Roosevelt Receives 18 1/2 Votes of G. O. P. Delegates. Wild Scramble to Get Aboard the Band Wagon Follows Rejection of Senator Lodge as Colonel's Candidate

CHICAGO, June 11.—Justice Hughes has accepted the nomination and the convention has adjourned, sine die.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—When informed of his nomination Justice Hughes said he had nothing to say at this time, but would probably issue a statement later in the day.

Mr. Hughes said later that he would make a statement at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., June 10.—"I have no statement to make at this time," said Colonel Roosevelt this afternoon when he learned that the Republicans had nominated Justice Hughes and the Progressives had nominated him for President.

By PERRY ARNOLD

COLISEUM, CHICAGO, June 10.—Charles Evans Hughes was chosen the Republican standard bearer by the Republican National Convention at 12:20 this afternoon. His vote was 949 1/2 out of a possible 987 ballots. Colonel Roosevelt, his nearest competitor for the honor, polled only 18 1/2 votes. The nomination was immediately made unanimous. The nomination came on the third ballot of the convention and the first taken at today's session.

At almost the same minute Theodore Roosevelt was nominated by the National Progressive Convention by acclamation.

At 1:30 o'clock Charles Warren Fairbanks, of Indiana, was nominated for Vice President.

Illinois was the first of the States to withdraw her "favorite son" in Hughes' interest. The others clambered aboard the band wagon in a regular scramble as soon as the convention met.

HARDING NOTIFIES THE NOMINEE.

Chairman Harding sent the following telegram to the Justice: HON. CHARLES EVANS HUGHES, Washington, D. C.

With deliberation and enthusiasm under circumstances which could not have been more complimentary and with unanimity never excelled in past conventions, you have been nominated by the Republicans of the nation as our candidate for President of the United States. Voicing the sentiments of the convention, over which I have presided by the courtesy of my fellow delegates, I congratulate you and the country upon the outcome of this convention.

WARREN G. HARDING.

FUTILE ATTEMPT TO NAME LODGE.

Selection of Justice Hughes came after Colonel Roosevelt had made a last eleventh-hour attempt to swing a compromise candidate for both his own Bull Moose party and the Republicans in the person of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts. It was perfectly apparent that the Republican delegates proposed to run their own steamroller over the Colonel's aspirations, this year.

DEMONSTRATION AFTER NOMINATION.

Selection of the "silent man" of present-day American politics was celebrated by the usual convention uproar and parade of the State standards. There was a brief, but roof-raising bit of applause and then everybody stood up and talked and handclapped their enthusiasm.

California, with its State banner, led the parade of the States through the hall.

Hughes' nomination on an early ballot was indicated as early as midnight when Senator Sherman withdrew and asked that his 58 delegates vote for the Supreme Court Justice. Ohio next swung in line, and then just before the convention convened Indiana, Iowa, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and others followed.

WITHDRAWAL OF SENATOR WEEKS.

Senator Weeks, the only favorite son actually on the ground here, formally withdrew shortly after the convention met, appearing on the platform to declare "I have no political scars" from his unsuccessful fight for the presidency.

"Big Steve" Stevenson, otherwise Angel Archib, national committeeman from Colorado and from the first day of the convention a staunch Roosevelt supporter, interrupted the ballot to announce on behalf of the Roosevelt delegates that they considered themselves released from such a vote because of the Colonel's letter to the Progressives suggesting Lodge as a compromise candidate. Some of the undying Roosevelt adherents nevertheless cast their votes for the former President.

MASSACHUSETTS VOTES 32 OF HER 36 VOTES FOR HUGHES.

Massachusetts voted 32 of her 36 votes for Hughes, Governor McCall, arising to explain that while the delegates appreciated the fitness of Senator Lodge, suggested by Roosevelt, they nevertheless felt the spirit of the convention was the Hughes, Governor Willis, of Ohio, concurred in withdrawing Burton's name.

NOMINATION OF VICE PRESIDENT.

Hughes' name was given a great but not long continued demonstration and the convention got down to the nomination of a vice president.

When Harding announced the next order of business was the selection of a "running mate" there was a chorus of shouts of "Fairbanks," "Borah" and others. The rollcall then proceeded.

PROCEEDINGS OF EARLIER HOURS OF STRENUOUS DAY AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, June 10.—Colonel Roosevelt, around whom the whole political situation in Chicago has revolved for a week, performed true to his accustomed habit this morning, when he declared for Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, as the candidate upon whom Republicans and Pro-

Perkins Fights to Last for Compromise With Republicans, But Chairman Robins Lets Down Bars and Crowd Goes Wild

Colby, of New Jersey, Offers Name of Roosevelt, and Hiram Johnson, Probable Vice Presidential Candidate, Seconds Motion Put and Carried All in Minute

AUDITORIUM, CHICAGO, June 10.—Theodore Roosevelt was nominated as Progressive candidate for President of the United States by acclamation of the National Progressive Convention at 12:33 o'clock this afternoon.

