NEW YORK, July 1.-Would the glory of the United States be enhanced by a wa of conquest in Mexico? President Wilson solemnly put this ques-tion to members of the New York Press Club in the course of an address before that organization and its guests at the Waldorf last night. Then he paused for a reply. The result was a chorus of "Noes." It was a question to which the President plainly desired an answer from the Amer-ican people. Beset by conflicting interests ican people. Beset by conflicting interests

-militarists, owners of property interests in Mexico, pacifists and those having political interests—he asked for aid in reaching 'I don't own the American Government you know," he said at one point.

Then he told of the many letters that he has received from property owners in Mexico who have asked for intervention. But the great majority of the letters have come, he said, from earnest men and women whose names would never be known.

whose names would never be known.

The tenor of the President's speech was peaceful. No lasting thing had ever been created by war, he asserted it is the moral force alone that builds up. This country is not for war, in his opinion, he told his hearers, and this he knows from the letters and the statements that come to him. So, because he holds himself the servant of the people, and not the master, nor the Government of the United States, he cares not for his personal fortunes, but is willing "to play for the verdict of mankind."

"Personally," said the President, "it is of no consequence to me what the wardler.

of no consequence to me what the verdict is on November 7, providing I am confident that when a later jury sits I shall get their verdict in my favor."

At the outset the President told the newspaper men that in their presence he was tempted to throw off his guard and reveal himself as the fallible human being that he says he is. It was in this spirit that he spoke throughout, and the diners received his speech in the spirit of comradeship and cheered him again and again.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

The President's speech in full follows: realize that I have done a very im prudent thing; I have come to address this thoughtful company of men without any preparation whatever. If I could have written as witty a speech as Mr. Pulitzer, would have written it. If I could have writ-ten as clear an enunciation of the funda-mental ideas of American patriotism as the Mayor, I should have attempted it. If I could have been as appealing a person and of as feeling a heart as Mr.—Cobb, I would of as reeling a heart as all have been as gen-have felt safe. If I could have been as gen-erous and interesting and genuine as Mr. Colby, I should have felt that I could let myself go without any preparation.

"But, gentlemen, as a matter of fact, I have been absorbed by the responsibilities which have been so frequently referred to

"There is momething very oddly contradictory about the effect you men have on me. You are sometimes, particularly in your photographic enterprises, very brutal to me, and you sometimes invade my privacy, even to the extent of formulating my judgments before they are formed, and yet am tempted when I stand face to face with you to take off all guard and merely expose myself to you as the fallible human being that I am.

"Mr. Colby gald something that "Mr. Colby said something that was among the few things I had forecast to say myself. He said that there are some things which it is really useless to debate, because they so as a mater of course. Of course, it is our duty to prepare this nation to take care of its honor and its institution." tions. Why debate any part of that, except the detail, except the plan itself, which is always debatable? Of course, it is the duty of the Government, which it will never over-look, to defend the territory and people of this country. It goes without saying that it is the duty of the Administration to have constantly in mind with the utmost sensitiveness every point of national honor. , EASY TO STRIKE.

"But, gentlemen, after you have said and accepted these obvious things, your program of action is still to be formed. When will you act, and how will you act? The easiest thing is to strike. The brutal thing is the impulsive thing. No man has to think before he takes aggressive action, but before a man really conserves the honor, by real-ising the ideals, of the nation he has to think exactly what he will do and how he

"Do you think the glory of America would be enhanced by a war of conquest in Mex-leo? Do you think that any set of violence by a powerful nation like this against weak and distracted neighbor would reflect distinction upon the annals of the United States? Do you think that it is our dury to carry self-defense to a point of dictation into the affairs of another people?

"The ideals of America are written plain upon every page of American history. And I want you to know how fully I realize whose servant I am. I do not own the Government of the United States even for the time being. I have no right in the use of It to express my own passions. I have no right to express my own ambitions for the development of America if those ambitions are not coincident with the ambitions of the nation itself. .

"And I have constantly to remind my self that I am not the servant of those who wish to enhance the value of their Mexican investments, that I am the servant of the rank and file of the people of the United

"I get a great many letters, my fellow-citizens, from important and influential men in this country, but I get a great many other letters. I get letters from unknown men, from humble women, from people whose names have never been heard and never will be recorded, and there is but one prayer in all these letters: 'Mr. President, do not allow anybody to persuade you that the people of this country want war with

"I got off a train yesterday and as I was bidding good-by to the engineer he said in an undertone, 'Mr. President, keep out of Mexico.' And if one man has said that to me, a thousand have said it to me as I have moved about the country. If I have opportunity to engage them further in conversation, they say, 'Of course, we know that you cannot govern the circumstances of the case altogether, and it may be necessary, but for God's sake do not do it unless it is necessary."

