LEDGER SCENARIO CONTEST OPENS

Prize and Conditions - New Films Showing Today

By the Photoplay Editor The EVENING LEDGER Scenario Contest is on. It will close in three weeks. The final date is July 22. The award will be announced in the Amusement Section of August 5. The author of the winning scenario will receive a cash prize of $100 in addition to the production of his script. Following a voting competition among EVENING LEDGER readers for positions in the cast, the scenario will be filmed in the latter part of August under the direction of a film company of national reputation. The finished photoplay will be shown at local theatres early in September.

The scenarios submitted in the competi-tion will be passed on by the following judges: Max Karger, director general of the Metro; Stanley V. Mastbaum, president Stanley Booking Company, and the Photo-play Editor of the Evening Ledges.

The scenarios submitted must be of two-The scenarios submitted must be of tworeel length; that is, they must contain a story which, when filmed, will take about 30 minutes to show. By seeing any tworeel production at a photoplay theatre you can get an idea of about the number of scenes and amount of material necessary.
Your scenario need not be typed if your handwriting is clear and legible, but it must be written on only one side of the paper.

The most interesting conditions of the contest concern the localities to be shown and the people represented. The winning scenario must deal primarily with Philadelphia places and people. It must include scenes asing the exterior or interior of six of the following places: A ball park, the Ledger office, the City Hall, the Postoffice, Rittenhouse Square, Ledger Central, an elevated or subway station, Independence Equare, a railroad station, the Navy Yard, Girard avenue bridge, Fairmount Park.

This condition is not so difficult as it may

Girard avenue bridge, Fairmount Park.

This condition is not so difficult as it may seem. Almost any of the above-named spots may serve as a meeting place for your characters, though it will improve the worth of your script if you can make the nature of the spots shown essential to the story. The greater the number of Philadelphia localities that you can introduce in addition to those named, the greater will be the value of your script in the eyes of the judges. Provided, first and foremost, that it has a filmable and interesting story. judges. Provided, first and foremost, that it has a filmable and interesting story. Interiors and exteriors of other places than those named may, of course, be freely introduced. You may treat your story from a comedy, dramatic or melodramatic angle.

In regard to characters to be employed, the Evening Ledger makes no direct respections, except that the majority must be Philadelphians. The Judges will look with most favor, however, on scenarios which introduce such characteristic figures of the city's life as the shop girl, the school box, the factory worker, the motorschool boy, the factory worker, the motor-man or conductor, the clerk, the policeman, the baseball player, the school girl, the stenographer, the fireman.

The prize-winning script will be produced in Philadelphia at the places utilized by the author, and with an all-Philadelphia cast selected by the votes of the Evening Ludger readers. It will be directed, supervised, photographed and assembled by the Metro Pictures Corporation, of New York, a company whose nation-wide reputation guarantees the most artistic of productions. In addition to actual production the Eversing Leboam will give the author of the prize-winning scenario a cash prize of

The 12 next best scenarios submitted will be awarded honorable mention and referred to film companies likely to look favorably on them. Any other scenarios of distinct merit will be returned to the authors with words of commendation and suggestion look-ing to the improvement of the script and their submission to a producing company. This will be, by the way, the first step in a new service department of the Amusement Section, dealing with scenario writing and aiming te give local scenario writers the benefit of criticism and to guide them to the right producers. The rights to all unsuc-cessful scripts will remain with their au-till Wednesday, when many of the showings would end, the Photoplay Editor will alter his policy of review a bit this week by giving in today's issue some intimation of the nature of new films which may help readers to observe a safe and sane Fourth. The Stanley opens the first half of the week with a member of Ziegfeid's Foilies, Anna Pennington, advanced to photoplay stardom in a Famous Players-Paramount film, "Susie Snowfiske," "Wid" Gunning, who conducts about the only film weekly bent strictly on review and nothing but review, says of the feature, "Very clever star, fine atmosphere and types make this." He finds the story elementary but efficient. Of the new star he says: "The being Miss Pennington's first appearance in the films, there was naturally considerable interest in her work. I am sure that able interest in her work. I am sure that there will be an enthusiastic response to her personality over the country, because she has given us an exceptional performance and one which will surely rank her as one of the very big possibilities for screen work." The Dramatic Mirror says that the producers 'made a decidedly lucky hit."

Altogether, things look cheerful for patrons of the Stanley.

"Wid" Gunning is even more enthusiastic about the new Ince-Triangle film which comes to the Arcadia today to stay the week. He likes its mystery story and its general air of novelty. He has a lot of good things to say for Mr. Keenan, and he even admitted that Enid Markey "gets away" with the feminine lead.

