

ILLUSTRATED Evening Ledger

MONDAY
April 10, 1916

VARIETY OF PICTORIAL SIDELIGHTS ON THE LATEST NEWS OF THE DAY FROM MANY SOURCES

ARMY OF MUNITION WORKERS OF ALL AGES WHICH AT THE CLOSING HOUR DAILY STREAMS FROM THE GATES OF THE HUGE PLANT OF THE REMINGTON ARMS COMPANY AT EDDYSTONE
This remarkable sight may be witnessed every weekday afternoon between 5:30 and 6 o'clock. The crowds of workmen so fill up Chester pike and 9th street in the direction of Chester that all traffic in the opposite direction is virtually blocked till the myriad employes have scattered. They come from every State in the Union.

Photo by Paul Thompson.
BRITAIN'S WELSH SOLDIERS CELEBRATE ST. DAVID'S DAY
They are wearing leeks on their hats, this being the national symbol on Wales' great day. St. David's name is borne, be it recalled, by one of Philadelphia's best-known Main Line suburbs.

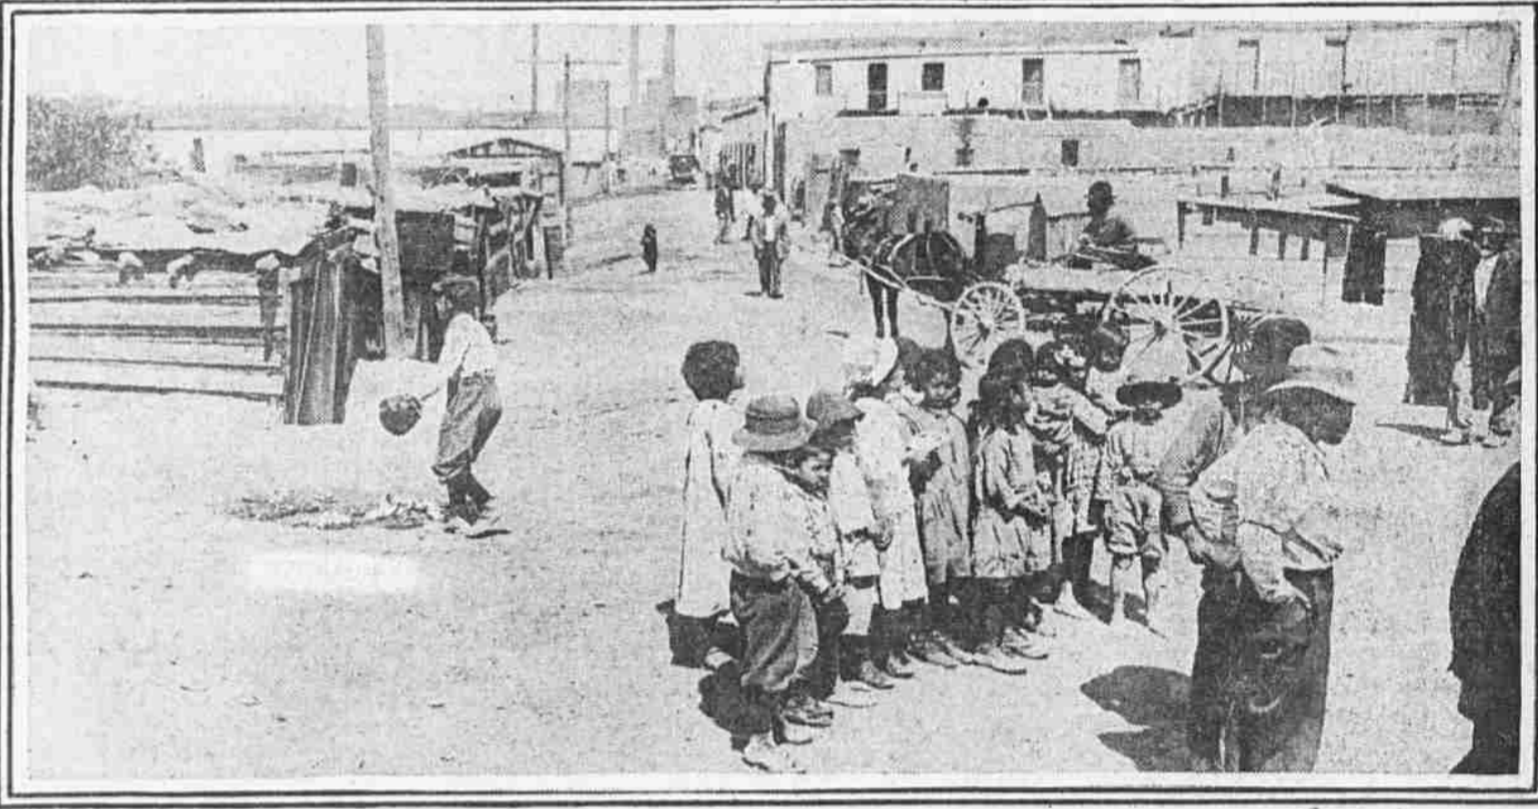

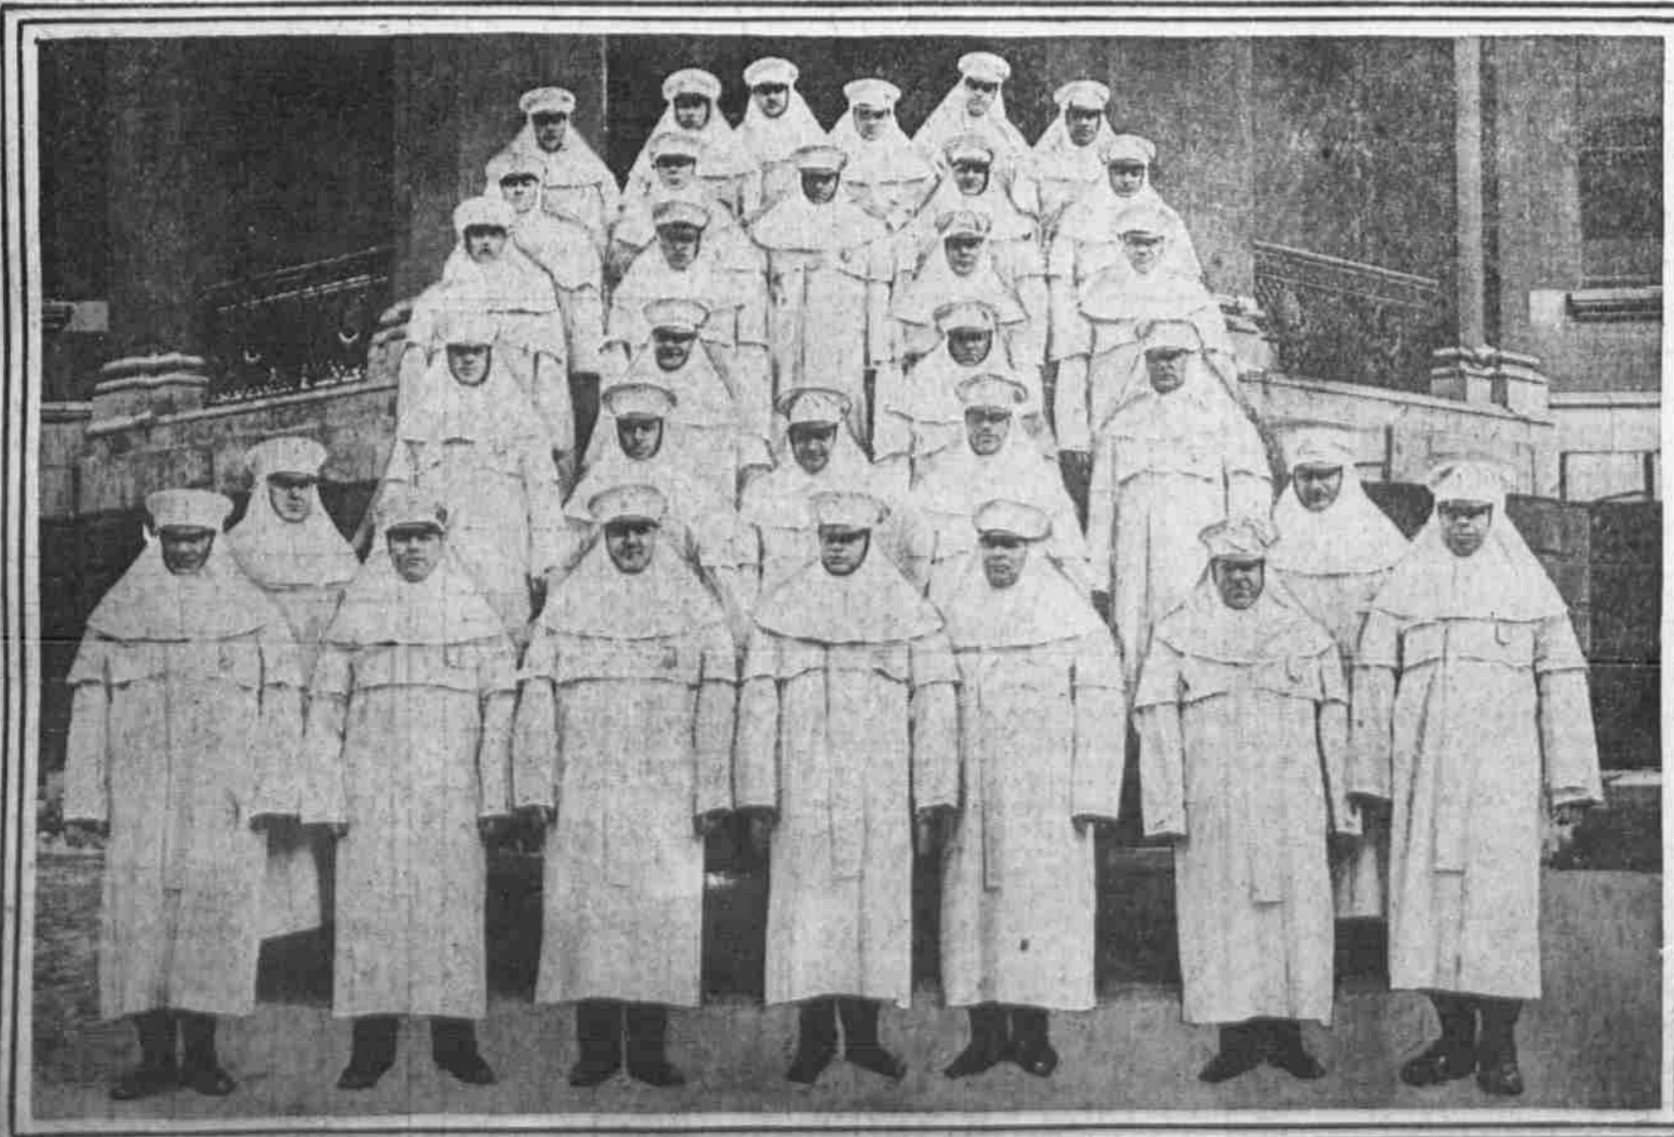

Photo by Underwood & Underwood
A GLIMPSE OF THE MEXICAN QUARTER IN EL PASO, WHERE BABIES GROW LIKE RABBITS
The Texas city lives in a state of fear of an uprising on the part of its dusker inhabitants, though as a rule the latter are harmless enough. On the left are some of the huts it lives in and on the right some of its numerous offspring.

DETROIT'S OFFICIAL "RAINY DAISIES" WEAR WHITE RUBBER COATS
At first glance this might seem to be a gathering of the Ku-Klux Klan or a nurses' convention, but it is simply a group of policemen, whom Detroit has put into white coats that they may be readily visible on a dark day.

NOON IS THE FAVORITE HOUR IN THE HEART OF THE MILLS OF KENSINGTON
A feature of life in Philadelphia's big manufacturing district are the noon-hour gatherings that cluster around factory doorways and stairs, where relaxation is the word till the whistle blows again.