

ILLUSTRATED Evening Ledger

SATURDAY
April 8, 1916

SPRING, WINTER AND WAR CROWD INTO A DAY'S HAPPENINGS TO ENTERTAIN THE COMMON PEOPLE

STYLES AT THE SHORE
Shoes in black and white add a striking touch to an early spring costume.

WHO SLIPPED A $1000 NOTE TO THE WEATHERMAN? Y
Just as Philadelphia was taking a deep breath upon getting safely into one whole week of April, Old Man Winter calls around to say he is still on the job. The sudden change in weather caught the letter carriers unprepared, and they were compelled to face the blizzard in their light spring uniforms.

HANDS IN HER POCKETS
Another snapshot at Atlantic City, where new styles get an airing.

Photo by International Film Service.
MAKER OF THE FOKKER WARPLANE
This is Herr Fokker himself, who designed and built the great aircraft which has almost given Germany supremacy in the air. He is a Hollander by birth. His great machine develops a speed of 80 miles an hour.

AND TO THINK THAT THESE WERE SCENES OF YESTERDAY!
A game on the vacant lot and a visit to the creek with a fresh can of worms are the best signs of approaching summer. But the sand-lot nine and the young nimrod did not figure upon the vagaries of Philadelphia weather. These pictures and the view of the snowstorm, above, were taken by an EVENING LEDGER photographer within 15 hours of each other.

Photo by Medem.
A BAD MAN TO MEET IN THE DARK
This French soldier is called a "clean-up man." It is his business to enter an evacuated trench and deal with any enemies that remain behind. There can be no doubt about his "preparedness."