

THE GREAT (The Sequel) A Remarkable Story of the Millionaire-Hero's Adventures in Kensington

By ARNOLD GARRY COLM

SYNOPSIS

Monte Crispin, upon the death of his uncle, inherits a vast estate, high in value, among other things, a little mill, Kensington, following the showing up of part of his newly acquired steel mill...

CHAPTER VII—Continued

Yago told Lumley in Chicago two weeks ago. Both the young prosecutor and Andrews gave emphasis to the bold accusation...

CHAPTER VIII

Vibrations Made Visible In THE drawer of a desk in Victor Briceone's labor conference room...

Murdoch street mystery, deep worry lines in his forehead, was formally charged with violation of Federal neutrality laws...

"A long shot in the dark," said the Government agent, "and it was the bullseye. See here, whatever was he doing with this passport and these newspaper clippings in his pocket?"

"How did you know he was the man who stuffed the gear-box of the automobile with emery, and later telephoned his son doing to Lumley at the Exchange?"

"I dare say you're right," commented Andrews dryly. "Too bad Mr. Crispin missed your pyrotechnics with his prisoner."

"At any rate, here is a clue to a proper mousetrap for him," remarked the bright young prosecutor, picking up the passport left on his desk.

IN CATHOLIC COURT

Misses Marie V. Loughney (above) and Elizabeth Lucey took part in the entertainment last night in aid of the new Catholic High School for Boys, the former as soloist and the latter as usher.

Lars on the front seat send our merry tale through to his conclusion, a thin ribbon of violet sky on a world surface of pulsating life.

CHAPTER VIII

Down from the under side of this well-hidden object, through a bored hole in the drawer like a furrow, hair, traveled a thin cord. It slyly trailed the lower outline of the desk to the edge of the carpet, under which it next scurried like a mouse's tail into a small heating register...

Briceone passed for a Neapolitan. He was a man above the average intelligence of his class, an electrician by trade.

Photos by Marceau.

IN CATHOLIC COURT Misses Marie V. Loughney (above) and Elizabeth Lucey took part in the entertainment last night in aid of the new Catholic High School for Boys, the former as soloist and the latter as usher.

A GARDEN FOR POLLY

By JOHN BARTRAM

OF COURSE "Dear John Bartram" will tell Polly "all about garden" for a little while and as near "rite away," as possible.

Place for Polly's Garden Choose light, sunny, well-drained place where there are no large shade trees near...

Plant These Early You can plant these flowers now or a little later, dear Polly. Just as soon as your soil can be prepared so that the dirt will be finely pulverized and crumble easily...

When Fruit Trees are in Bloom A safe rule to govern time of planting seeds or bulbs not included in these lists is when the fruit trees are in bloom...

Soil Must Be Dry A very important thing is always to have the soil in a proper condition, as seed will not germinate freely in rough, cloddy soil...

Preparing Soil Dig and thoroughly pulverize the soil to the depth of a foot or more. This is very important. When possible it is most satisfactory to dig the ground in November, just before it freezes.

Planting the Seed Take the beds thoroughly, drawing all clods and stones into the walks, leaving the soil fine and loose. Mark off in rows with the edge of a board or lath.

Thinning and Transplanting When plants are three to four inches high and have a few leaves, thin out and transplant, allowing each plant room enough to develop.

Verbena and Heliotrope K. M.—Both verbenas and heliotropes require full sun. The latter will do well in porch boxes.

BOYS PUSH FUND CAMPAIGN Germantown Club Pushes Race for $12,000—Collect $3663.24

Requests to Charities Will of Eliza Y. Henderson Divides Estate Among Them and Relatives

School Concert at New Century The Episcopal De Lancy Club will give a concert tonight at the New Century Drawing Rooms, 124 South 12th street.

Johanna, Chimpanzee, Has a Mate Johanna the Second, the big female chimpanzee at the Zoo, has a mate.

Fashionable Footwear For the Young Lady Styles specialized for the growing foot from the small girl to the little woman

At All Our Stores Where Quality Counts Low Prices Prevail

Great Butter Sale FOR TODAY, TOMORROW AND SATURDAY

Gold Seal —THE— Butter Special Price 40c lb.

Hy-Lo Butter Special 35c lb. Ca-Ro Butter Special 33c lb.

Gold Seal Eggs carton 28c For our "Gold Seal" we buy the freshest Eggs that reach this city...

21st and Market Streets Downtown, Uptown, Germantown, Kensington, West Philadelphia, Manayunk, Roxborough, Logan, Oak Lane, Overbrook, Bala, Narberth, Ardmore, Bryn Mawr, Lansdowne, E. Lansdowne, Lanserch, Darby or Media.

Robinson & Crawford Grocery Stores for Particular People Throughout the City and Suburbs

FARMER SMITH'S RAINBOW CLUB

THE FARMER AND THE LOCOMOTIVE

Once upon a time there was a farmer, and he wasn't a Children's Editor, either. Back of his house there was a great big hill, which stood in his way and kept him from seeing the scenery.

