Pershing Shifts Forces to Guard Against Slaughter of Men in Mexico—Washington Masses Fighting Strength for Vigorous Campaign

Only Release of Prisoners and Disavowal of Massacre by Carranza Can Avert War, Belief at Capital. Border Hears Juarez Will Be Bombarded and Taken by Americans

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 24.—Lieutenant Benjamin Hoge, of the 10th Cavalry, today wired his father that he was safe. The message read: "Captain and lieutenant killed. I am safe." The message did not mention the names of the slain officers.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 24.—General Pershing reported today that one packer and eight enlisted men of Troop C and seven enlisted men of Troop K, 10th Cavalry, were picked up this morning northwest of Santa Maria.

They were found by Troop M, of the 10th, under Lieutenant Henry Meyer. They brought back 25 horses. All of them were included in the group detailed to care for the horses at the Carrizal fight and their stories were substantially the same as those of other stragglers. These were unanimous in asserting that the Mexicans ambushed the American force.

Eighty-four men are still unaccounted for in General Pershing's official reports. All were members of Troops C and K. More than a score are understood to be prisoners at Chihuahua City, leaving about 60 men still listed as missing.

According to information given General Pershing by civilian scouts, 12 American troopers and 2 officers were killed outright by the Mexicans.

Carranza troops have made three separate attacks on General Pershing's base of communication in Mexico within the last few days. While they have been repulsed, the American commander is redistributing his men to prevent the slaughter of weaker detachments.

One soldier, wounded in the attacks, has been taken back to the border. It appears certain that the American casualties in the Carrizal battle were heavy, although the rescue of 16 more members of Troops C and K of the 10th Cavalry was reported today.

The soldiers were the horse-holders in the battle. They were picked up by members of Troop M, also of the 10th.

With the eight stragglers who have reached Pershing's Camp and the 24 prisoners in Chihuahua City, the survivors number 48, leaving approximately 60 still unaccounted for.

The feeling in Washington is that the Carrizal massacre leaves President Wilson no grounds upon which to give Carranza another chance.

Political Worker Arrested

Charged with false registration, perjury and illegal voting, Alex M. Thompson, a clerk in the City Treasurer's office and Republican division leader, was arrested today by the Committee of Seventy and held under $500 bail for a further hearing on Monday before Magistrate Imber. The Committee of Seventy charges that Thompson does not live in the 4th division of the 9th Ward, from which he is registered, but actually lives in another division of the same ward. Thompson has been a division leader for several years.

CHEERED BY THROGS

THE GIRL LEFT BEHIND ME. The hour was sad, I left the maid, A busy day farewell taking, Her sighs and tears my steps delayed, I thought her heart was breaking; In hurried words her name I bleat, I breathed the vows that bind me, And to my heart in anguish pressed The girl I left behind me.

Then to the South we bore away, To win a name in story, And there, where dawned the sun of day, There dawned our sun of glory; Both blazed in noon on Richmond's height, I shared the glory of that fight, Sweet girl I left behind me.

The hope of final victory Within my bosom burning Is mingling with sweet thoughts of thee And of my fond returning; But should I ne'er return again, Still south thy love thou'lt find me, Dishonor's breath shall never stain The name I'll leave behind me.

Full many a name our banners bore Of former deeds of daring, But they were of the days of yore, In which we had no sharing; But now, our laurels freshly won, With the old ones shall entwined be, Still worthy of our staves each son, Sweet girl I left behind me.

"Forward, march!" Grimly but alertly, with rifles tilted across their right shoulders, more than 900 khaki-clad men and officers of the 2d Infantry, N. G. P., swung in quick time out of the armory doors, on Broad street below Squaquehanna avenue, this morning. Wheeling northward into Broad street in column of platoons, the marching soldiers proceeded to the Philadelphia and Reading Railway yards at Broad and Huntingdon streets. A special train of 30 passenger coaches was waiting on a siding. Company by company the troopers passed into the cars. Their equipment was stowed away, their guns stacked. Line and staff officers boarded the cars reserved for them. A few minutes of waiting, and then the start for Mt. Gretna in response to the Government's call for defenders was on.

WOMEN WEEP; MEN AFFECTED. The departure of the 2d Regiment, while devoid of ceremony, was imposing. An enormous crowd, which began to gather at daybreak, stood about the armory doors and extended on both sides of Broad street to the railway yards. Women were weeping and men were scarcely less visibly affected. The old guard of the regiment, retired members, some who engaged in Civil War service, and all with a record of at least five years in the ranks of the National Guard, marched at the head of the line as escort to the campbound regiment. Colonel Turner and his staff followed. The newly recruited guardsmen were noticeable, not because of any awkwardness of manner, but by their lack of complete uniform. Here and there a straw hat or other non-military bit of clothing distinguished the "rookie."

The band played "Auld Lang Syne" as the column straightened out into Broad street. Hats were doffed by male spectators as the regimental colors passed by. The start for camp was made in three sections, the first leaving Huntingdon street shortly after 8:30 o'clock. One hour later the 1st Regiment, with as

CHIHUAHUA CITY, Mex., June 24.—"Mexico is a civilized country and will wage war in a civilized manner." General Jacinto B. Trevino, Carranza commander at Chihuahua City, made this assertion today in denying reports spread broadcast in the United States that American prisoners taken in the battle at Carrizal had been hanged. "The prisoners have not been hanged, nor will they be," he said. "That is not the custom of a civilized country."

