IDA RIEHL'S FATHER KNEW SHE WOULD KILL LOVER, WITNESS SAYS

John Murphy, of 2935 Orkney Street, Quotes Him as Expressing Gratification at Accomplishment

JUDGE REBUKES CROWD

A starting bit of testimony tending to establish that Ida Riehl's father knew she carried a revolver the night she shot Edward Hauptfuehrer, who had failed to keep his alleged promise to marry her, and had even approved of the murder, was developed during the first hour of the trial before Judge Rogers in Quarter Sessions Court.

The new angle is based upon one sentence alone, quoted by John Murphy, 2935 Orkney Street, as a statement, made by the father of Ida Riehl, who caught the girl after she had shot Hauptfuehrer and run a short distance.

As he was bringing her back to the scene of the shooting, Murphy testified, Ida Riehl's father, John Riehl, ran up, put his arm around his daughter's shoulder and said: "You did it all right, kid."

Murphy, who has cockney English accent, spoke so low that the words did not carry far, but the jury heard John Riehl's words, and so did John R. K. Scott, the girl's counsel.

Scott made an effort to discredit Murphy's story by tripping him up on an estimate he made of the size of John Riehl's voice, heard after the shooting. Murphy had his own ideas about testifying. He was called down by Judge Rogers, and cautioned to take his time. Nothing else was developed to substantiate the line Murphy quoted, but the testimony surprised those who heard it.

As witness after witness, boys in the neighborhood on Lehigh Street, of 2948 North Lehigh Street, who called Hauptfuehrer to meet the girl, reported their tales of hearing the shots and finding the body, Ida Riehl, who sat all day without moving, her head bowed, turned pale, it seemed she was about to faint. Her face was paler this morning than it has been at any time.

Mr. Scott had Fertig and John Rodriguez, who was sitting beside Hauptfuehrer when Fertig called him to meet Ida Riehl, repeat Hauptfuehrer's disgusted outburst: "I wonder what she wants," when he was summoned to meet the girl.

Only one jurymen was needed when court opened today, but with 29 men in a jury panel available, Judge Joseph P. Rogers named Juror No. 3, Harry Wagner, Sr., of 1212 North 9th Street, a salesman.

The swearing in of the jury at one body was back while court officers made strenuous efforts against the crowd. Judge Rogers ordered a 15-minute recess so he could attend the installation of John H. Brown, former public service committee member, as Judge of Common Pleas Court No. 1.

Albert Kuhner, 42 years old, of 1738 North 9th Street, was chosen to take the place of No. 3. Kuhner, a printer, has two daughters, ranging in age from 2 to 17 years.

Minutes later the 12th seat was filled by the selection of John Kubit, 29 years old, of 212 North 9th Street, a salesman.

The swearing in of the jury at one body was back while court officers made strenuous efforts against the crowd. Judge Rogers, to clear the courtroom of the curious but stubborn crowd of spectators.

"This trial is not going to be a spectacle, a circus," remarked Judge Rogers, "and the courtroom must be cleared of all persons except witnesses and attorneys." The hustlers became active and showed out a crowd that was standing along the walls.

When it came to clearing the seats the job became more difficult. The court officers finally made some headway with the crowd of men and youths, but the women and girls refused to budge, and with a few exceptions, remained in their seats despite the efforts of the officers.

The court was crowded with the curious half-hour before it officially opened today. At intervals during the examination of witnesses to fill the 11th and 12th seats in the jury box, court officials drove out persons who were standing in and ranged themselves along the rear and sides of the courtroom. Fully a hundred persons waited in the corridor outside.

Ida Riehl's claim to the shelter of the witness room adjoining the court as long as possible. When Judge Rogers appeared at the bench she came out of the room, gave her baby to her aunt, Mrs. Richard Wagner. Then she took a seat beside her counsel, Congressman John R. K. Scott.