FARMER SMITH'S GOAT BOOK

Missus Bumpus' Joke The morning after Billy Bumpus had come home from his ride in the automobile there was a terrible noise outside the door, and he got up so fast that he upset the table and spilled a lot of tin cans which Missus Bumpus was getting ready for his morning meal.

Our Postoffice Box Here is little Martha Schultz all wrapped up in "tam o' shanters" on this happy May day! Martha didn't know, in the icy months when the weather was so cold...

The Question Box Dear Farmer Smith—How many strings has a violin and what are the names of them? Is the violin very hard to learn to play? CATHARINE FRAZIER

"His Relief" Rockfield was a tourist who had a lovely St. Bernard dog whose name was Lex. Rockfield himself was a sturdy man, loving nature in all his ways.

Things to Know and Do 1. Name three words that might be used in place of the word "answer". 2. What is the difference between circumference and diameter?

For Artists When the circus comes to town Copy the elephant, mail him to the Rainbow Club, Department K, Your drawing will be carefully corrected, criticized and returned to you.

Shoes and Hosiery $2.50 to $4.50 Dalsimer THE BIG SHOE STORE

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB But who could say that life's all sad? It matters not how vain it seems. I've got a pain right now but, my I do enjoy those chocolate creams.

WOMEN FAIL TO DO FULL SHARE IN HOME, SAYS IDA M. TARBELL

"Give the Girl a Chance," She Pleads—"Train Her for Life's Highest Business"

TALKS TO TEACHERS

More women are marrying now than ever before, and it is of the utmost importance that young girls should be trained to manage the home—which is the highest sphere of womanly endeavor.

Such was the opinion expressed by Miss Ida M. Tarbell, social investigator and writer, who addressed members of the Philadelphia Teachers' Association at the Normal School, 12th and Spring Garden streets, last night.

Miss Tarbell's address was "Give the Girl a Chance."

In a concise and direct manner Miss Tarbell depicted the shortcoming of modern life through the neglect of training young women for the management of the home that was to be hers.

She quoted statistics to show that women were marrying now more than ever, but then she told of many girls she had interviewed in shops and asked upon learning they were soon to leave to be married just what they planned to do.

"Nothing," Miss Tarbell said was the general answer. The speaker went on to explain that this was too often the attitude of the girl who was about to be married, that too often the mother admitted that her daughter was not very apt at household and management, but that the mother usually excused herself with the statement:

"I guess she will pick it up. I had to pick it up."

"The appalling thing," said Miss Tarbell, "is that here the girl enters a relation that will absorb all her time, and she is untrained for it. It shows an appalling lack of any idea or vision about the thing she is to do."

She quoted statistics to show that women were marrying now more than ever, but then she told of many girls she had interviewed in shops and asked upon learning they were soon to leave to be married just what they planned to do.

"Nothing," Miss Tarbell said was the general answer. The speaker went on to explain that this was too often the attitude of the girl who was about to be married, that too often the mother admitted that her daughter was not very apt at household and management, but that the mother usually excused herself with the statement:

"I guess she will pick it up. I had to pick it up."

"The appalling thing," said Miss Tarbell, "is that here the girl enters a relation that will absorb all her time, and she is untrained for it. It shows an appalling lack of any idea or vision about the thing she is to do."

She quoted statistics to show that women were marrying now more than ever, but then she told of many girls she had interviewed in shops and asked upon learning they were soon to leave to be married just what they planned to do.

"Nothing," Miss Tarbell said was the general answer. The speaker went on to explain that this was too often the attitude of the girl who was about to be married, that too often the mother admitted that her daughter was not very apt at household and management, but that the mother usually excused herself with the statement:

"I guess she will pick it up. I had to pick it up."

"The appalling thing," said Miss Tarbell, "is that here the girl enters a relation that will absorb all her time, and she is untrained for it. It shows an appalling lack of any idea or vision about the thing she is to do."

She quoted statistics to show that women were marrying now more than ever, but then she told of many girls she had interviewed in shops and asked upon learning they were soon to leave to be married just what they planned to do.

"Nothing," Miss Tarbell said was the general answer. The speaker went on to explain that this was too often the attitude of the girl who was about to be married, that too often the mother admitted that her daughter was not very apt at household and management, but that the mother usually excused herself with the statement:

"I guess she will pick it up. I had to pick it up."

"The appalling thing," said Miss Tarbell, "is that here the girl enters a relation that will absorb all her time, and she is untrained for it. It shows an appalling lack of any idea or vision about the thing she is to do."

She quoted statistics to show that women were marrying now more than ever, but then she told of many girls she had interviewed in shops and asked upon learning they were soon to leave to be married just what they planned to do.

"Nothing," Miss Tarbell said was the general answer. The speaker went on to explain that this was too often the attitude of the girl who was about to be married, that too often the mother admitted that her daughter was not very apt at household and management, but that the mother usually excused herself with the statement:

"I guess she will pick it up. I had to pick it up."

"The appalling thing," said Miss Tarbell, "is that here the girl enters a relation that will absorb all her time, and she is untrained for it. It shows an appalling lack of any idea or vision about the thing she is to do."