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN WASHINGTON, June 24.—The war spirit ran high in the nation's capital today. News of the ambushing and virtual massacre of Troops C and K, of the 10th United States Cavalry, has aroused officialdom to a pitch unknown since the battleship Maine was destroyed in Havana harbor. On all sides a demand for speedy reprisals was voiced, and the Administration has set moving the machinery that may bring a complete break with Mexico by the middle of next week.

The first action was to demand through Consul General Rodgers at Mexico City the release forthwith of the American troopers taken prisoners in the fighting at Carrizal, the exact number of whom is not officially known.

The second was to decide that any offer of mediation that may be made on behalf of the Latin-American nations must be rejected by the United States. The questions at issue now are questions of national honor, affecting the lives of Americans, the invasion of American territory and outrage upon American property. None of these are matters that can be submitted to mediation in the opinion of President Wilson and his advisers.

MOMENTOUS CONFERENCE

These decisions were reached at a conference that lasted more than an hour, participated in by President Wilson, Secretary of State Lansing and Secretary of War Baker. At the same time a general plan to be followed was considered, but was not adopted pending the receipt of additional reports from General Pershing and officers who actually participated in the Carrizal massacre. It has been definitely determined to hold General Carranza responsible for the attack upon the Americans at Carrizal. He will be called sharply to account as soon as the complete report of what transpired at that place is at hand, and will be ordered to punish all responsible officials immediately.

No satisfaction is expected at the hands of the First Chief and his associates, and the program for the further course of action is being worked out in the several departments. But that the State Department is holding back on certain portions of its program developed when it was learned that Secretary Lansing had been inquiring anxiously when the National Guard would be ready for service. The answer came at noon today, when Secretary of War Baker, following a conference with General Mills, chief of the militia division, sent word to

Poor Richard President Welcomes Ad Delegates

"Philadelphia is ready for the convention. The Poor Richard Club and the people of this city bid you welcome. The doors of the University of Pennsylvania and the Commercial Museum are wide open. These, we believe, are the best accommodations you have ever had for your general and departmental session. We have provided well for your comfort and entertainment. We want to make this a memorable business vacation for you. Some worth-while diversion is planned for you each day after school. You needn't go to bed until you're real tired and sleepy. RICHARD H. DURBIN, 'President Poor Richard Club.'"

The vanguard of an army of more than 10,000 admen began arriving today for the 12th annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, which convenes in this city tomorrow. Already the city is beginning to feel the stimulus of these bright, resourceful men, who have come here from all parts of the world to blaze new trails in advertising and business. Their optimism is brightening hotel lobbies and their energy is injecting new life into Philadelphia.

The fame of Philadelphia as the world's workshop, a city of honesty and high ideals and a city of wonderful attainment, will be spread to the corners of the earth following the convention. The great assemblage also promises to bring home to thousands of indifferent merchants and manufacturers throughout the land the value of advertising as an effective selling force.

The convention will hold forth for five days and every minute of the total of 120 hours will be brimful of action which will forever blast the unjust label that Philadelphia is like the proverbial mule for slowness. The convention will serve as a mighty dynamo of brain energy which will send

MT. GRETTA CAMP RINGS WITH CALL 'TO THE BORDER!'

Prospect of Moving to Rio Grande Within Week Stirs Troops

4000 GUARDSMEN ARRIVE

By a Staff Correspondent HEADQUARTERS CAMP BRUMBAUGH, MT. GRETTA, Pa., June 24.—"To the border!"

Like lightning strokes today came orders that are interpreted as constituting virtual confirmation of rumors that the Pennsylvania division of the National Guard will be hurried to the Mexican border within a week's time, while the regiments poured into the encampment and pitched their yellow tents.

Typhoid prophylaxis, enough for the first injection, arrived at the Mt. Gretna station, and probably late this afternoon the work of inoculating the rapidly growing army of guardsmen will be undertaken by the medical officers. Only the first of the three injections is to be administered here, it is understood on good authority, leaving the other two injections to be given "after the troops leave." The interval between injections is 10 days.

Newspaper correspondents today were instructed at division headquarters to order regulation khaki field uniforms.

A denial of an insistent rumor that the Guard already had been ordered to the border was issued today by Captain Kemper, United States mustering officer.

"It is news to me," he said. He was busy with the mustering blanks, which arrived today from Washington.

4000 AT CAMP. About 4000 Guardsmen have already arrived here, with the number growing. A freight wreck tied up several of the troop trains for hours, but the routes north and south now are open and the trains bearing the units are coming in with regularity.

The 1st Brigade, of Philadelphia, the first infantry contingent to arrive this morning, sent three companies to unload the brigade stores, which were shipped to Colebrook. The 2d Brigade is complete, with General Logan in command. The regiments comprising this brigade are the 15th, Colonel Rickards; the 19th, Colonel Coulter, and the 18th, Colonel Kearns. Scattered units of the 4th Brigade also are detraining at Mount Gretna.

Rumors of a hurried removal to the border added to the bustle of the camp.