"Lam for the time being the spokesman of such people, gentlemen. I have not read history without observing that the greatest forces in the world and the only permanent forces are the moral forces. We have the evidence of a very competent witness, name ly, the first Napoleon, who said as he looked back upon the last days of his life upon so much as he knew of human history, he had to record the judgment that force had never accomplished anything that was permanent.

"Force will not accomplish anything that is permanent, I venture to say, in the great struggle which is going on on the other side of the sea. The permanent things will be accomplished afterward when the opinion of mankind is brought to bear upon the issues, and the only thing that will hold the world steady is this same slient, in-sistent, all-powerful opinion of mankind. Force can sometimes hold things steady until opinion has time to form, but no force that was ever exerted except in response to that opinion was ever a conquering and predominant force.

"I think the sentence in American his tory I myself am proudest of is that in the introductory sentences of the Declara-tion of Independence, where the writers say that a due respect for the opinion of mankind demands that they state the reasons for what they are about to do. I venture to say that a decent respec of the opinions of mankind demanded that those who started the present European war should have stated their reasons, but they did not pay any heed to the opinion of mankind, and the reckoning will come when the settlement comes.

"So, gentlemen, I am willing, no matter what my personal fortunes may be, to play for the verdict of mankind. Personally, it will be a matter of indifference to me what will be a matter of indifference to me what the verdict on the 7th of November is, pro-vided I feel any degree of confidence that when a later jury sits I shall get their judgment in my favor. Not in my favor personally—what difference does that make?—but in my favor as an honest and ientious spokesman of a great nation

"There are some gentlemen who are under the delusion that the power of a nation comes from the top. It does not. It comes from the bottom. Power and virtue of the tree does not come from the blossoms and the fruit, but it comes from the roots in the obscure passage of the earth, where the power is derived which displays itself in the blossoms and the fruit; and I know that among the silent, speechless masses of the American people is slowly coming up the great sap of moral purpose and love of justice and reverence for humanity which constitutes the only virtue and distinction of the American people.

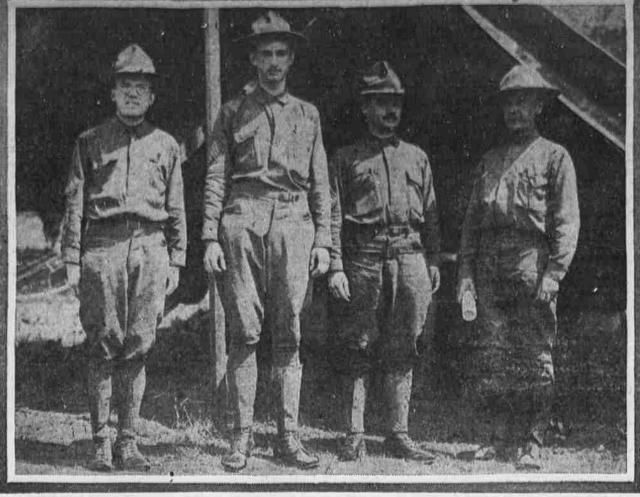

"Look for your rulers of the future. Car you pick out the families that are to produce them? Can you pick out the localities that are going to produce them? You have heard what has been said about Abraham Lincoln. It is singular how touching every reference to Abraham Lincoln is. It always makes you feel that you wish you had been near to help him in some fashion to fight the battles that he was fighting, sometimes almost alone. Could you have predicted, if you had seen Abraham Lincoln's birth and perhead where that great ruling figure of owhood, where that great ruling figure of the world was going to spring from?

"I have presided over a university, but I never deceived myself by supposing that the ruling forces of the world. A knew that all a university processes you were producing the ruling forces of the world. A knew that all a university could do if it knew its business was to interpret the moral forces of the world, and let the young man who sat under its influence know the very truth of truths about where it came from the truth about where it came from the truth about where it came from the truth as man could produce it unless he and that no man could produce it unless he felt in his blood every corpuscle spring into delighted life at the mention of ideas which have lifted men slowly, oh so alowly, up the arduous grades which have resisted prog-ress since the world began.

The big rush of Philadelphians to the seashore for several days' vacation extend-ing over the Fourth of July began in earn est this morning. At the Market street ferries the word "terrible" was applied to the preliminary crush of outgoing persons, and the number of persons leaving there for points on the coast was estimated approxi-mately at between 100,000 and 150,000 before noon.

No especial preparations are being made to take care of the crowds, but every time an extra train is needed it will be made up.

an extra train is needed it will be made up. Officials of the Pennsylvania Raliroad said this morning that they "will have trains galors." No matter how big the crowd, or how great the crush, the Pennsylvania Raliroad officials believe they will be able to give everybody accommodations, for "it takes only an hour to make up a train."

The greatest number of persons are expected to make their exit from Philadelphia with seashore resorts as their destination. Thousands are also expected to go to Valley Forge, where a unique Independence Day calebration will be held. How great the exit from Philadelphia will be railroad officials said was dependent on the weather.