A significant indication of the State's attitude has developed in the questioning of witnesses by Assistant District Attorney John Maurer. Not once has he asked the usual question in drawing juries for murder trials in the attitude of the taesmen on capital punishment.

Mr. Maurer showed no desire to oppose anything for the jury married men with 18-year-old daughters. The aids their sympathy naturally inclines to, in the evidence does not bend it for the prosecution, concludes Ida Riehl's best chance of acquittal.

The State's lack of enthusiasm about a first-degree verdict or any crushing conviction has been evident from the time the court allowed Ida Riehl to go into the care of the wealthy woman who furnished $2000 bail. The precedent was all against allowing her bail in a murder case for any consideration.

LONG, LINGERING YELL OF "SNAKES!" ROUSES COPS AT STATION HOUSE

Lieutenant's Clerk Goes for Cigar and Is Greeted by Repetitive Found by Policeman at 15th and Market Streets—Officials Await Owner

Thomas Maguire, clerk to Lieutenant Myers, of the 15th and Vine streets police station, aroused the rest of the cops about 5 o'clock this morning by one long, lingering yell of "Snakes!"

The cry was followed by appropriate panic-stricken retreat and gestures. When Maguire's colleagues demanded to know what was the matter with him, the lieutenant's clerk cautiously offered as guide to one of the rooms in which a cigar box had been. In whatever room it was, he had seen this cigar box and had opened it only to observe the head of a rattlesnake rising.

That made the other cops wise to what had happened, and they too became somewhat panic-stricken, for last night Policeman Duddy had brought in the rattlesnake from 15th and Market streets, where it had been frightening hundreds of people. Duddy had covered the snake into the cigar box and had brought it to the station house. When Maguire saw the box this morning he thought he would help himself to a cigar. That is why he screamed. The contrast was too much for him.

After Maguire left the room—in so much of a hurry—the snake got out of the box and took up a position on the floor. For half an hour the cops labored to persuade the snake to get back into the box again. Finally they were successful.

The snake is a Mexican rattler, but somebody has got out of its rattle. The police are holding it for an owner, who, however, will have to answer a number of questions before he will be given possession of it. One interrogation will be: "How did that snake get out on the sidewalk at 15th and Market streets?"

OLD GRADUATES DRILL AT MILITARY COLLEGE

Alumni Day Marked by Activities of Men Who Mobilize Guard

This is Military and Alumni Day at the Pennsylvania Military College. Scores of old "grads," many of whom are active in the mobilization of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Delaware, are drilling, armed with broomsticks, on the Chester campus.

It is a preparation day. Brigadier General Carroll A. Devoil, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. A., who was graduated from the college way back in '78 and who, since his graduation, has carried out some pretty big jobs—among them the transportation of the American army to the Philippines, in the Spanish-American War, and the distribution of supplies in San Francisco following the fire—will arrive from Washington at 12:16. General Devoil will review the cadet corps and confer medals upon the cadets who have proved themselves crack cavalrymen and riflemen during the year.

It was feared, because of the Mexican situation, that General Devoil might not be present, but no such word has been received from him to date at the college. Neither has General Hugh L. Scott, Chief of Staff of the army, upon whose shoulders falls the real burden of the present military activities, changed his plans to attend the commencement exercises tomorrow, when he will receive the honorary degree of doctor of military science and himself review the cadets.

Upon General Devoil's arrival today he will be saluted by a battery of three-inch guns; will be entertained at luncheon by Mrs. Milo C. Curt, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Curt, vice president of the college; and then escorted to the parade grounds, where infantry, cavalry and artillery maneuvers will be held.

It is the day when the members of the graduating class follow the 54-year-old tradition of burying their college books and records on the campus. An immense tombstone, carved "1916," was dragged into place for the ceremony this morning. The alumni clash with the cadet corps at baseball and in rifle and revolver contests. Some of them are trying their skill at rough riding.

