THE WEATHER

Official Forecast

WASHINGTON, April 24. sey: Partly overcast and continued cool tonight and Tuesday; light frost in exposed places tonight; light northwest winds.

The shower area that was central over Michigan Saturday moved slightly to the south of east, and is passing off the coast at Nantucket this morning. It caused light rain southward as far as Washing-ton. The dominant feature of the may this morning is an area of high barometer over the Plains States. It is causing un-seasonably low temperatures, with freez-ing in the northern Plains States. An area of thunder showers is reported from eastern Texas and portions of the adjoin-ing States, apparently caused by a mod-erate drop in temperature.

TWO MEN IN HOSPITAL FOLLOWING CELEBRATION

Pistol Fight on Street May Cost Life of One Participant One man is dying in the Methodist Hospital, and another man, who is said to have shot him, is slightly wounded, as a result of a pistol duel, which occurred at 12th and Mifflin streets shortly after midnight today, following an Easter celebration. The postitionaries is the fight week.

night today, following an Easter celebration. The participants in the fight were on their way home, when their feud grew so bitter that revolvers were drawn.
Modestino Mattarazo, 21 years old, of 833 Christian street, has a builet in his head, and physicians say he cannot recover. Tony Matlo, 30 years old, 1214 Montrose street, is wounded in the thigh.
The police say that after Matio shot Mattarazo he was shot by Palo Clione, 27 years old, 912 South 11th street. The latter was arrested and arraigned before Magistrate Baker. He will be held to await the result of the injuries of the other

The police are investigating the shooting in an effort to learn where the Easter celebration which led up to the fracas was held, and to determine what cause led to the found.

'SOME MIX,' SAYS TRAIN VICTIM

Brakeman, With Both Legs Amputated, Wonders What Is the Matter With Him

As astounding display of grit was wit-nessed at the University Hospital, when John Walters, 23 years old, of Baltimors, a railroad brakeman, was brought in after having both legs amputated by a freight train on the Baltimore and Ohio branch near 57th street early today. Fourteen cars passed over Walters' body.

Beside the loss of both legs Walters suffered a crushed right arm, severe lacer-ations and possible internal injuries. He is not expected to live. When he reached the hospital, however, he had recovered consciousness and, turning to Police Sergeant Weaver, he said:
"I wonder just what's the matter with me. I must have taken sick at my work.
I hope my legs will be all right again.

That was some mix-up all right!"
Walters, at the time, knew his legs were crushed, but did not realize they had been amputated. The accident, it is thought, occurred when he fell from a box-

MONTE CRISDEN

MADE his bow to Philadelphians several weeks ago, and was given a hearty, appreciative greeting. Hundreds of letters were sent Thousands of people read the absorbing story of his life, from day to day. And when the story halted, there were immediate and insistent demands for its renewal. Thus it is that in next Saturday's Evening Ledger Monte Crispen returns. He has foiled the conspirators who sought to destroy his factories. But he does not yet know his people, as he would. He returns as a workman, living in a Kensington boarding house and mingling with his own employes. What he learned there, the way he won the sympathy and interest of his own people and eventually found real happiness-that is the basis of the new Monte Crispen serial. It is a powerful, skilfully told tale of Philadelphia for Philadelphians.