Roosevelt's nomination came in the face of the Colonel's own recommendations that the Progressives and Republicans unite on Senator Lodge. Bedlam broke loose in the Auditorium as Chairman Robins suspended the rules, made the nomination by acclamation and announced the result all within a minute.

To the very last instant George W. Perkins fought for a compromise. Governor Hiram Johnson, of California, who probably will be the Progressive vice presidential candidate, seconded the nomination of the Colonel, which was made by Bainbridge Colby, of New Jersey.

"UP AGAINST THE GUNS."

In his seconding speech Governor Johnson said: "There comes a time in every man's life when he goes up against the guns. You're up against the guns right now. Don't wait another minute. In seconding his nomination I will tell you that I don't know what Roosevelt will do, but I do know he never shirked a responsibility in his life."

"You have performed the act you came to do," declared James A. Garfield as the nomination was announced. "Now I move we sing one verse of 'America' and recess until 3 o'clock."

This action was taken in order to communicate with Colonel Roosevelt at Oyster Bay and also to get the consent of Governor Johnson to run for Vice President.

"Only those who are tried in the fire need come back here at 3 p. m.," said Robins in announcing the adjournment. "We are going to start the campaign that will put the second party in the nation in the first place, and it's going to be the finest and greatest political battle ever fought."

Chester Rowell, of California, said during recess that John M. Parker, of Louisiana, might secure the Bull Moose vice presidential nomination.

Facing a wide-open split in the party and a floor fight of sensational proportions, the Progressive convention came together today under the highest pressure that has yet marked its superheated sessions.

These chief developments were the prelude to the session: The conference committee of the Moose and Republicans failed to agree.

George W. Perkins demanded that the convention grant him more time to negotiate, threatening to drop the chairmanship if the convention acted at once.

At a session of leaders held before the convention in Perkins' room at the Blackstone Hotel, numerous charges had been made that the inner circle of Progressive party leaders was preparing to sidetrack the Progressives for a Republican deal.

Governor Hiram Johnson had announced that he would not take the Progressive nomination if Colonel Roosevelt declined it.

A second conference of the Moose and Republican peace committees had been held at 2:30 o'clock. George W. Perkins had asked H. C. Governor Johnson, of California, J. Bonaparte had declined to do so. It lasted but a few minutes and got no result. Perkins returned to his room to plead for more time.

PERKINS' THREAT TO QUIT. In a speech before the State chairman of the party it was asserted that if a nomination was rushed today Perkins would wash his hands of the organization.

All State delegations had been asked to be in place in the Auditorium room promptly at 10:30, ready for fast action.

Radical leaders prepared to force a fight for nomination and put on full war paint.

The Republican proposal had gone to Roosevelt, who had proposed Lodge as a compromise candidate.

These items were the sum of the situation up to the actual opening of the session.

Perkins, hoping to reach a deal with the Republicans, struggled to hold off all action by the Progressives against the most determined line-up of delegates that ever faced in open rebellion an accredited leader.

Most of the radicals charged that the life of the Progressive party was at stake. Thoroughly imbued with this idea, they came to make a last-ditch fight for the integrity of the party, and the choosing of its recognized leader as the nominee for President of the United States.

"WANT TEDDY NOW." "We want Teddy, and we want him NOW" was the cry that started the day in the convention when, for the first time since the convention opened, a line of policemen as skirmishers was stationed before the stage between the chairman and the delegates.

It was the identical precaution taken in the Republican convention in 1912, when it was feared that an attempt would be made by the Moose to storm the stage and take the gavel from Chairman Root.

Other policemen, who had before loitered good-naturedly in the background, closed in like infidels expecting a hunt. An inspector of police came to the floor in personal command.

George W. Perkins was recognized, but Chester Rowell was allowed to precede him with a statement.

"I have just come from a conference of your State chairman," said Rowell. "They request that you do nothing until they arrive."

"I ask you to ratify that agreement." "For how long?" asked the delegates in chorus.

"For 15 minutes; will you wait?" "We will," shouted the delegates.

They were set on fire a moment later when Chairman Robins made an announcement that meant the nomination of Roosevelt in fact time. It became apparent that he really wants to do so.

