WOMEN ART STUDENTS CALL ACADEMY UNFAIR

Girls in Sculpture Class Say Authorities Refuse Privilege of Night Classes

Women students of sculpture at the Academy of the Fine Arts, Broad and Cherry streets, are denouncing the Academy authorities, who, they say, will not give them free lights for night classes in sculpture, on equal footing with the men

The young women have been to "the powers that be." They have written and signed petitions, but declare these are all to no avail. The girls are much chagrined. because the men are allowed to hold the night classes, and thus have an advantage over them in the matter of winning scholarships, because they have more time

What the girls want is permission to have three classes in sculpture at night, each week. A number of the women students are ambitious and are working their way through the Academy. Some of them are out for scholarships. They are willing and anxious to go back to the Academy and work evenings to get extra practice in clay work. They declare they will pay for their models themselves or will work on compositions, if they only allowed to go back to work at

The men have classes three nights a week," said one ambitious young sculp-tress today, "and it gives them more chance to win the scholarships than it the girls. We do not think it is So we asked for permission to come back and work nights. It did no good, Then we sent in a petition. But that brought no results. We do not want to seem unreasonable, but truly we think the girls ought to be allowed to use the Academy at night when the boys have the privilege. We do not want to go the same nights they do. We are willing to og any time the Academy will let us."

The young woman, who is heading the movement for "women's rights" at the Academy requests that her name be withheld, declaring it might ruin her chances for a scholarship, if her name was pub-lished in connection with the report of the girls' allegation that the Academy is fair to the girl students of sculpture. Other departments have night classes when they request them, and the sculpture students assert they can not understand why there should be discrimination against

FRIENDLY TUSSLE IN SALOON MAY COST LIFE OF DAN FINK

Man's Skull Fractured in Fall and Now He Is Dying

A friendly tussle in the saloon of Michael Sheedy. 24th street and Ridge avenue, may cost the life of Daniel Fink, 59 years old, of 1539 North 27th street. who fractured his skull on May 28, with out knowing it, and is dying today in St. Luke's Hospital. Fink slipped and fell to the floor while wrestling with Thomas Casey, of 2428 North 24th street. After the fall he had pains in his head, but thought nothing of it for several days. Dr. William Griffith examined Fink on April 6 and found a depression in his skull. At the hospital his condition grew rapidly worse. Police of the 28th and Oxford streets station heard of the affair only last night, when Fink's son, Howard informed them his father was dying. Acting Detectives Douglas and Clegg arrested Casey, who will have a hearing today at the City Hall Police Court.

MOTHER AND CHILD BURNED

Woman Badly Injured in Frantic Efforts to Save Daughter From Flames .

Mrs. Lena Brown was playing cards with a few friends on the first floor of her home at 709 South 5th street last night. when she heard her 6-year-old daughter Sarah crying on the third floor.
"Excuse me a minute." she said. "Baby is crying for water, I suppose. I'll only

The woman climbed the steps to the child's room on the third floor and entered. The child was enveloped in a mass of flames on her bed, which was also on fire. The mother rushed at the flames and beat them out. The child was terribly burned. In fighting the flames, the mother burned. In fighting the flames the mother was also severely burned and was about to faint when the other occupants of the house came to her aid. Both mother and daughter were taken to the Pennsylvania Hospital, where they are recovering. Fire-men extinguished the blaze. The origin of the fire is unknown.

FISH AND FISHERMAN

The trout catches during the early part of the season will probably be small, as the weather conditions are still unfavora-ble. There is still much snow in many of the mountain sections; many an angler will find his favorite brook banked high with water from melting snow, and until this passes out the trout will not rise eagerly to the lures. By reason of this state of affairs, many expert trout fisherman will defer their mountainward trips until a week or more after opening day, by which time they hope most of the effects of last week's blizzard will have passed away. Berks County fishermen will be out in Berks County fishermen will be out in force on the trout streams in that county, many of which have ben extensively restocked with fingerling trout. Among the best of these are the following: Mount Pleasant Creek and small streams in the vicinity of Wernersville. Wyomissing Creek, Manatawney Creek. Tulpehocken Creek, Cold Run, headwaters of French Creek, Robesonia Creek, Moselm Creek, Big and Little Sixpenny Creeks, Willow and Hope Creeks.

NOVEL FLY FISHING METHODS.

At the monthly meeting of the Pennsylvania State Game and Fish Protective Association Dr. Chalmers Futton explained a somewhat novel way of dry fly-fishing by the use of mineral oil. Until the war broke out mineral oil. Until the war broke out mineral oil. As used by the medical profession, was obtained largely from the Galician fields, but American refiners are now producing a product equal. If not superior, to the imported. As every fly fisherman knows, the important thing is to keep the fly dry, bocause a wet fly means a useless one. Fishermen used to oil their flex in order to make them last longer. It is said that a small quantity of mineral oil latributed that a surface of a stream or producil action that flex is of the outer than the surface of a stream or producil action that is sufficed to discuss the flex of the outer than the surface of a stream or producil action that a small ountily over the surface that flex is not flex than the flex of the outer than the flex of the flex of the flex than the flex over the undersor water and form a thin flex over the undersor water and form a thin flex over the undersor water and form a thin flex over the undersor. CHUB AND SUCKERS.

Local anglers are making good catches of chub and suckers, and a few catflish, in the upper reaches of Darby, Crum. Ridley and Chester Creeks. Sungsh have also commenced to bite in the nearby streams, and a few days of sunshine will lure a small army of juvenile fishermen to these streams.

Tidewater anglers are preparing to go after white catflish, some few of which were taken last week. But this toothsome pan fish will not begin to bite in lively fashion until old Sol gets busy and takes the wintry chill off the waters they inhabit.

Edward Carr and Joseph Green, of Media, saught good strings of suckers on their recent trips to Ridley Creek, below Paimer's Dam.
