MONTE CRISPEN (The Sequel)

A Remarkable Story of the Millionaire-Hero's Adventures in Kensington

Monte Crispen, upon the death of his sucie, John Montgomery, inherited a est estate, comprised chiefly of steel textile mills in the vicinity of Phila-A proviso in the will made it sectioning for Monte not to go more con 50 miles from Philadelphia during the first year after his uncle's death in order to pain clear title to the millions. During the course of the preceding story a part of the Crispen Steel Mills to blown up by the agents of Baron Hochmeister, because war orders for the Allies are being filled. The next day a cryptic cross warns Monte that a similar attempt will be made to cripple the textile mills in Kensington, Strikes are planned, and if these fail dynamite will be resorted to.

The sequel begins at the point where Monte, traveling incognito, arrives in Kensington to learn conditions at his

The first Instalment, which appeared in Saurday's Evening Ledons, introduced the reader to Mrs. Marley, with whom Monte is living as Mr. Taier, an efficiency engineer, and her daughter Unity, While the three are at a homely, but nourishing the supplied of the supplied o

By ARNOLD GARRY COLM

CHAPTER II-Continued "TAM attentive," said Andrews, with a laugh.

"What I want to know is how long it will take to equip all our textile mills with non-suction shuttle appliances?" "Probably 30 days; I can't say off

"Not much," replied Monte. "It must be attended to now. This is dead serious. Andrews."

"Very well, I will get Blanchard on the phone tonight and have him make up an estimate on the cost and the lowminimum time for installation."

"And I want you to see that a rule is posted against any further threading of shuttles by the suction method." "That is as good as done," said Andrews. "You must be at the mill headquarters tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. I have arranged to present you to Bianchard as 'Mr. Tailer.' "

Monte responded "I will be there at 8 o'elock."

impossible for you to stick to it.

and change.

which to be idle.

FARMER SMITH'S

THE ART OF STICKING TO IT

In early life, we want to be on the go; while in the sunset of life, we Realizing this, the schools are kind enough to give you a long vacation.

every week, but you have about three months during the summertime in time, maybe they will give a "vacation" of half an hour if you ask them.

like Gladstone have found a great deal of pleasure and profit in chopping dainty little butter dishes are SUBMARINES going down underneath to in trying to get out of doing it, the task would soon be accomplished.

If you, little boy, get tired chopping wood, remember that great men

If you, little girl, do not like to wash dishes, why not "play" that the

If you would expend the same energy in doing your work that you do

FARMER SMITH.

A little relaxation gives fresh energy to do better work.

street he was whistling merrily,

CHAPTER III Monte Gets Fired

ALL success begins with a plan. No plan can succeed that is not based relationship. Each day since his return acquiring new data. He was feverishly hunting for the wisdom of others. More Englishmen whom he had played with sun-kissed outdoors of "The Riviera"; men who should have been in Sheffield. Bradford and Manchester, holding the place of their country in the arena of trade against ambitious rivals of other countries.

Monte conceded that the great industrial enterprises of his uncle were the massed accumulations of a strong man who refused to bend before the growing complexities of modern business; a man had a right to do anything with labor so long as he kept his capital working; a man wholly upright in private life, yet who always put expediency and lawyer-law above justice when considering problems affecting labor.

John Montgomery had never been a hard man. He had been a rule-of-thumb man, who had left out of his calculations the human side of business. Labor to him had been that and no more-labor. Capital was the same—just capital. Two hard, grinding surfaces, labor and capital, that rubbed well together produced a grist, profit; in turn, profit to become capital. Around every circle he saw another to be drawn, an endless process patterned after the planet system. Each new enterprise was a fresh planet ringed.

Marshall Field, as he advanced in years, drew into his business the brightest brains that his money could command, and used their judgments in forming his own; their initiative in keeping him abreast of the times. Old Montgomery had dominated alone, and he had become so engrossed in the creation of new circles of personal control that at his death nearly all of his great enterprises had themselves been passed by new conditions.

