESTERED AT THE PHILADELPHIA POSTOFFICE AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.

THE AVERAGE NET PAID DAILY CIRCULA-TION OF THE EVENING LEDGER FOR FEBRUARY WAS 104.115

PHILADELPHIA, FRIDAY, MARCH 19, 1916.

Because right is right, to follow right Were wisdom in the scorn of consequences. -Tennyson.

It is a long way to Verdun, but the Crown Prince seems to be on his way.

_

The new Secretary of War confesses that he has a great deal to learn. The rest of us know that he has a mighty short time to learn it in

It is probable that the man who sent $30,000 from Philadelphia to the conscience fund in the national Treasury is not the one you think It Is.

Some people go away from Philadelphia in the winter because it is not hot enough, but for others things are often just a little bit too warm.

It is now up to those who are opposed to holding automobile races in Fairmount Park to give their reasons. There may be some valid ones, but what are they?

Villa was reported to be on his way to Washington to see the President. He evidently decided that it would do just as well to send a message by way of Columbus.

*** * * a man who seeks the Presi-dency of the United States for anything that it will bring him is an audacious fool." --President Wilson at the Gridiron Club dinner. The President knows whereof he speaks.

The enthusiasm with which the suggestion of a patriotism day, to be observed during the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, has been received is indicative of the feeling of a vast majority of Americans that it is a peculiarly fit time for them to answer the challenge that this is a "massmeeting" and not a nation. It is planned to have the celebration in Philadelphia the most imposing thing of its kind ever held on this hemisphere, if, indeed, anything of its kind has ever before been held anywhere.

The Mexicans who raided Columbus, N. M., are described as bandits. When they are across the border fighting Carranza they are called insurrectionists. If Carranza cannot prevent the Mexican outlaws from making raids, the United States will have to do something more effective than watch and wait on his pleasure. Nobody wants to go to war with Maxico, but conditions in the Southwest are rapidly getting to be intolerable.

orous kind of Americanism they will have to reckon with him in the coming campaign, for he is "not in the least interested in the political fortunes" of any man. He may be expected to issue a supplemental statement when he returns to New York. In the meantime, it is worth noting that the Colonel has once more proved that he is a political strategist of the highest rank, for at the moment when every one is congratulating the President on his victory over Congress he reminds the nation by cable from the islands of the sea that there are other pebbles on the beach.

REAL TRANSIT OR NO LOAN

The people have voted once for the Taylor plan. They will vote for it again if need be, but they will bury under an avalanche of ballots any attempt to folst a makeshift substitute on them.

A MAGNIFICENT plan for transit development was submitted to the people by Director Taylor and adopted by the electorate in Philadelphia with a unanimity rarely accorded any public undertaking.

The Taylor plan was subjected to the closest scrutiny of labor unions, business men's and civic associations, and by interests which would have been delighted by the discovery of any flaw,

It stood the acid test.

After months of intelligent public consider ation of every phase and financial aspect of the plan submitted, that plan was indorsed by virtually every organization in Philadelphia which is interested in public affairs.

A special election was then ordered by City Councils to afford the people of Philadelphia an opportunity to vote for an increase in the city's indebtedness in the amount of $6,000,000 for the construction of the recommended system.

Every voter believed that he was voting upon the carrying out of the Taylor plan. It was the plan which had been approved in every section of the city. It was the only plan before the people. The electorate of Philadelphia thus by their vote indorsed the Taylor plan with a mighty volce, C Mr. Taylor resigned from the office of Director on January 3 with his great plan adopted by the people, with the financing of construction provided for by enabling legislation and with the construction work well under way, with the initial $6,000,000 made available by Councils.

The people thus had and still have within their grasp a great municipal transportation machine, planned to connect up every important section to every other important section in Philadelphia in a manner to enable passengers to travel to and fro quickly and comfortably for one 5-cent fare.

The municipal system was skilfully planned so that it could be equipped and operated independently of the P. R. T., only if necessary, as a fatal competitor.

The equipment and operation of the munic-Ipal system by the P. R. T. was thus assured. Mr. Taylor has always recommended and agreed that the P. R. T. should equip and operate the municipal high-speed system in conjunction with its existing high-speed and surface lines on a free transfer basis.

