The Boy Scouts' camp near Delair, N. J. was under fire early this morning. At least reveille had just sounded and the youthful soldiers were tumbling into their clothes when a riffe shot, accompanied by a scream, was heard. A quick investiga-tion showed that Kirby Tompkins, 13 years old, of 610 Gaul street. Philadelphia, had received a 22-calibre bullet wound in his right thigh. He was rushed to the Cooper Hospital in Camden, where the bullet was extracted; he will be taken home today.

bullet was extracted; he will be taken home today. Who fired the bullet has not been de-termined yet. Young Tompkins heard the rifle report, but said it came from outside his tent. His assertion was verified by the finding of a small hole in the tent can-vas, which had been pierced by the bullet. The camp authorities are conducting an investigation. The shooting is thought to have been purely accidental. Kirby had a narrow escape, but his condition is not serious. serious.
