BRESSLER'S FAULT FIXED

BY CHANDLER D. RICHTER JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 17.—The warm weather returned today, and Mack's pitchers started buzzing the ball through in grand style.

During the early morning work-out, Mack gave an excellent illustration of the close attention he pays to the smallest detail, which has in reality been the secret of his success in developing youngsters.

The close attention Mack has been paying to Bressler has been commented upon before. This morning was no exception, and Connie discovered what he believes was the cause of Bressler's wildness last year.

Mack then told Bressler what he was doing. Bressler pitched for 10 full minutes before he could forget his feet.

Mack also said he knew there was something else wrong, and that is why he had been paying so much attention to the Rube.

Tom Sheehan's arm is in good shape again, while Morrisette is rapidly rounding into form.

Of the veterans, Bush and Bressler appear to be in splendid shape, but Wyckoff has shown nothing to date.

ATHLETICS TO PLAY IN CHARITY CONTEST

Mackmen, With Three McNichols in Line-up, to Meet Fort Pierce

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 17.—Upon receipt of a letter from State Senator James P. McNichols, of Pennsylvania, Manager Mack has switched his exhibition schedule so that a game could be played by the regulars at Fort Pierce, Fla., for charity.

The Yanigan schedule was to have been changed so that Jacksonville would have a game here anyway, but the University of Georgia authorities requested Mack to leave the schedule as arranged unless they could play on a later date.

As the rest of the schedule is filled, Mack asked the local owners if they objected to the plan. No objections were raised, so the regulars will journey to Fort Pierce.

It is believed that a large crowd will attend and a large admission fee will be charged, with the entire proceeds going to charity.

PHILLIES' READY FOR GAME WITH TINKER'S TEAM

Light Practice Held This Morning in Spite of Cold Weather

PITCHERS NOT NAMED

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 17.—St. Patrick's Day broke bright and clear, but it was too chilly for a hard work-out.

Pat put the men through a stiff drill in the morning, but he did not permit the players to use their tossing wings to such an extent that they would be endangered by stiffness tomorrow, when the Phils are scheduled to meet the Cubs in the first of the interclub series.

At 10 o'clock this morning all of the Phils were in uniform and out on Coffee Pot lawn. They warmed up a few moments, then Alexander, Chalmers and Mayer took the fungo willows and slammed the pills to all corners of the big lot, where most of them were gobbled up by the outfield candidates and a few of the pitchers.

Pat has not stated what pitchers he will use against the Cubs in the opening tilt, but the chances are that Rhodes, Baumgartner and Tincup will each work three rounds, unless the weather gets much warmer.

In that event some of the regulars will probably toss a few over to Tinker's men.