He has pointed out that such operation would virtually connect up every front door with every other front door in Philadelphia by the joint use of the most convenient com-

Tom Daly's Column

Preparedness

Preparedness talk and all that stuff For statesmen may be good enough, But when they start to scold They always leave me cold.

When politicians have their say I take it for a grandstand play; I turn, when such are near, An instientive ear.

But yesterday, upon my word Quite unexpectedly I heard A most persuasive gent: And now it's different.

Suppose he was but talking "shop"? I listened till he chose to stop, And wagged my silly head, Approving all he said.

"Prepare," he said, "for what's at hand Throughout the length of this great land. Be ready for the day: Be ready while you may!"

"Ah! very true. He's right!" I thought. So, taking out my purse, I bought A dozen balls and eke A fine new driving cleek,

What Shall the Poet Sing?

A speech or editorial of recent date the remark occurred that men of such and such avocations, even poets, had been lead into error and preachment of error. So the thought came to me. "Write a poem discuming "What Shall the Poet Sing." Shall the true poet, the mod-ern Caedmon, be a nationalist, or shall be be a universalist; shall be informe armament, or must be, to be true to that which is really noble, insistently call for disarmament? Or dare he ignore today's problems—ostensibly ignore them, though really by his expositions of what them, though really by his expositions of what literature and history contain in the way of instruction and guidance he may mold opinion and affect decisions of nations and thus be-come a factor for (we hope) good." As soon as certain work is off my mind I shall strive to put this into fitting diction--rhyme and rhythm. All this did I write to a former pupil. Dernbitz.

TO WHICH WE REPLY.

The thing to write we cannot tell Until we're sure that Villa fell; But Of to write a villanelle! Would tickle this here pote like-anything!

Gems From "Luck in Disguise"

(A novel written in good faith by William J. Texter revised and punctuated by L. P. Culter and copy righted 1859 by John W. Lovell Co., N. Y.)

This is Christmas day. Were we to attempt to describe the galities and festivities partici-pated in by the Means family, our language would fail un

Suffice it, we will say, long before the morning twilight appeared in the Eastern horrizon. to shed forth its phosphorescent rays through the thickly falling snow-dakes, the Means family were all in tune, preparatory to the events coincident and peculiarly allied to such occusions.

Mrs. Means mingled her volce and person with the vervant and the children, endeavoring to dispet all gloom, and, if possible, to forget her grief that so impeded her happiness; despite all her efforts, her visage gave evidence of an unadjusted evil, which was forcibly portrayed in a sud and strangely melancholy look of her countenance.

DIANA MUSES.

I need a dress, of mauve and grey -His favored colors, by the way-To hold my suitor, now half won, To rivet his attention on Myself and win his heart for aye. A difficult Adonis they Account him; if, then, I canny To captivate this wary one I need a dress.

And I need, too, a smart display Of quips and sparkling repartee Of bright refort and caustic pun Of clever lrony, and fun

COSTA THE REAL PORTUGUESE RULER

Chief Actor in Comic Opera of Politics in Nightmare Republic. Story Goes He Cuts Off Dogs' Tails When Feeling Fierce

AND now it is Portugal. Germany has de-clared war on Portugal. One might feel sorrier for Portugal, poor little Portugal, if the country were not so wonderfully safe from German armies and German fleets. The Ger-> proach by way of the Mediterranean, moreover, hardly seems practicable at the DR A. COSTA present time.

And then again, one might feel sorrier for Portugal but for the fact that the man who engineered the whole affair is Affonso Costa. In all the confusion of information about the Portugal of the last few years one name has kept bobbing up at every turn of events. That name is the name of Affonso Costa.

For several years there has been a general expectation that any day the world would hear of the assassination of this foppish-looking tenth-class lawyer and first-class unscrupulous politician. A British publicist, a couple of years ago, declared that "what is almost certain is that Affonso Costa will soon be murdered by some of the republican extremists," and he added that, "with all his faults, there is nobody to replace him." For Costa is the man who has kept the ship of state from running on the rocks; he it is who through hypocrisies and trickeries has enabled his nation to weather the storms of domestic mutinies and conspiracies. He controls the shaky destinies of "the nightmare republic."

It was discovered later that Costa's own friends had put the pistol in the boy's hand, and that the whole "assassination" had been prearranged for purposes of publicity. This story would be unbelievable were it not that the Premier is vain enough to believe that attempted "assassinations" strengthen his political prestige and keep him fully in the public eye. He has been "assassinated" so many times, in fact, that when the news does arrive of his actual murder (as may happen at any time) few in Lisbon will be prepared to believe it.

