

NANCY WYNNE HAS A WORD TO SAY ABOUT SOCIETY'S DOINGS

A Second Debutante Affair Will Be Given Tonight for Miss Elizabeth Miller by Dr. and Mrs. Charles B. Penrose at Their Devon Home—Other Matters

ELIZABETH MILLER has certainly started out well, to say the very least, first a tea and dance given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Miller, the early part of the month, and now a dinner-dance to be given tonight by the Charles B. Penroses at their beautiful home in Devon. Sarah and Betty are great friends, you know; so it is natural that the Penroses should entertain for Betty, especially as the two mothers are great friends also. I hope the Penroses do not have the trouble which seems to have attacked members of society lately. At first I used to maintain it was only the men, and the younger men at that, who behaved rudely to their hosts; but from the wee bird's last whisperings it would appear that they are not the only ones. At a dinner-dance given just three weeks ago no less than 27 people called up during the afternoon, after all the places had been arranged and the tables finished, and said they were sorry, but they could not go. Several, indeed, did not even take the trouble to make excuses, only said they could not come. Just think of the position such conduct would place one's hostess in! All the place cards have to be changed around, and in this case two tables had to be taken from the room and an entire new arrangement made at the last moment.

It is a remarkable thing how the smoking habit has grown among women. Some, of course, will say it is not remarkable, but then they are those who have been tempted and have fallen under the spell of the weed. Only two years ago one stopped and looked in surprise when one saw a woman smoke in a public restaurant, and she was considered bold, to say the least. But now nothing fazes us. Out at the Philadelphia Cricket Club last Monday two smartly grown women sat on the porch of the clubhouse smoking gaily as they watched the tennis, while inside the house, seated flat on the floor after her strenuous efforts, having won the championship, Molla Bureted-I mean Bjurstedt, of course—smoked cigarette after cigarette, surrounded by an admiring group of youngsters. Can you beat it?

SILK SURF ROBES BEING MUCH WORN

Fair Bathers Also Have Tiny Purses in Bathing Caps

MISS LULU F. WRIGHT

ATLANTIC CITY, June 15.—With the slightest encouragement from Old Sol, the Boardwalk maid blossoms forth in her aqueous habiliments for a dip in Old Neptune's domain. The surf robes this year are marked by their lack of ornament. Simplicity is the rule. Especially attractive are the loose robes of black silk, built on the lines of the garden smock. A new device for carrying change in one's bathing attire was revealed by an attractive blonde when she drew from her bathing cap the price of a magazine to read on the strand. Her purse was carefully concealed in a pocket in the front of her cap, which was covered over by two coquettish loops of silk.

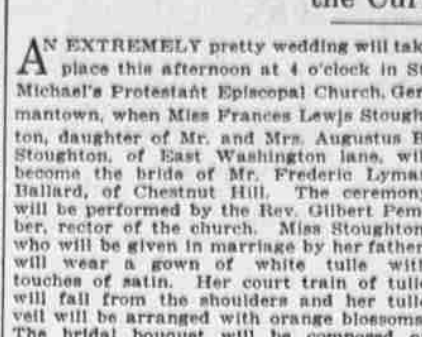

Cottagers who are members of the Daughters of the American Revolution are lending their aid to the large bridge party to be given by the Lafayette Chapter at the Chelsea next Tuesday afternoon, for the purpose of raising funds for a scholarship at the Berry School, Berry, Ga., founded for educating the poor white children of the mountain district of the South. Mrs. E. Gray Pendleton, Mrs. M. V. B. Soull and Mrs. A. W. Eddy will receive.

Mrs. Thomas L. Rogers has issued invitations for a luncheon and bridge at the Chelsea Yacht Club next Wednesday afternoon. Covers will be laid for 80 guests.

The afternoon dances at the Brighton Casino have opened under the direction of the Messrs. Jarvis, who have conducted the tea dances so successfully for the past two seasons. The Strand will begin its series of afternoon the dansants tomorrow.