Hence it came that Monte found his uncle's estate cradled an iron works full of obsolete processes, textile mills with narrow looms only and much nonsafety, antiquated machinery and a shipyard rapidly falling into decay, to Monte, when our young multimillion

FARMER SMITH. Children's Editor, EVENING LEDGER.

FARMER SMITH,
EVENING LEDGER:
I wish to become a member of your Rainbow Club. Please send me a beautiful Rainbow Button free. I agree to DO A LITTLE KINDNESS EACH AND EVERY DAY—SPREAD A LITTLE SUNSHINE ALL ALONG

LITTLE SUNGHALL
THE WAY.
Name
Address

of ten little Rainbows. They are Dicky

Thomas Smith, who lives at the Rush Hospital, is one of our most faithful pus-ale solvers! Elizabeth Turner, of Walnut street, and Catherine Hayes, of Overbrook, are two little girls whose answers appear so regularly that they have grown to be our calendar! How many more Rain-bows want to help your editor keep track of the days?

The Question Box

Things to Know and Do

i. Why can a clock, which shows min-utes and seconds, take part in a public meeting? 2. What day do you like to eat? (For little folks).

MONEY PRIZES

The children who send in the an-cover of "Things to Knew" are su-tilled to compete for the prime of $1, $0 cents and the four $5-cent prises, awarded at the end of each week.

of the days?

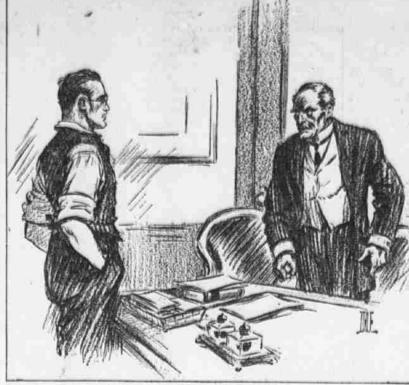

As our young hero curned into Halsey | While the executives in the various Montgomery plants were generally practical; they had won their promotion by the calendar and time-clock, and had been whipped by environment into narrow, opinionated, prejudiced, precedentworshiping views. Distribution was upon facts, their value and their true chiefly carried on through lobbers, and the whole management of sales as, well from Europe Monte Crispen had been as employment was archaic, else no crook like Lemuel Birdseye could have risen to high authority. Of his thefts than once he thought of splendid young and suicide we have read. Only a few of the executives were scientific and at polo, golf and other sports in the held advanced, progressive views, like Summers, the iron works boss.

. . . As Monte walked through the Ken sington mill district a few weeks after the death of Jennie Reed his responsi bilities to mankind loomed in the pro portions of a tremendous undertaking. He was ever groping for facts. If he was to defeat the labor plots of that dastardly scoundrel, Herr Hugo Hochmeister, alias Major Gustave Sigvay, who firmly believed that a capitalist alias Senor Enrique Velasquez, who had engineered the bombing of the Montgomery Iron Works and lured Birdseye to destruction, he must first get a firm grip upon underlying conditions at the Crispen Textile Mills.

Several intimate talks with Unity Marley and her big brother Strong had brought Monte to a realization that. aside from the immediate menace of the Sigvay gang and their diabolical schemes, there was other important work for him to do. He saw that unless he attained supreme mastery of the great human principles governing production today, so as to recast his uncle's enterprises in the mold of the new industrial era, they would simply dry up and become breeding spots for socialism and chaos.

Blanchard, the mill boss, had been sullen and gloomy from the morning Craig Andrews, the lawyer, as executor of the Montgomery estate, ordered the disuse of the old-fashioned shuttles in the weave rooms of the woolen and worsted mill, the carpet mill and the lace mill. He had openly sneered behind Andrews' back when informed that only hand-threaded shuttles would be used hereafter in the mills. Blanchard was a thin gray man with a cruel mouth. He had risen from band-boy in the spinning department, and the higher he went in authority the less considerate of former associates he became. How often the case!

"I'd like to know what in hell has go into Andrews," was his surly greeting

"You are fired. Get me! You are f-i-r-e-d. Clear out now."

appeared in Blanchard's private office.