Costa's Famous Ride The story of his ride to City Hall to proclaim the new republic is quite as interesting in its way as that famous ride of Paul Revere's In its own way, remember. Everything and everybody was in confusion. Except Costa. He knew that all danger was over for the revolutionists. He kept away from his fellow conspirators and-hired a taxi. It was necessary for Costa to get somewhere-and get there first. It was imperative also that Machado de Santos-one of the leading mutineers -should be "dished." So Costa jumped into the cab, after the king had disappeared, and with a cloud of gasoline behind him "made" for the Rotunda, where a handful of conspirators was in waiting, with Machado de Santos in charge. He told de Santos that another attack was imminent and persuaded him to remain on guard. Then, having properly deceived his fellow republican, Costa jumped into the cab again and "scorched" to the City Hall. The cab in which this terrific ride was made ecame later an object of historic interest. and there was an abortive attempt to install it, with the relics of the Braganza murder, in the rational museum. It may be added, as a

What Do You Know?

Queries of general interest will be answered in this column. Ten questions, the answers to which every well-informed person should know, are asked daily.

QUIZ

About how many houses are there in Philadelphia? 2. How does Portugal compare in size with Pen sylvania? 3. Name a formerly great shipbuliding centre in Maine.

4. In what State is Alken? Who is the Mayor of Chicago? 6. Is Denver north or south of Atlanta? 7. Name a great American poet. 8. Name the Sultan of Turkey.
9. On which side of India is Bombay?

10. Name a Senator from Florida. Answers to Yesterday's Quiz

1. At the corner of Chestnut and 5th streets. 2. Roosevelt. 3. Jefferson bought Louisiana from Napoleon fai $16,500,000. 4. Nearly six times as large.

5, Two. 6. Yes. Buchanan 7. Five. 8. The hidden river.

State College, Centre County. 10. Three.

Use of "Vise"

Editor of "What Do You Know"-In business correspondence and in print I occasionally coms across the verb, "to vise," used in the sense of validating a document, the sign of the acute accent over the letter e indicating its French or gin. Sometimes it is used in the past tens, "visced." On reference to both my French and my English dictionaries I fail to find the word The first named, however, includes the verb "viser," of which one of the definitions is "po-sign." Example: "fairs viser an passeport" "Vise" must therefore be the past participle of this yerb, and it seems absurd to use it with the sign of the infinitive in English, as it would be equivalent to saying "to validated." "Visced." according to this construction, would be dateded." Is there any good authority for this mongrel combination? W. A. S. Vise is the past participle of the French verb viser, but it has been incorporated in the English language. You will find it in the Concise Oxford Dictionary classed as a noun and as a transitive verb. As a noun it means an indoce ent on a passport showing that it has been found correct, and as a verb it means to mark as correct.

man armies have not reached Paris yet, you anow, and besides, there's Spain, and Spain is neutral, and as for the fleet up in Wilhelmshaven, why, the fleet is still there. The ap-

There ought to be no objection in Washington to the request of the Baldwin Locomotive Works for permission to straighten Crum Creek, at Eddystone, and spend $100,000 in building a ship basin there. The basin will not interfere with the navigation of the Delaware, and it will enlarge the docking facilities for large ships. The work ought to be done, and it is a proper charge upon the National Government, but there is no good reason for either Congress or the War Department, which has charge of navigable streams, to object to having it done at private expense.

It was morally certain from the beginning that Portugal would enter the war. She has an alliance with Great Britain which requires her to assist that country in certain contingencles. She began to give assistance a few days ago by seizing the German merchant ships that had taken refuge in the harbor of Lisbon to escape capture. So long as Portugal remained neutral they were safe, and when peace was declared they could go to sea again and carry German goods to the ends of the earth. The seizure of the ships was an unfriendly act and Germany has naturally accepted the challenge and declared that a state of war exists. The most important effect of the changed status of Portugal will be to open the ports of the Azores and Madeira to the warships of the Allies which are scouring the seas for German raiders. An incidental effect is that it raises the number of nations engaged from the unlucky 13 to 14. The four States of Germany, Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria are on one side, and on the other are England, France, Belgium, Russia, Italy, Serbia, Montenegro, Portugal, San Marino and Japan.