Colonel Charles E. Hyatt, commandant of the college, holds his graduation reception tonight. This will be followed by a "show." Seventeen cadets, seven of the Philadelphians, will be graduated tomorrow. John Wanamaker, president of the board of trustees of the college, will deliver an address at the graduation exercises.

Captain William B. Mills, who saw service in the Philippines, and Captain Nicholas Kennedy have made applications for commissions in the National Guard.

RED CROSS HOSPITALS READY FOR MEXICO JOB

Metropolitan Institutions, Too, Have Organized Units to Contribute

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Plans for the early purchase of large quantities of supplies to equip base hospitals in the event of general hostilities in Mexico have been completed by the Military Relief Division of the American Red Cross, and Major General Arthur Murray, U. S. A., retired, will commence the purchases in a few days.

In the meantime, Colonel Jefferson R. Keen, in charge of the Military Relief Division, is now in communication with the leading hospitals of the country where base hospital organizations have been formed in anticipation of a crisis.

Red Cross officials declare they are better prepared than ever before to meet a call to the field. Under the direction of former President Taft the work recently was divided into civilian and military relief divisions, thus giving the latter free rein to make specific preparation. Under the direction of Colonel Keen more than a dozen of the larger hospitals organized base hospital staffs, numbering 225 persons, including 25 physicians, 30 nurses and 150 other attendants. These are four of these organizations in New York, one in Baltimore, three in Boston and one each in Detroit and Cleveland.

The New York hospitals—Bellevue, New York, Presbyterian and Mount Sinai—are backed by a fund of $85,000, raised to establish their base hospital units. Each hospital requires a fund of $25,000 for equipment.

It is expected that the Red Cross will be called upon the minute actual hostilities start. Like the National Guard, it does not volunteer, but awaits being called out. It serves as an addition to the Medical Corps of the regular army and National Guard in the same way the National Guard serves to augment the regulars.

CAVE-IN DAMAGES SCHOOL
 Other Buildings Suffer in Mine Accident at Scranton

SCRANTON, Pa., June 20.—Public School No. 16, located in West Scranton, was seriously damaged by a mine cave today. Fortunately the school sessions ended for the summer vacation last Friday, hence no one was in the building when the accident occurred. Many houses in the neighborhood were also damaged.

Bursting water mains and the cave conditions generally have tied up traffic between the central part of the city and the west side.

SUE TO OUST COUNCIL OF GILBERTON BOROUGH
 Taxpayers' Association Don't Want Public Debt Increased

POTTSVILLE, Pa., June 20.—A writ of quo warranto to oust from office the members of the Council of the borough of Gilberton was issued by the court today at the instance of the Taxpayers' Association of that borough.

The averments are made that the Council has exceeded the legal limit of expenditure, and that the Council has increased the municipal debt. Notwithstanding that it is $13,000, it is intended at a special election next month to submit to the electors the proposition to add to the debt a loan of $40,000 for public improvements. This the Taxpayers' Association resists by this suit.

The members of the Council are Thomas M. O'Connor, Patrick Farrell, Thomas Rouse, James Murphy, John Bubble and John Weener.

VARE MAN IN TAX OFFICE

Harry W. Keely Named as James F. Morrison's Successor

Harry W. Keely, of the Fifteenth Ward, was today appointed Chief clerk in the office of Receiver of Taxes to fill the vacancy caused by the death of James F. Morrison, who held the $3000 place for many years.

Keely, for a number of years has held the position of assistant Chief Clerk at a salary of $1600 and was not so time a member of the Legislature from the 10th district. He was a Penrose-McNichol follower up until a short time ago, when he ran as a Vore candidate for the Republican City Committee, but was defeated by Magistrate John P. Collins, the McNichol leader of the ward.

Receiver of Taxes Kendrick, in appointing Keely as Chief Clerk, named Herman Reborn, 2732 North Twelfth Street to the position he vacates. Reborn is prominent in Masonic circles and is First Lieutenant of patrol of Lu La Temple. In announcing the changes, the Receiver declared the appointments to be personal ones.