"What's the trouble?" said Monte, unruffled, become accustomed to such outbursts from the mill boss.

"He wants me to get up a full report upon machinery safeguards. These safety-first frills give me a pain. Damn nonsense! Next thing you know Anmachinery in the office safe and produce the fabric through the combination."

It was a rough joke, and Monte did not laugh at the wit. For an instant he forgot himself and the role he was playing. The coarse remark sent an expression of his true feelings along his brow in an unmistakable scowl. Blanchard saw the furrows and broke into a tempest of words.

"If this nagging from downtown keeps up I am going to quit the Big Four," he snorted.

The Crisper mills were locally known as the Big Four for the reason that under separate roofs they embraced four branches of textile manufacture, wool ens and worsteds, carpets, laces and knit goods. Each branch had a separate superintendent, but all four were under the direction of Blanchard, who stormed

"Things have come to a pretty rotten pass in the country when legislatures and society women tell us mill bosses how to treat our hands. I am against all this fancy regulation-workingmen's compensation, child labor regulation, shorter hours of employment. Tomfoolery! It ain't constitutional and it puts crazy ideas in the workers' heads!"

"Yet the majority of the big mill own ers favor these reforms and say they are wise, humane and will ultimately stimulate production," protested Monte, It was out of his mouth before he re flected that it was his first frank expression of an epinion in the presence of the garrulous mill boss.

"A lot of sniveling weak sisters. I call them," roared Blanchard, "If the last mill owner in Kensington knuckled I would still stick to my principles."

"How do you make them out principles?" insisted Monte, and so annoyed the man he added: "I should call them prejudices."

Blanchard squared around on him. He said:

"You and me might as well understand each other now. Ever since you poked your amateur nose and banjoeyed goggles into the Big Four there has been nothing but kicks from downtown. I have my opinion of sneaks,

"Stop right there, Blanchard," broke aire, glowing from his invigorating in Monte, "You have no right to address walk, had thrown off his street garb and | me in such a manner. I was put here by Mr. Andrews for a distinct purpose, and if you want to get nasty I would advise you to save it up for him."

"Let me finish before you chip in your five cents," yelled Blanchard, quite beside himself with rare. "I have been on to you from the start. You are one of those efficiency guys they are turndrews will want me to lock up the mill | lng out of colleges these days. You are fired. Get me! You are f-i-r-e-d. Clear out now. I won't have you on the premises."

> "But," began Monte, regaining control of his temper at thought of the intense humor of the situation.

"No buts go in this office," bawled Blanchard, "You butted in, now you butt out. Off the premises or I will call the gate watchman and have you thrown into the street."

> CHAPTER IV Think, Then Act

r'unnier things have happened perhaps in books, thought Monte Crispen that night, but never before had a circumstance so rich in humor occurred in real life. He was sure of that, Fired! Of course, he might have torn aside his mask as "Mr. Taller, business expert," revealed himself as Crispen, the heir, and sharply turned the tables on Blanchard, the wrong-headed mill boss. But such a triumph would have been a temporary one only, and measured defeat to the whole purpose of his coming disguised to the Kensington dis-

Looking back at events of the day, Monte marveled at his own sang-froid when Blanchard threatened to summon the gatemen and have him fed to the cobblestones. He complacently approved of the grand air with which he had bowed low at the sputtering mill boss, and then walked out of the building, head erect, crowned a martyr in the eyes of scared stenographers, clerks

Safe Milk Infants and Invalids HORLICK'S THE ORIGINAL MALTED MILK

Rich milk, malted grain, in powder form. For infants, invalids and growing children. Pure nutrition, upbuilding the whole body. Invigorates nursing mothers and the aged. More nutritious than tea, coffee, etc. Instantly prepared. Requires no cooking. Substitutes Cost YOU Same Price

Pastel Shades in New Boots including Pearl Gray, New Ivory and White Kid at $8.50 are such values as we cannot reproduce again this season owing to increasing leather costs. Smart Boots at a price you will be wise to take

The Harper Shoe Co.