ROOSEVELT'S HAT IS IN THE RING

THERE is no mistaking the meaning of the statement which Colonel Roosevelt has cabled from Trinidad to the New York Mail.

His hat is in the ring,

The statement divides itself into three parts. The first is a declaration that he will not be a candidate for the nomination in the primarise in any State, that he does not wish the nomination, and will not be a party to a factional fight to secure it.

The accord part is a challenge to the men of herole purposes and high ideals to nominate him as the man who is able to assist them in currying out their purposes by realizing their identia in action. Unless the country is in this mood, he thinks it would be a mistake to call him to lead it.

"The third and concluding part is a declarathan that nothing can be expected from the mant Administration but hypocriey and in-

All this means that if the country wants the is ready. It is notice to his followers or got huser. And it is a warning to the men out activaly buinting for delegand that if they do not stand up for the most vig- ping will be talerated, bination of surface and high-speed routes for one 5-cent fare.

In return Mr. Taylor recommended, and the public agreed, that the P. R. T. should be compensated annually for its loss resulting from this desired co-operation, by being given a first charge on the earnings of the new high-speed system in an amount equal to such losses-the city share in the earnings to be secondary.

The P. R. T. was thus assured against any loss of present income resultant from the es tablishment of the municipal high-speed system, or the operation thereof by the P. R. T., according to the Taylor plan.

Mr. Taylor's successor in office barely entered upon his duties when he promulgated a plan for the curtailment, emasculation and virtually the elimination of all of the broad provisions made under the Taylor plan for the proper service of the city, presently and prospectively.

Worse than that, the Twining plan would forfeit every provision made by the Taylor plan by which the municipal authorities gained the necessary strategic position to require the P. R. T. either to equip and operate the municipal lines under a fair contract with adequate protection of its earnings or otherwise to face ruinous competition.

The people are aroused. They know their power. Their voice must and will be heard and heeded.

The people demand that the forthcoming loan bill shall provide adequate funds to carry out the Taylor plan in its entirety. They also demand that the loan bill shall be so framed as to designate the routes of the lines which are to be constructed in such a manner as to settle this question for all time.

The people will act for themselves in this matter and settle it by their vote once and for all.

If the loan bill is not framed so that the people in voting upon it financially settle the routes of the municipal lines in positive terms, the loan bill will be defeated.

This is the people's chance.

To defeat the entire loan bill would mean a delay of only a few months pending a second loan election, and such delay, if it be made necessary by political blundering, will be fully justified by the ultimate result, which will bring great and lasting benefits to Philadelphia.

The loan bill must by its terms definitely and finally settle the transit routes, otherwise the people will sottle it in their own way, They have the power to do so! No sidestepIn fact, to hold this macker gay I need address. A. A.

FORDS painted. $15; other cars at reasonable rates.-Classified Ad. Why can't folks be reasonable about the Ford?

The Way It Works

The heir who's left a fortune fat-It may be safely stated-Grows dissolute because of that. But soon the fortune-tit for tat-

Is also dissipated.

he ideal man weighs 150 pounds, has fine h is close to the head, is broad between the ears a head is long from the brows to the name of —Professor Lewis in E. L 'Scuse our blushes, Prof., and accept our thanks!

THOUGHT I lived in a republic," writes S. B., "but the other day I saw this inscription on an old building at 5th and Arch:

By General Subscription, For the Free Quakers Erected in the Year Of Our Lord 1783

of the Empire 8. Hyper-Hyperbole

CIR-Let's see who can produce the hip-D hip-hurrawest hunk of hyperbole. Here's my entry:

Once upon a time there was a grasping landlord who had a witty tenant, whose honest estimate this landlord foolishly wished. So he sent the land agent with a pint of mountain dew to find out what Mike thought of him. The landlord received this report: "If you were blown to smithereens as small as a grain of mustard seed, the littlest bitten that would be left of you would corrupt a whole nation of pickpockets." M. C. D.

No Novelty

Oh, wherefore wasts the angry word On those whose ways you may deplore. It's likely most of them have heard Just what you'd like to say, before. lust what you'd like to say, before. --Philander Johnson in Washington Star.

Waste not your own words to deplore

What is not waste, for you will find Some words, though often heard before, Still leave effective stings behind.