MACHINISTS-STRIKE FOR EIGHT-HOUR DAY; 7000 QUIT, THEY SAY

Eighty-five Per Cent. of All in City May Join-Munitions Plants Affected

CLAIMS OF MEN DENIED

More than 7000 machinists who demande an eight-hour day struck in various shops throughout the city today, according to Thomas I. Wilson, business agent of District No. 1, of the International Association of Machinists.

The chief grievance of the workmen that in many shops they have to work 14 hours a day, which they say is hardship. Wilson said 78 per cent, of the men in every shop of the city were organized and he expected all to join the walkout. He sent a letter to the manufacturers on June 15. in which he set forth the demands of the men and pointed out that the present long day was entirely too great a burden. The manufacturers individually, it is said refused to treat with the men.

According to Wilson, the following plants ere affected by the strike: Eddystone plant of the Remington Arms Company, William Cramp Shipbuilding and Engine Company, Southwark Foundry Company, 5th street and Washington avenue Espan & Lucas, Front street and Girard aveune; John Baizley & Sons, Delaware avenue and South street; A. F. & A. H. Lipplncott Company, 24th and Locus streets; Standard Roller Bearing Company, 52d and Lecust streets.

Wilson says that these places were either making war munitions or tools for the manufacture of munitions.

In reply to the advertisement of yesterday in which the manufacturers said it would be too great a burden on them to have an eight-hour day after the war, Wil-

"When normal conditions are renewed. the men would be willing to make an ad justment to meet such conditions." At the plants of the Remington Company, the Southwark Foundry Company, the American Engineering Company and Cramp's it was stated that the men did not go on strike and that the shops had simply closed over the Fourth of July holiday. At the Espen and Lucas plant it was said that no strike had been begun or was contemplated. It was also said there was no reason to think the men wanted to strike, although the Espen and Lucas people were among the signers of yesterday's published statement refusing an eighthour day.

At the John Baisley Iron Works, 514 South Delaware avenue, it was said: "That matter's all right." "Well did they strike?" the question was epeated.
"Oh everything's all right, all passed

"Oh everything's all right, all passed over," came the answer.
"How many walked out?"
"Never mind; their places have been filled and everything's all right."
The A F, & A. H. Lippincott plant, at 24th and Locust streets, has only a few machinists working for them, and they said everything would be adjusted amicably. No trouble has developed, they said.
At the Standard Roller Bearing Company, 50th street and Lancaster avenue, only the telephone operator was working. She said telephone operator was working. She said all other departments were closed over the Fourth, and that there could be no devel-

EMBLEM OF RED CROSS BARRED AS TRADEMARK BY GOVERNMENT ORDER

Persons Who Use it on Goods Charles A. Dana's Will Be Prosecuted Under Act of Congress of 1905

MANY HAVE ABUSED IT NEW PLANS ANNO

A sweeping order that manufacturers, merchants and others throughout the country must cease using the Red Cross emblem as a trademark on medical goods, patent medicines and other merchandles has been sent out from the headquarters of the American Red Cross in Washington. Persons who fail to comply with the order will be prosecuted under an act of Congress of 1905, which provides a penalty for violations of a fine of $100, or from one to five years imprisonment.

one to five years imprisonment.

Announcement of the sending of the oroer was made today by Richard E. Wilson executive secretary of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter of the American Red Cross, with headquarters at 1419 Walnut street. Manufacturers in Philadelphia and other large cities in the country have al-ready been notified of the intention of the Department of Justice to enforce the provisions of the act of Congress of 1905.

HASN'T BEEN ENFORCED. 'Although this law was passed in 1905, said Mr. Wilson, "It was never enforced because Red Cross matters were not considered particularly important until the out break of the European war.

"Heretofore' anybody could display the Red Crons sign at will. Manufacturers have used it as a trade mark, and even physicians have used the emblem on their automobiles. The idea in enforcing the act of Congress of 1905 is to place the American Red Cross on a substantial working basis. Only persons being accredited members of the American Red Cross will be allowed to wear Red

GAIN MANY NEW MEMBERS.

The campaign of the Southern Chapter of the American Red Cross to raise 50,000 members is progressing favorably, according to Mr. Wilson. He said he was con fident that the number of new member would exceed the desired 50,000 before the close of the campaign on July 20. More than 5000 volunteer workers are canvassing the city for members. Membership blanks to the number of 75,000 are circulating through factories, department stores and other business places.

A Red Cross tent was erected this morning in City Hall court yard. From this tent Miss Jessie Little and a corps of workers are distributing membership blanks and Red Cross literature. "Our campaign," said Mr. Wilson," is simply part of a nation-wide movement for simply part of a nation-wide movement for the raising of 1,000,000 members for the American Red Cross. The membership fee is $1 a year. Half of that goes to the headquarters of the American Red Cross at Washington and the other half remains with the Southeastern Branch of Pennsyl vania. Our idea is to have members in the American Red Cross from Maine to California." Dr. Richard H. Harte is chairman of the