Cash Accounts Only Credit & Cash Accounts

of Etched Table Glass "Minnehaha"

72 pieces $28.00

Wright, Tyndale & van Roden, Inc. 1212 Chestnut Street

and officeboys, who had overheard the Delaware River, where the site of Blanchard's loud, penny-wise outgiv-

He knew for a certainty that his discharge by Blanchard would get to the ears of the mill operatives, weavers and perchers, handers-in and beamers, speckers and doffers, pickers and mixers, loomfixers and the twoscore other classifications of textile skill. It tickled his vanity to feel that his borrowed personality even now was saturated in their good wills, particularly when it was at the expense of "Rule-of-thumb Blanchard." Crispen had learned to capitalize every little advantage, and the longer he lived the more interesting a place the world seemed to be. He could be subtle, too, when an occasion demanded.

Fearing that Andrews might let the cat out of the bag, his first act on leaving the Big Four was to rush Lars in the blue limousine with a note to the lawyer, reciting the incidents of the morning, concluding: "Now he careful and don't spill the beans. Give Blanchard all the rope he will take. Don't worry about me. The going is

His next procedure was to give his healthy athletic body an unstinted outing A motor ride to some country club? No. He was content to square his fine shoulders, open wide his breathing apparatus, and set out upon a good, long walk in the city that established the first medical college, the first corporate bank and the first circulating library; the city that laid the keel of the first American warship and unfurled the first American flag the home of the first National Congress and the first Supreme Court of th United States, . . .

There is no city in the western world that gives back so much to the pedestrian as Philadelphia; history, nature, industry, we find them all within strolling distance of where we live and work. But we should not boast, A quiet city always, we know we might boast if we pleased. Think of it! Fortyfour miles of footpaths in Fairmount Park alone; then there are the romantic gorges and cascades of beautiful Wissahickon Glen, and the slumbering little Penn Treaty Park, in Kensington on the tree beneath which Penn made his famous agreement with the Indiana in 7883 is marked by a small plain monument. Why expatiate? This great seven-column page is not large enough for a complete list of our treasure gardens.

In the evening, before dinner, Mrs. Marley exclaimed:

"You have walked 25 miles, Mr. Tailer? Now really! Then you must be hungry. When I was a girl in Devonshire, England, there was a man in our village-"

"Oh, mother! Mr. Tailer has heard you tell that story many times," said Unity, pausing in the kitchen door. "It's about that wonderful man who walked down to London every Sunday."

"How forgetful I am becoming," admitted Mrs. Marley.

"Well, I just couldn't wait for you to tell it again, mother dear, because I wanted to tell Mr. Tailer how splendid it was for him to stand up for us mill workers this morning."

"You know?" replied Monte, somewhat taken aback.

"Yes! It's the talk of the Fig Four." (CONTINUED TOMORROW.)

in every 1/2-lb tin there are sixty cups of Note the bright red color, superior flavor, delightful aroma. Your grocer sells it.

≅ ROBINSON & CRAWFORD ≅

At All Our Stores Where Quality Counts, Low Prices Prevail

The better grade of groceries at the most reasonable prices; strict application of the principle of giving full weight and measure, and the most careful attention to the customers' wants. These combined advantages have won the particular people of Philadelphia and Suburbs for "The Stores Where Quality Counts."

Are you particular?

30 lbs. BEST POTATOES Special 65c A special price on sound, mealy white Potatoes of the highest grade, and you get full weight at "Our Stores."

GOLD SEAL BUTTER, Ib., 43c

Particular people who want the highest grade of freshly churned Butter that is made always use "Gold Seal, Hy-Lo Butter, Ib., 38c

Ca-Ro Butter, lb., 35c

A fancy grade of Pure Creamery Absolutely Pure Butter of good

HOUSE-CLEANING HELPS

Gold Seal Blue, bottle 4c Lighthouse Cleanser, can 4c R. & C. Best Oleine Soap, cake 4c Old Dutch Cleanser, can 8c Gold Seal Borax Soap, cake ... 6c Snowboy Wash Powder, pkg. ... 4c

Fels Naptha Soap, cake 4c Bon Ami, cake or powder 8c

GOLD SEAL EGGS, carton 28c If you are extra particular about the Eggs you use, and want the largest, freshest and heaviest, ask for "Gold Seal." Fresh Eggs, Dozen, 25c | No-Waste Bacon, pkg. 15c

Fresh Eggs of excellent quality; Highest quality sliced Bacon, and we guarantee every Egg we trimmed of all waste, and packed in sanitary cartons.