THE CHAMBERED NAUTILUS

Sir-We picked up a copy of the "Ngutilus" for March the other day and this is one of the things we saw: A publishing company ad vertises

GOLD TOPPED

And now that you got that one how's this

Seeing Things Once upon an cerie night. I saw a wart-hog in its flight Phick a wart from out the sky And drop it in a misser's eyes

BER

"Assassinations" That Failed

It hasn't been clear sailing for the country since the monarchy was overthrown by the murder of Carlos and his son and the deposing of young Manuel. It has been a period of speechless pusillanimity on the part of "the people" of Portugal. Elections a farce, politics a scandal. Not long ago a traveler wrote: "Conspiracy has become a business. It is at present the only business that pays in Portugal. Moreover, it produces a vicious circle of plot and counterplot like the bogus plot and counterplot so profitable to the Russian secret police." How far matters have improved is shown by the fact that Costa still runs the Government. Costa is Costa, and so long as Costa is boss Costa is Portugal.

Costa has filled other important offices since then and is now Premier and Foreign Minister, but he hasn't changed his spots. The ablest man in Portuguese political life, he is demagogue through and through and a man of unsavory repute in both private and public life. He "schemes out" his every action. A writer who knows his character says that now, if the worse came to the worst, he would run for cover. "He has done it before, so there is no libel in the statement. Was it not he who hid in a newspaper office when the revolutionists in Lisbon were jamming the Rotunda and the boy king was in flight? So history sayeth. Was it not Costa also who, when the danger was over, valiantly rushed to the City Hall and proclaimed the new repubfie? History so records. It also records certain incidents of that exciting period in Portuguese affairs which, if Portugal were not the funny country it is, and Portuguese states men not such a self-seeking lot, would read like a comic opera libretto."

You see he hasn't been assassinated yet by royalist or republican extremist, or anybody else. Costa became Minister of Justice in the first Cabinet of the first Government under the republican regime. In seven years, by the way, there have been seventeen different Ministries. Costa chose the job because he knew the "pickings" would be good. In this office he immediately began a long series of "suppressions" calculated to down his enemies and raise his own prestige (such as it was, and is). Those opposed to him were arrested not only because they were said to have spoken ill of him, but also because they were sometimes suspected of laying plans to assassinate him. At one time, in fact, these suspected "assassinations" became the cause of amuse ment in Lisbon. One poor fellow, arrested in the very act (so it was sent out by Costa's friends), was found to have nothing more terrible on his person than a blunt jackkmite. Another-this time a small boywus dis covered with a platel in his hand, but innew so little how to use it that when he fired at the rallway carriage in which Costs was should be travel () he billed ontirely to bit the corriage.

still some bullet holes in the made, says one authority, by one of Costa's admirers, who fired "a few shots through it as it lay in its shed, in order to give it the appearance of having been through the hottest minor incident in the libretto, that there are

That's the style of Premier Costa, controller of the destinies of the nightmare republic. Not very impressive in personal appearance, he tries to be-with his nice little mus tache and beard and all. But this attempt to be impressive goes to greater lengths. He wishes to be thought very fierce. He encourages the story that he keeps a large number of dogs for the purpose of cutting off a tail when he's in a particularly flerce mood. Let Germany beware.

BETWEEN FISHING TIMES

There is all the difference in the world be-tween fishing and angling. Fishing is a com-mercial occupation. Angling is something else again, something not so mundane and monplace. It was of angling, not fishing, that old lke Walton wrote. Yet there's a way of making the latter term expressive of the Walmaking the latter term expressive of the Wal-tonian spirit. That is by utilizing the prefix "a," which is really not a prefix at all, but a preposition. "A-fishing" is impeccably senti-mental. Dr. Prime uses it in his little book, "I Go a-Fishing," but there he is quoting Scrip-ture. Then, sometimes, a phrase containing the word "fishing" may be so turned as to preserve the higher value, as in the title of Bilss Perry's essay. "Fishing With a Worm."

essay, "Fishing With a Worm." Angling is of ancient history. Among the fol-lowers of Zoroaster were angler naturalists, and both the Greeks and the Romans pursued the both the Greeks and the Romans pursued the art of angling. From Homer to Opplan there were plicatory poets who dwelt on the de-lights of the gentle craft. In a poem of the second century Opplan describes the perfect angler as "a well-made, active man, patient, vigilant, enterprising, courageous, and full of expedients." The carliest mention of fly fishexpedients." The earliest mention of fly ing occurs in the Epigrams of Martial, whe Ing occurs in the Epigrams or Martial, wherein the wrasse is "decoyed by fraudful files." The first English authoress, Dame Juliana Berners, wrote "A Treatyse of Fysshynge wyth an An-gle." printed in 1496. May her memory thrive like that of Honest Izaak!

