A FLOCK OF AMERICAN U-BOATS TAKE PART IN A "PREPAREDNESS" DEMONSTRATION

More American submarines than most persons had ever seen together at one time gathered at the Charlestown, Mass., Navy Yard last Saturday as part of a naval exhibition. Lying side by side they look like a peculiarly deadly set of surgical instruments.

WHY NOT ONE OF THE KIND ON THE JERSEY SHORE?

Here is a view of some of the participants and some of the many thousands who attended at the "Bathing Suit Parade" just held at Venice, Cal., where the latest novelties and conceits in aquatic apparel were displayed on living models.

A CONVICT'S HANDIWORK AT THE CIVIC EXPOSITION

This model of the Eastern Penitentiary, made by an inmate, is one of the exhibits at the Philadelphia Today and Tomorrow show now in progress at the Commercial Museum, 34th street below Spruce.

LUMBERING MOTORBUS IS HAILED AS SAVIOR OF VERDUN

The taxicab saved Paris when it brought up reinforcements at the Marne. The motorbus had its day when it became the sole means of transporting men and supplies to the fortress on the Meuse.

LEADER OF FRANCE'S FAMOUS ALPINEERS

General d'Ammond Poydras is the man credited with having rescued the Germans in the Vosges. He stands beside an enemy shell that made good nothing but noise.

"ANZAC" CAVALRY COLUMN SETS OUT ACROSS THE DESERT TO BOLSTER BRITISH POSITIONS ON THE SUEZ CANAL

The colonial troops from Australia and New Zealand are the newest heroes in Britain, where they are lauded for the battles they have put up for the Empire. However, they recently got a bad setback in a Turkish attack on Quetta, near the canal. "Anzac" is formed from the initial letters of "Australia-New Zealand Army Corps," which were stamped on their supplies when landed at Gallipoli.