LEAN PICNIC SHOULDERS SPECIAL PRICE 13c lb. Lean and tender, just the right weight, and at this special price very Recently opened Stores, N. E. Cor. Rosewood and Porter Sts.:

S. E. Cor. 18th and Ingersoll Sts. Other stores will be opened as soon as we can find suitable buildings in desirable locations.

Whether you live in the City or in the Country, if you appreciate quality and reasonable prices IT WILL PAY YOU to come to OUR STORES for ALL your groceries.

Robinson & Crawford Grocery Stores for Particular People Throughout the City and Suburbs

Van Orden Shop Chestaut St.

Our Postoffice Box

explode the saucepans and kettles.

At last we meet Alfred Dorzewski! Long have we read his enthusiastic let-ters, marveled at his poems and truthfully commended his drawings. Naturally, we drew a picture of Alfred in our mind, a very nice one, too, and let us say right here and now that the real Alfred more than measures up to the "air-castle" one. John Cassidy, of North 12th street.

didn't send his pic're, but he did the next best thing.

DORZEWSKI which was to describe himself. We use to know about every and boy. If you can't send A. DORZEWSKI iri and boy. If you can't send your icture, write and tell us—what you look Here is another interesting letter from Jeanie Herecca, president of the Pitzwater Street Rainbows, telling about Paster plana. We are sorry to say this latter was delayed in the mails, but because of its merit we print it knowing that our Rainbows can imagine that the party was a perfect realization of the plan.

plan.

"I sent out postal cards to all my members, telling them we are going to have our usual meeting on Easter. We are going to meet ilke every other time, only I am going to add something—guess what? Well, I'll tell you. I am going to have a little surprise party for the members. I am going to bring them cakes, ice tream and cocos; not only that, but I am going to give every member a colored eng. I colored them myself and printed pictures on them; and not only that, I am going to let the members play the game of dart and the girl that throws the dart in the centre of the hoard is going to got a big Easter basket. I will write to you and let you know the girl that won it. It contains a big sheep of the contains a big sheep of the sholt and a big cream eag in the centre, and it is decorated with red paper and red ribbon. I am sure we are going to have a very good time. We are going to have a very good time. We are going to have a very good time. We are going to have a very good time. We are going to have a very good time.

for many other branch club leaders going to follow the enterprising ex-ist of this practical little lady and close their mumbers with such a beau-

Dear Children-One of the charms of childhood is its changeableness. Willie Wideawake's Eyes When mother wants you to wash dishes, or father to chop wood, it seems prefer to sit by the fireside and not be disturbed. Youth cries for action Not only this, but those who are wiser than you and me have decided that it is best for you to be idle on Saturdays. Not only do you have two days in When your mother and father give you work to do that takes a long

RAINBOW CLUB

the Good Dream Fairy.

in the whole wide world than your tiny eyes. Your eyelid keeps the light out so that you may go to sleep, and it opens in the morning when there is nothing else for you to do but get up. But most important of all, your eyelid keeps the ball of your eye moist, so that it will not scratch. Think about these things when you can't go to sleep and it will be much better than thinking of a lot of trash." The Good Dream Fairy turned her beauti.

"Why, mother dear, I have not been asleep yet," said Willie in great surprise.
"That is too bad," began his mother.
"I guess you have been dreaming again—dreaming you are wideawake."
"I had a beautiful time, for the Good Dream Fairy told me a lot about my eyes."

of ten little Rainbows. They are Dicky Hoyt, Susanne Pequignot, Eleanor Carson, Samuel Castner, Catherine Castner, Mildred Berleo, Dicky Krick, Natalie Byer and L. Hauss. We would like to hear more about these little folks! Florence Clothier, of Wynnewood, cheerfully answered our Easter summons and sent flowers and "hunnies" to the hospitais. Aaron Everly Carpenter, 3d, of Bala, is another little suburbanite who responds promptly to the Rainbow call.