BY THE OLD HOME-FIRE - T.

The old home-fire where the red sparks race Up the broad-backed chimney, in the old home far we've wandered from its friendly How gleams-

From the home-winds singing through the dark's

From the nome-winds singing inrough the dark is still dreams! Wandered weary in the far, faise lights, Yearning vainly for the old home-nights-For the winter allence on the frost-flecked way. And the broad-backed chimney with the home ways fire's blaze! II.

The strange, thronged cities of the storming crowds: The buildings climbing until they scar the

The buildings climbing until they scar the clouds; The strife of toilers in the storn life-fight Of the days that die not in the hush of night! The trend of thousands on the thunderstreet. With hearts far-sighing for the silence swept That fell in blessing on the friendly gleams Of the old home-fire where he read love's dreams!

III.

The traveler listens where the lost lives roam; The Dark is calling to the Dark: "Come home! The loved lights twinkle over vale and hill And the dreams are walling in the firelight still, The winter-stillness that is falling deep With healing evertness like the breath of

Hall of Fame

Editor of "What Do You Know"-1. The Hall of Fame is in the Capitol at Washington. Please give full description. 2. What is a chancellor in England and in the United States of America? HENRY D. EVANS.

1. There is no Hall of Fame, properly 60 called, in Washington. Statuary Hall in the national Capitol is the only place which might be called by that name. There is, however a structure known as the Hall of Fame for Great Americans. It is in New York on the campus of the New York University. It is in the form of the New York University. It is in the form of a terrace, with a superimposed colonnads connecting the University Hall of Language with the Hall of Philosophy. On the ground floor is a museum 200 by 40 fest. The colon-nade above is 600 fest long, with provision for 150 panels, each to bear the name of a famous American. The names to be inscribed are se-lected by a jury of 100 distinguished citizens. 2. A chancellor in England is a state or law official. The highest judicial officer is known as the Lord High Chancellor, and the facel officer of the Governner: is the Chancellor of the Exchequer. The chancellor of a bishop of a diocese is the law officer of the bishop in Austria and Germany the chief minister of states is known as a chancellor. In the United States Austria and Germany the chief minister of and is known as a chancellor. In the United States it is the title of a judicial or executive officer. The head of the New Jersey courts is known as the chancellor and the president of Syractus Interaction has the set of t University hears the same title.

Oil on the Water

Editor of "What Do You Know"-Will you please tell me where in the Bible I can find the phrase, "Like pouring oil on troubled waters" R. C. Y.

Will some reader ansist R. C. Y.?

Oldest German General

Editor of "What Do You Know"-Who is the oldest general in active service in the German army? FRITZ

"Count Gottlieb von Haesler, who is more than Count Gottlieb von Hmesler, who is more mass 80, is said to be the oldest man at the front. He is the active adviser of the Crown Frince at Verdun. He retired 13 years ago, but volum teered for service when the present war began

Route to Valley Forge and West Chester

Editor of "What Do You Know"-Kindly tell me how to get to West Chester, Pa., by train, trolley and by foot; also to Valley Forgs, Pa. by train, trolley and by foot. Let me know how far these places are from City Hall. CONSTANT READER how har these photoe backs and a constant READER CONSTANT READER. You can reach West Chester by train from the Broad Street Station of the Pennsylvanis elevated to 95th street, where you change in the West Chester line. On foot, you would follow forge is reached by train from the Market arre-forge is reached by train from the Market arre-form take the No.rtistown electric cars at the elevated torminal at 69th street and in Norti-town you can take the bus, which makes the foot is be way of Overbrook, Ardinara, Harve-ford, Brya Mawr, Willsmova, Bullok, Kon wa Prosing and Chunt Hamburg to Vallag Power The sherizance is 21 is miles.

460 PAGES HALF LEATHER

LEAVES

WANTED-A single room for a man not numalier than twelve feet long and eight feet wide. WOODCOCK.