

ILLUSTRATED Evening Ledger

THURSDAY
June 22, 1916

GRAPHIC NOTES AND COMMENT ON THE VARIED NEWS OF THE DAY AS RECORDED BY THE CAMERA

Copyright, International Film Service.

NOT ALL MEXICANS HATE UNCLE SAM'S KHAKI-CLAD TROOPERS
Here is a rather attractive scene taken at the entrance to the International Bridge across the Rio Grande at El Paso, Texas, after General Bell had doubled the guard on that structure. A dainty Mexican senorita is helping the soldiers to while away the long, hot hours.

PEELING POTATOES FILLS IN THE ODD HOURS OF WAITING AT THE ARMORIES

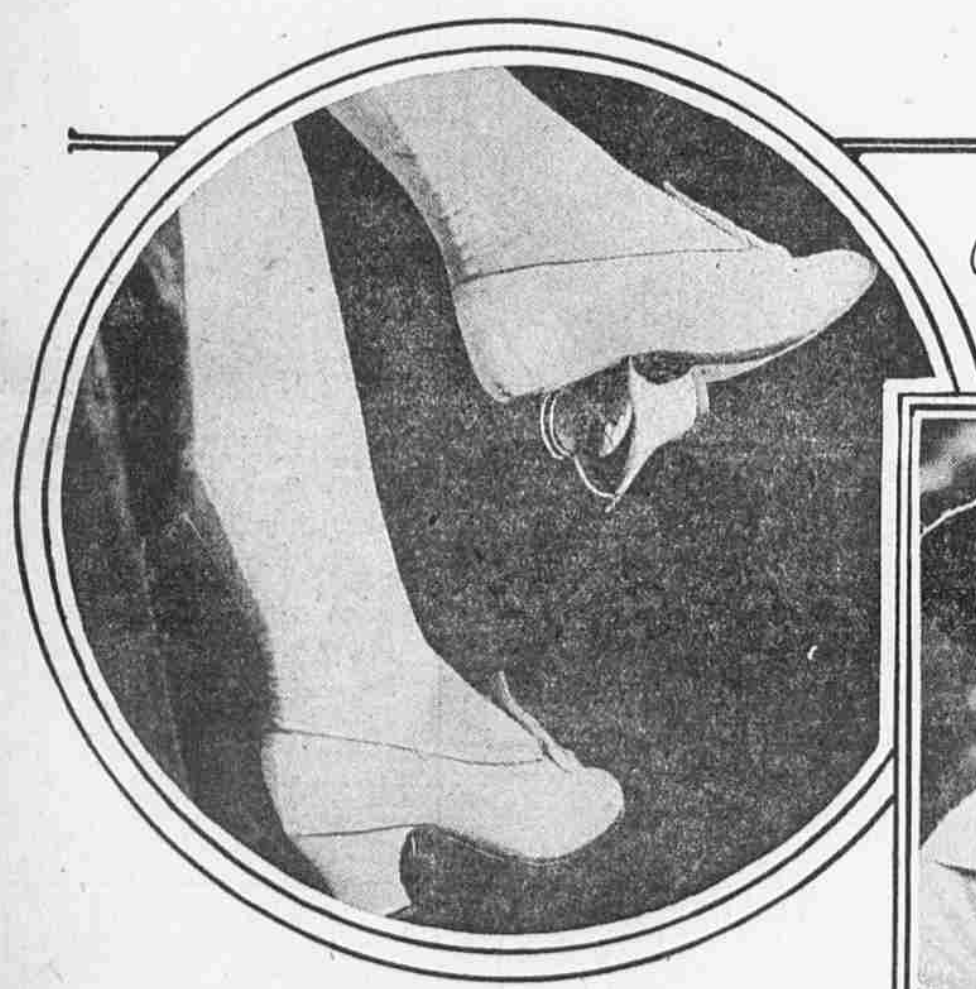

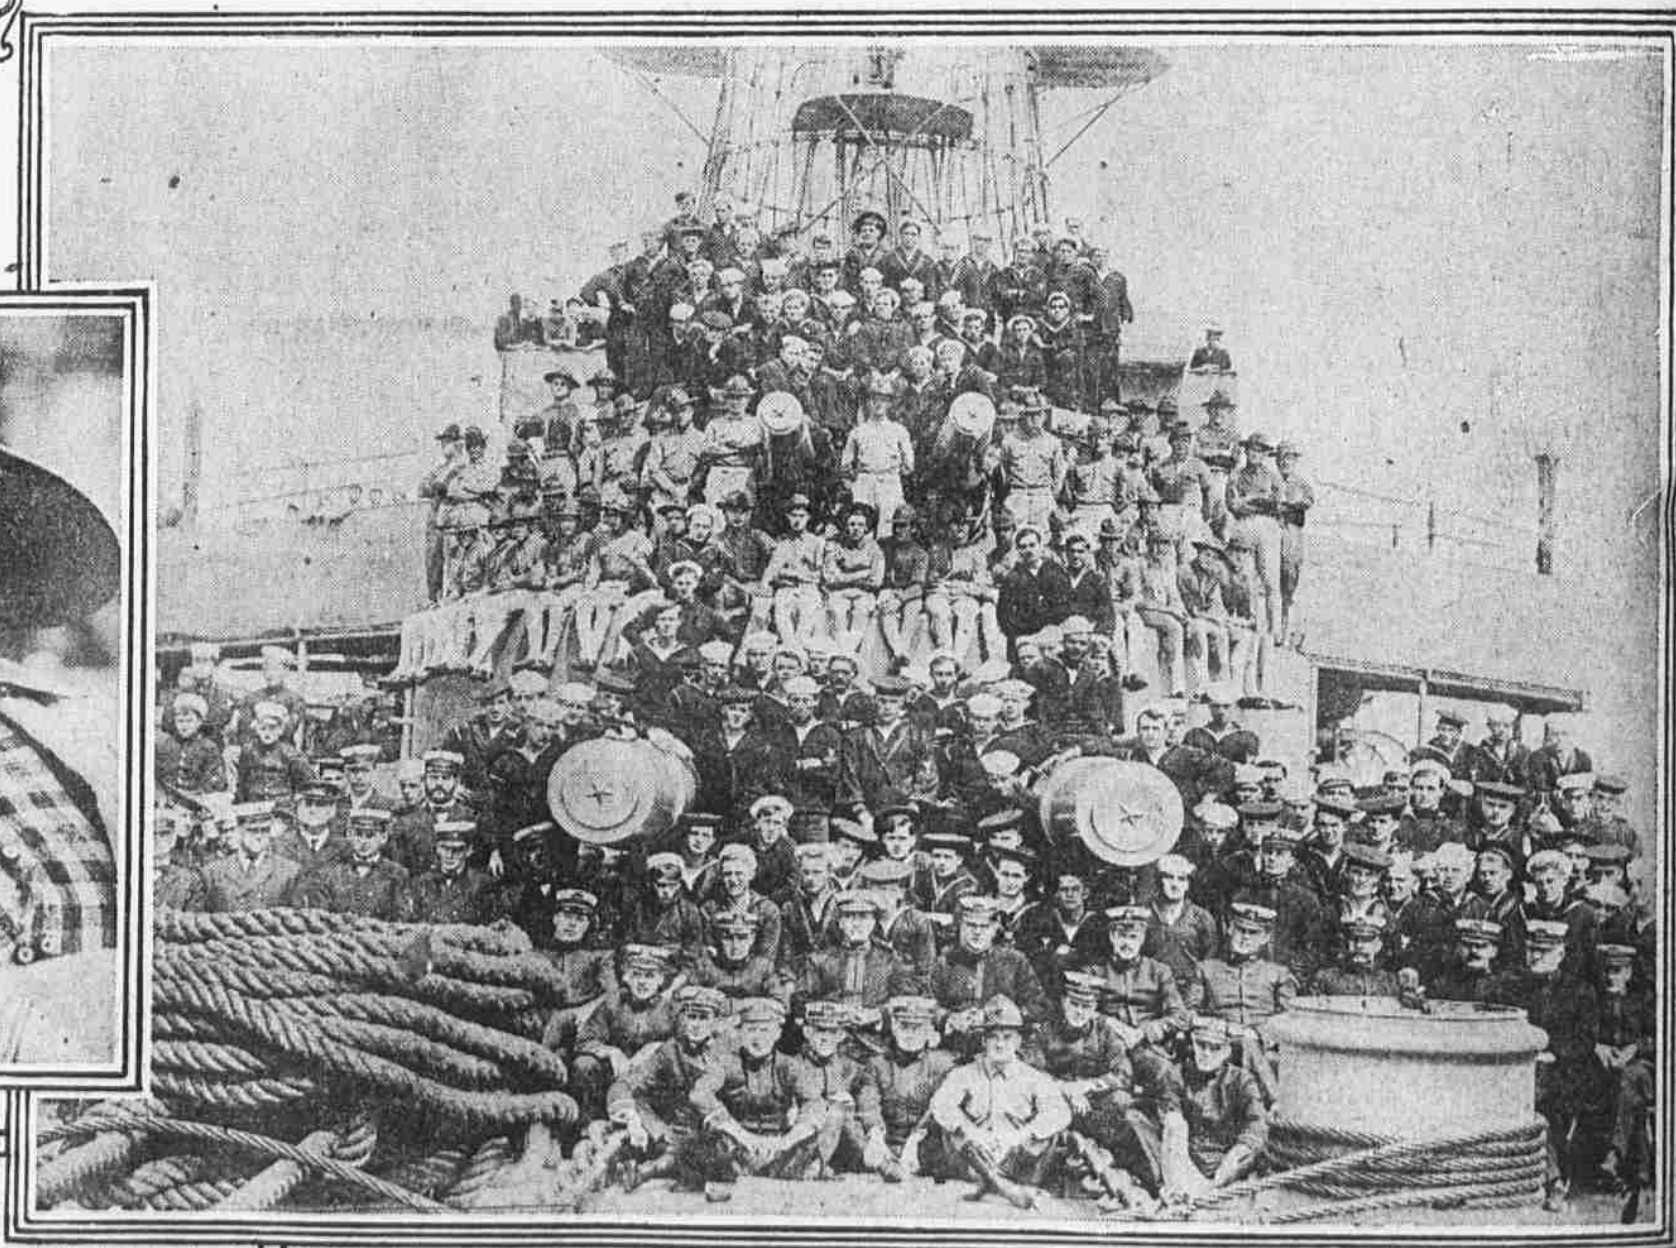

Photo by Underwood & Underwood, and Mutual Weekly.

THE HEIGHT AND DEPTH OF FASHION'S FOLLY
