NANCY WYNNE TELLS OF BATTLE OF FLOWERS HELD TODAY

While Country Anticipates Real Fighting, a Flower Battle Was Held on the Country Club Grounds for Art Alliance Building

One of the prettiest pageants for many a day was given this afternoon at the Philadelphia Country Club, in Bala, the Philadelphia Country Club, in Bala, was been days as the guest of Miss van Dusen. when the various dramatic, artistic musical and literary clubs of the city vied in making the fete given for the Art Aliance Building the most brilliant and colorful ever held in this city. At I o'clock promptly the pageant started. and the battle of flowers took place between some of our most brilliant polo players, who, disguised as knishts of old. rode forth on their trusty steeds and, buttle axes in hand, flung roses, violets and all kinds of flowers at each other in place of the swords and spears used "When Knighthood Was in Flower."

Then there was a long procession of decorated automobiles, and the students of the Academy of the Fine Arts. wearing smocks of every conceivable color, danced the famous Academy Fling. The booths were a mass of exquisite color, and the aides' costumes unique and beautiful.

The Dickens Fellowship aides were dressed to represent characters from the Dickens novels. The Browning Society had an Italian booth, the Emerson booth had everything American for sale, while the Women Writers' Club conducted a news stand.

One of the prettlest booths was that gotten up by the Wednesday Music Club, which was the very smallest association in the whole combination. These women, under the leadership of Mrs. David Lewis, had gotten together a most attractive French booth. Their colors were French blue and white. The aides were dressed in blue-and-white striped costumes, and their hats were high-crowned panamas, trimmed with blue bands. White slippers and blue stockings were worn with these attractive frocks.

.The Matinee Musical Club was presided over by Mrs. George W. Edmonds. There were musical instruments and toys for sale at this booth.

Among those who showed cars, for which a prize was given, were Mrs. Joseph Leidy, Mrs. Robert Logan, Mrs. Charles Leedom, Mrs. Roland L. Taylor, S. P. Wetherill, Mrs. Jasper Y. Brinton, the Three Arts Club, Browning Society, Geographical Society, Mrs. Austin B. Heckscher, Mrs. James F. Sullivan, Miss Eleanor Chandler, Theodore N. Ely, Mrs. C. Hartman Kuhn and others, including three machines by the Dickens Fellowship.

The Pepper-Myers wedding was just lovely yesterday afternoon, the weather could not have been more ideal, and the bride and her attendants were as pretty as pictures. George seemed very much at home when the wedding march was played. You see it was not the first time he had gone through the ordeal of walking in public to the strains of the wedding march, for two days before the wedding they had class day exercises for the Penn graduates, you know; and when George was called forward to receive his little token of brotherly affection from his classmates the orchestra played the wedding march with most unholy glee. If George's face was red when he marched up away from the other end of the seats it was redder still when they gave him & large doughnut, which the class prophet declared was the wedding ring, which, they said, differed from the one he had nurchased, as the knot on the doughnut was already tied (the doughnut was tied with a large red ribbon bow). Poor George was fearfully fussed, and the little bride to be, who was seated in the audience, was a bit disgruntled herself, though she enjoyed the joke hugely. and, to tell the truth, so did he, I'm NANCY WYNNE. thinking.
