VANCY WYNNE SEES A GAY TIME IN STORE FOR DANCING CLASS TONIGHT

Germantown Cricket Club Will Present Festive Scene Tonight, When Mrs. Troth's Dancing Class Will Meet-Several Dinners to Precede Dance

Patrick's Day will be well carried in the various festivities planned members of the younger set. Mrs. and Troth's , pular dancing class, ich meets at the Germantown Cricket will take place tonight. Mrs. noth, you know, has just come back on a week's stay in Poughkeepsie, ge she visited her daughter, Mrs. Weedbridge Riley.

The usual german will be omitted toght, I have been told, but unusual mres will be introduced during the

Anta Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Powel Evans, will be given a dinbefore the dance by her grandother, Mrs. Clarke Merchant, It ally is delightful the way in which Mr. Merchant entertains for all her platives, in true grandmotherly and adaunty style. Tonight the girls the dinner will be given shamrocks to mar and the boys will receive tiny rations of the table will also carry at the green color scheme, though affer will intermingle their rich golden rellows in the general melange of color. There are to be 12 guests at this dinner. Then Mary Sheppard, the attractive aughter of Mrs. Edgar L. Sheppard, will give a dinner before the dance to her two debutante cousins, Milared and Carolyn Sheppard, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. A. Maxwell Sheppard, who, by the way, have had a wenderful time at the many parties which up to last week scarcely gave a butante time to breathe before one uns off and another was on. It's funny I keep forgetting that all these girls are no longer debutantes, that with and year girls, and now we must look for the doings of the wee newcomers, sho look younger and younger before season starts, and I am sorry to sy, though still young and pretty, bow the wear and tear of the year of plety in their little faces at the end. It's no wonder they have to be taken away to rest after a strenuous season such as this. Next year's debs will have two weeks less of it, as Lent of 1917 will begin on February 21. But all this is aside from the dancing hes, which, as it is rather informal, lasts into Lent, and which has been a necess from the very first one Mrs. Toth chaperoned. Every one who subscribes just loves to attend and Mrs. Froth sees to it that the newcomers are introduced, and also, let me tell you, Mrs. T. is a chaperon who always stays till the last dance, so the mothers never have any anxiety about this class.

Speaking of debutantes, I often wonder why it is so many of them seem so irre ponsible. Perhaps it is because so much done for them their first year they hadvertently become spoiled; that is, some of them, not all by any means, for is these days of advanced women we find advanced debutantes also very often. On the other hand, though the mee in question is about a debutante, there are plenty of others who seem utterly irresponsible in regard to other people's property. I heard recently of a last season's deb, who was dining at a friend's before going to one of the bils. She was bemoaning the fact that the had forgotten to bring a necklace, m finally the other girl asked her elder deter to lend the aforesaid "deb who was one of hers. She forthwith did, and though it is neatly a month since then, the necklace has not yet been returned. Now, every one knows this bonly carelessness; and yet is it not a very culpable carelessness? The girl who loaned the necklace hates to speak of it, because it will certainly be a reminder of her duty to the one who borrowed, and who will probably come scross the necklace among her jewels h a few weeks and then think to re-

People are strangely lacking in regard to other persons' property, anymay, although careful enough of their own. Only recently a friend was telling me of a girl whom she know only alightly who came to her house for the night. My friend gave her her own room, and next morning after she had departed, as she did at an early hour, she went up to her room to find her hair net gone and that some very naive violet sachet, which she had on the dressing table, had been used for a talcum powder. It is really estonishing. NANCY WYNNE.