Thomas Smith, who lives at the Rush

Jimmy's Reward By EDWARD WHITE, Hermitage St. Once there was a little boy who was

The Question Box

Dear Farmer Smith—Do you know where the common dog show is going to be held? I would like to enter Judge.

JANE DAGIT, Pine street.

The "Just Plain Dog" show will be held at Horticultural Hall, Broad and Locust streets, Saturday, May 13, from 1 to 10 p. m. Write to the Pennsylvania Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, 1627 Chestnut street, for an "entry blank." It does not cost anything to enter your pet. I do sincerely hope that Judge will win a prize.

"You gave me a quarter and I thought would bring you the change," answered

Wasn't that very good for a poor work-

FARMER SMITH'S FAIRY BOOK

"I have a good notion to glue my eyes together and see if it will not make me go to sleep," said Willie Wideawake one night when he just couldn't go to sleep there was no use talking.

"That will do no good, for you can lie awake when your eyes are shut. You are a funny fellow to think that your eyes have anything to do with your going to sleep. You simply get sleepy and your eyes go shut—pop! just like that, and your arms fall by your side." It was a voice beside him which Willie knew was the Good Dream Fairy.

the Good Dream Fairy.

"But—but—please, Good Dream Fairy, I have such a hard time going to sleep. I try and try, and here it is half-past—well, it's very late and I am not asleep yet." Willie yawned and the pillow almost fell in his mouth. "Look out:" shouted the Good Dream Fairy.

"See how quickly your dear little eyes shut? There is nothing more wonderful in the whole wide world than your tiny eyes. Your eyelid keeps the light out so that you may go to sleep, and it opens in

The Good Dream Fairy turned her beautiful eyes upon Willie and he thought he had never seen such eyes before.

"What beautiful eyes you have."

"You may think so, but I tell you that my eyes or your eyes without the lashes, without their surrounding would not be more beautiful than is a fish's eyes." The Good Dream Fairy was spreading her wings and making ready to fly away, when Willie heard a loud noise, and, looking up, he saw his mother entering the room.

eyes."

And then his mother did a very beautiful thing—she kissed his eyes.

Once there was a little boy who was poor, but very honest. His mother was dead, and to save his soul he could not tell where his father was, so he had to sell papers for a living. One day a rich man came by and asked for a paper.

Jimmy (for that was the boy's name) gave him an Evening Lenger. The rich man handed Jimmy a quarter and then jumped on a car and in a second was gone. Jimmy stood spellbound, looking at the quarter, and was wondering who the rich man was when suddenly he spied a card which he saw the rich man drop. He ran over and picked it up, and then looked at it. "James Drennan, 46 5th avenue. New York," was on the card. Jimmy knew exactly where that was, so he jumped on a trolley car and in a few minutes was standing in front of the door. He rang the bell and a maid came to the door. "Is Mr. Drennan here?" asked Jimmy.

to the door. 'Is Mr. Drennan here?"
asked Jimmy.

"Yes, come in," said the maid.

Jimmy walked in and was amazed to find that his feet sunk in the carpet at every step. In a few minutes Mr. Drennan came in and Jimmy handed him 24 cents in change.

"What's this?" said Mr. Drennan nts in change.
"What's this?" said Mr. Drennan.

Jimmy. "Never mind; keep the change, and as a mark of my esteem for your honesty I will present you with a check." He handed Jimmy a check for $100 and told him to come tomorrow. Jimmy went the next day and the man bought him a new suit of clothes and gave him a position in his other.

advantage of.

1022 Chestnut St. 1228 Market St.

A New Service

12 Goblets 12 Cocktails 12 Sherries

12 Clarets 12 Cordials 12 Saucer Champagnes or sold in such quantities as desired