Grand Castle of Pennsylvania Elects New Officers for Coming Year

In fraternal circles few orders have enloyed a more conspicuous degree of pros-perity or proved more potent factors in enevolent impulses and consistent fra-ernal activities than the chivalrous order known as the Knights of the Golden Eagle.

Engle. With a beautiful ritual, based upon the knightly deeds of the Crusaders of the Middle Ages, in their quest of the "Holy Grall." and taking as their moto the words, "Fidelity, valor and honor," It is not surprising that the order soon be-came popular and grew rapidly numer-iculy, until castles were scattered in all sections of the State. While this surpress and wrating grew apage while this success and prestige grew apacs, handing conditions caused for a time an pathy, and the Sir Knights not being able to certait their ranks as freely as formerly, the der lost ground in membershin. In the last three or four years, reanimated and rejuve-ated, the organisation is gaining ground rap-ily and candidates are once more focking to be portals of the castles all over the jurisdic-or.

The portion of the charles all over the jurnane-tion. This annual reports now being compiled at headquarters on North Broad street. In this city, it is stated, will show substantial pet mins in membership and finances for the past year. Much of this revival of interest and material success has been due to the character of the affects chosen for the State Castle. An election for new officers has just been completed and returns from all castles through-out the State have been received and officially counted. The results disclose the election for the inportant and initial sifies in the progress through the Grand Castle Chairs of August G. Stemme, of Antioch Castle, No. 38, an Grand Sir Horald for the coming year.