CALLAHAN AND HIS PIRATES HERE FOR FIRST SERIES

Today's Game Postponed on Account of Rain and Wet Grounds

INTEREST IN WAGNER

For the fourth consecutive day the Phillies were unable to play. The first game of the series between the National League champions and Pittsburgh was called off because of the condition of the field. Three straight games with the Cubs were postponed, much to the disgust of Manager Moran, who has had Alexander the Great primed to start on another winning streak. Had the weather not interfered, it is likely that a large crowd would have greeted the Pirates. The fact that the Corsairs have won eight out of the last 11 games played would be enough to attract a fair-sized throng, but the appearance of Jimmy Callahan and Honus Wagner was an added attraction.

Callahan was scheduled to make his local debut as a National League manager, and it also would have been Jimmy's first appearance at the Philadelphia Ball Park since he jumped to the American League at the start of the baseball war between Ban Johnson's organization and the National League.

Callahan has many friends in this city, and it was here that he started his major league career in 1914. Jimmy was a pitcher then and hurried until he had been with the White Sox for several seasons, when he was switched to third base and then left Field, because he was such a hard hitter and clever man on the base.

The fans appear to believe that Callahan was not given a fair chance with the White Sox and argue that he could easily have won a permanent job with the Cubs. They had him a high-salaried cat such as Rowland has at the present time. After a poor start Callahan has the Pirates going well, and aided by unusual pitching, he has been gaining steadily on the first division clubs.

As a team the Pirates do not size up favorably compared to other National League clubs, according to the belief of local fans, but they are winning now, and that is all that counts. It remains to be seen whether Callahan can keep the pitchers and team going at their present speed.

The Pirates are not so far behind the leaders that they cannot be very easily overtaken by July 4, if they can topple over the Easterners a few more times. Naturally there is a great deal of interest in the work of the grand old veteran Wagner, who has always been the most popular National League player with local fans. Today would have marked Wagner's twelfth season before local fans, if the weather had not butted in.

If the likes and dislikes of the fans were formed according to the damage done, Wagner would be the most unpopular man in this city, as seldom a series has been played in the 20 seasons in which Wagner's bat or his wonderful fielding have not upset the Phils. Through all this Wagner has been a quiet, unassuming player, but he has not lacked the ginger and aggressiveness which characterize the work of other stars.

Manager Callahan had Al Mamaux primed to face the champions, while Alexander the Great was to have pitched for the Phils. Both stars have been pitching wonderful ball and indications pointed to a great pitched battle. These two hurlers probably will stage their duel on Monday.

RICHMOND INDICTED ON TWO CHARGES OF MAIL FRAUD Suspended Rector Will Be Tried in United States Court

The Rev. George Chalmers Richmond, suspended rector of St. John's Church, 3rd and Brown streets, today was indicted by the Federal Grand Jury on the charge of using the mails to defraud. He will be tried in the Federal District Court within the next two weeks.

Mr. Richmond was indicted on two counts. First for an alleged attempt to extort money from the Pennsylvania Hospital, where Neumer is employed. The arrest of Mr. Richmond by Postal Inspector Smith several weeks ago was the result of a letter sent to the deposed rector to Neumer, in which he said he intended to preach a sermon entitled "A Remarkable Escape From Sing Sing, or How I Won a Place in Decent Society for a Notorious Criminal." The sermon was to be based on Neumer's alleged career. Mr. Richmond asked Neumer in the same letter "if he had any suggestions to make" and said that he had received from Neumer his usual Easter offering.

Both letters, it is alleged, were written for purposes of extorting money by the use of voided checks. Mr. Richmond is out on $500 bail pending trial.

SWISS MERCHANT MARINE BORN; FIRST SHIP LEAVES Allagush Sails From New York for Port Loaned by France

NEW YORK, June 10.—Switzerland has at last realized her ambition of being a nation with a merchant marine. Her hindrance by the existence of antiquated navigation laws or the prospect of labor troubles on the high seas has been able to charter a merchant ship to carry supplies from America to Switzerland.

From the port of New York yesterday sailed the steamer Allagush, flying the flag of the Republic of Switzerland. She is a freight vessel of 4000 gross tons and carries a cargo of grain and foodstuffs to Cetta, a port in the Gulf of Lyons, loaned by the French Government.

THE WEATHER

There doesn't seem to be much use in writing this corner of the page today. What with the Elephant and Bull Moose on a head-to-head campaign in Illinois, the probabilities are that words pertaining to so commonplace a thing as weather will be crowded into the "bell box" (my dog, madam, that is not a swear word, but a designation for a good standing)—will be trampled, we repeat, into the shadows, even as the favorite sons are dropping away into oblivion today.

In case you do not see this today, you'll understand.