The Dramatic Mirror says of "The Phanters"

"The director has taken an exceptionally clever and well-constructed story, told it clearly and concisely in pictures while re-taining but not overplaying the details. In the picturization there is one dominant character. "Phantom" Farrell, and it is around him that a strong story, not a series of incidents or robberles, is woven. Frank Keenan plays this role, and a finer interpretation of the part would hardly be probable. As the valet and assistant, Crabbe Robert McKim is most effective. End

Of the new Morosco-Paramount film. "The Making of Maddalena," which will receive its first showing in Philadelphia at the Palace today, the Moving Picture World

Markey would be more pleasing if she did not overplay her part.

In "The Making of Maddalena," the splen-did characterization of Edna Goodrich, is did characterization of Edna Goodrich, is the making of a picture that has much to commend it. She is the centre of interest throughout. It is a pathetic role, that of Maddalena, an Italian girl, a painter's model, who falls in love with a would-be artist who comes to Rome to study. Miss Goodrich's portrayal of Maddalena, the timid, sweet-faced stop-daughter of a sot, is marked by unusual charm and sympa-thy, and also judgment." thy, and also judgment.'

The Garrick will display tonight a new set of war films, "How England Pre-pared," which were taken by Charles Urban, with the co-operation of the Brit-ish Government, and which have lately been shown in New York. They depict in a score of ways the preparations which England made when war began. The manu-facture of a soldier from the recruiting office to the trenches will be shown. The war itself is deliberately ignored, so far as "actual photographs" (usually faked) of fighting goes. There is promised, how-ever, a genuine picture of the blowing up of a German blockhouse and some views of the North Sea fleets very close to action.

Today and temorrow the Victoria revives "Not My Sister," a Triangle film, with Norma Talmadge playing the lead. It has already been seen at the Arcadia. An added feature will be a new two-reel film. starring Fay Tincher, "The Two O'clock

BROTHERHOOD AMERICA

Annual Session of Grand Circle Will Revise Laws Governing Fraternity

The 51st annual session of the Grand Circle of Pennsylvania will convene in Wilkes-Barre, August 8 to 10, with Grand Chief Washington N. W. Chester presiding. The session will be one of the most important held for many years, because of the fact that the by-laws of the Grand Circle as well as the constitution for the government of the subordinate circles will both come up for revision.

The committee on credentials will meet on Monday evening. August 7, to examine the credentials for the E. W. and I. M. degrees and thus expedite the work of the season. The attendance from Philadelphia and vicinity of representatives and others is expected to be large and efforts are being made to provide a special train for the Philadelphia delegation. Those desiring to travel with this special train party should communicate with C. A. Leng. grand scroll keeper.

MUTUAL PROTECTION

Enthusiastic Union Meetings of Local Assembles Stimulate Summer Work Among Members

The importance of capable leaders in the direction of their business affairs is a feature long recognized by the members of the Artisans' Order of Mutual Protection, and, resulting as it has in the selection to supreme offices of the best obtainable men in the organization, is perhaps one of the sali-ent reasons for the exceptional success of this growing fraternity.

this growing fraternity.

This year has been no exception to this general rule, and in the recent election to the office of most excellent inspector, the initial office in the progress through the chairs, of Brother Jacob R. Jordan, the brotherhood has made no mistake.

brotherhood has made no mistake.

Initiated into the order January 20, 1803. Hrother Jordan has been a consistent, active member low working for the advancement of his own assembly and cordaily supporting all movements for the general advancement of the fraternity. A former resident of this city, he is now a prominent citizen of Prospect Park. Delaware County. He has served as Mayor of the berough, is a public speaker of more than ordinary shifty whose services are much in demand, and is a local minister active in the religious work of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is chairman of the Historical Society of the Bricklayers Company of Philadelphia, an organization founded in 1796.

Hrother Jordan served as master artisan of Prospect Park Assembly during 1910, and March 1 of this year was elected by the supreme body of the order to the office of most excellent inspector.

The most esthusiastic meeting ever held in

Interest in the Artisans' baseball league seems to grow as the season advances. Many interesting games are being played between the nines of the several assembles and the growing attendance of members indicates the interest in the sport. Saturday afternoon next agame will be played between Lehigh and St. John's assemblies, and the following Saturday between Isaac C. Underdown and St. John's assemblies. Both games will be played on the grounds of the P. & R. Y. M. C. A. at Tabor.

Progressive Assembly, No. 4, which meets on the first Tuesday of each month in the Park-way Building, Broad and Cherry streets, by reason of the holiday tomorrow has nostponded its stated July meeting until Tuesday, July 11. This meeting will be of more than ordinary importance by reason of the fact that nominations will then he made for a new recorder for this the largest assembly in the order. Joseph B. Wiswell, for 18 years recorder of the assembly, presented his resignation at the large to the election of a successor to this important office. Nominations will be made at the meeting of July 11 and it is probable that a keen rivalry will be developed for the office.
