MAYOR SMITH GIVES HEARTY INDORSEMENT TO TEMPLE CAMPAIGN

Regards University as One of City's Greatest Assets and

Urges Liberal Contributions

GREAT DAY IS EXPECTED

Mayor Smith today urged Philadelphiana to support the Temple campaign fund for the first $250,000 toward the $1,000,000 en-dowment fund for ". aple University, and praised the institution as "one of the city's greatest assets." The 30 teams at work since last Wednesday berge a new work since last Wednesday began a new week today with a balance of $61,568 to their credit. The campaign will close Friday night with a banquet at the Hotel Adelphia, where the headquarters are located. Of the campaign, Mayor Smith said: "I take great pleasure in offering my congratulations and best wishes to the group of prominent Philadelphians who have undertaken the task of raising $1,-000,000 for the wonderful Temple Univer-sity. The good people of this great City sity. The good people of this great City of Brotherly Love will not fail to respond to their appeal if they feel toward Temple University the way 1 feel.

"I look upon Temple as one of the city's greatest assets and most useful institutions for it offers opportunities to the ambitious working boy and girl that none other offers. It occupies a unique and distinctly essential nlohe in our great scheme qf education. "What I like about Temple University is that its students earn their living expenses. Such a policy eliminates the college 'sets' and cliques we hear so much about. In Temple, from what I understand, every student is on an equality with every other student. There is no aristocracy, and that makes for better college spirit

George Washington Bought Two Chances in a lottery for a set of the Encyclopaedia Britannica -and LOST! George Washington was a thrifty and forehanded man; he died, it is said, the richest man in the new world-America's first millionaire.

He had a weakness for getting things cheap; and like a large number of people in his day, he often played the lotteries. One adventure he records laconically in his diary under date of Oct. 14, 1788 (three months before he was chosen the first President of the new Republic):

"By profit and loss, in two chances in raffling for encyclopaedia Britannica, which I did not win, f, 1/4."

This great work, already famous, was deeply coveted in Washington's day. And such rafflings were many. The custom still prevails. A few weeks ago, at a charity fair in New York City, a set of the new Eleventh George did, Edition of the Britannica was offered in a raffle and 1800 tickets were sold. The sum of $450 was realized from the sale of a single set of this work. It is

The people of today are as eager to own this famous work as in Washing-ton's time, as is evidenced by the fact that more than 70,000 people have already paid more than $16,000,000 for the new Eleventh Edition.

The reason is clear enough. In Washington's day, as in our own, the Encyclopaedia Britannica represented the finest digest of the world's knowl-edge which could be obtained.

It is this fact which has made it for 148 years the standard in the English language, and incomparably the greatest work of reference in any language.

Of Perennial Value

Like a fine watch, like beautiful furniture, like precious jewels, the value does not rapidly decrease. A few days ago, at an auction in New York City, the sum of $137.50 was paid for a secondhand set of the "Cambridge University" issue of the new Eleventh Edition. For his copy the owner had paid something like $150 nearly two years ago; and had the use of the books in the meantime.

This splendid work you may now obtain for a little more than one third this figure—a brand-new, complete and unabridged copy of the Eleventh Edition, guaranteed by the publishers both as to its contents and as to the quality of the binding, paper and printing,

-not in the large-sized "Cambridge University" issue; that would be absurd; but in a new "Handy Volume" Issue of the same work which the publishers have made for us; every one of its 29 volumes and 80,000 pages and 15,000 illustrations, identically the same as the larger and higher-priced work, except in size.

Not Much Longer

But this chance can last for only a little while longer. We arranged with the publishers for an enormous printing. This alone made possible the phenomenally low price at which we are able to offer you these bocks. Now the publishers advise us that on account of the rising costs everywhere they cannot possibly supply us with any more sets at these prices, when the present contract is out.

When you purchase a set of the new "Handy Volume" Issue you have the assurance that you have paid for it the lowest price at which it will be sold—that it will not depreciate rapidly in value, and that it will be worth for a long time very nearly what you paid for it.