The latest fads to which women have succumbed consists of a nose ring, worn a la wilds of Africa, and carrying the much-used powder puff in the heel of milady's shoe. The nose ring is worn in the same manner as an earring as shown at the right.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

CREW OF U. S. S. KENTUCKY NOW IN MEXICAN WATERS
This is only one of a number of first-class fighting vessels which the Navy Department has ready to pour hot shell into the shore cities of Carranza's domain in the event that war is declared. Commander D. E. Dismukes is seated in the centre of the group in the foreground, with hands clasped, and next to him is Executive Officer Keyes.

Copyright, International Film Service.

BIG GUNS OF FIELD ARTILLERY RUSHED TO MEXICO
Battery E, 5th United States Field Artillery, is seen inspecting one of its 4.7-inch guns on the other side of the Rio Grande. Eleven companies of coast artillery and 600 men of the First Battalion of Engineers have been sent to augment the force.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

WOUNDED AMERICAN AVIATOR
William Thaw was shot in the arm recently in an air battle over Verdun. The photograph shows him after his release from the hospital.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

CARRANZISTAS PASSING THROUGH SAN ANTONIO
The censor at the border has passed this photograph showing the First Chief's soldiers being escorted to the United States camp site by officers of the 6th Infantry. They came from Chihuahua as guard on a railroad train.