"MULE MUCH MISUNDERSTOOD," ZEKE TRINKLE SAYS; ONE LICKS A LOCOMOTIVE AT RAILROAD CROSSING

Pennsylvania's Pugnacious Product Shows Choo-choo Monster What Is What When It Comes to Right of Way—Hint for Preparedness Advocates in Record Kick. Might Be Good for Building Demolition Also

A mule that licked a locomotive is one of Pennsylvania's pugnacious products.

This aggressive animal belongs to Jim Drumm, of Sunbury.

It was never in the limelight much.

It simply ate and slept and worked and minded its own business.

It knew nothing of the world and its subterfuges.

It was content with the simple name "General," and if strategy and conservatism count for anything the mule was worthy of the title.

It took General a long time to get mad, but when he did—wow.

He was toting Jim Drumm and Mrs. Jim Drumm across the railroad tracks when what should come along but a train. The locomotive hissed and growled defiantly and cast a bad eye at General as he was navigating the railroad crossing.

A quick glance told the mule that he couldn't get over the track intact. He could feel the breath of the loco on his back. He raised his hind legs, while his passengers sat petrified.

General's legs struck the cow catcher. It crumbled like tissue paper, the locomotive buckled and jumped the tracks. The mule gave it a withering glance of contempt and trotted on.

The efficiency of General has prompted the thought among army men that mules could be used to help the boys in khaki in attacking Mexican forts should conflict succeed the present chess game.

Half a dozen mules with the efficiency and punch of the animal from Sunbury could reduce an average Mexican fort to dust with a few vicious kicks and cause a general rout of the enemy. One real American mule could also raise ructions in the ranks and leave lots of work for the hospital corps of our opponents.

Getting down to practical work at home, a gang of good strong mules could do great work for wrecking companies which make a specialty of tearing down big buildings. A bunch of mules with the temperament of General could also be used for shattering rocks in the line of building operations and save time and money, for they never ask for wages. Give each a bale of hay a week and he is satisfied.

Right here in Philadelphia a mule like General would be an invaluable service in the shopping district. He could lick any automobile twice his size, and a little company of mules divided into pairs would be able to keep the streets clear by keeping the shoppers and promenaders at bay at the crowded corners. Should any persons object, well—they would soon have plenty of room in the hospital. Zeke Trinkle says "the mule as a individual is misunderstood."

STATE ENDEAVORERS IN HARRISBURG FOR THEIR CONVENTION

Sessions of Delegates Begin Tomorrow Afternoon and Will Continue Until Friday Night

NOTED SPEAKERS ON LIST

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 10.—Christian Endeavor Societies, 2500 strong in the State, are planning to send one, five and ten delegates each to represent their interests at the State Christian Endeavor Convention to be held in this city beginning Tuesday afternoon and continuing until Friday night. The registration thus far is near the 2500 mark, with 1800 registrations from this city and vicinity and about 700 from various points throughout the State.

The wind-up of the preparatory work has become so voluminous that the General Convention Committee and many representatives of the local societies have been busy day and night. The Registration Committee, with Prof. John F. Kob, as chairman, has a large amount of work, but the delegates coming from all points in the State and many from other States will be well taken care of, as Harrisburg is one of the leading convention cities in the State and the workers know how to handle big crowds.

The conferences, which will be held each morning during the convention, and the more popular meetings each afternoon and evening, will be of a high order. The best speakers obtainable have been engaged for these appointments.

The music of the convention will be a special feature. Homer A. Rodeheaver will lead the general singing, using his book entitled "Songs for Service." There will be a large convention choir of about 200 voices. Special numbers will be sung by the Harrisburg Christian Endeavor Choral Union, under the direction of Professor Frank A. McCarrell.

"Christian Endeavor Efficency," "Temperance," "Missions," "Decision for God" and "More Devoted Effords for the Work of the Kingdom of Righteousness, as Well as All Lines of Work Among the Children of the Church and Community" are some of the themes that will be discussed.

A special train from Philadelphia will arrive at 11:30 Tuesday morning, bringing about 400 delegates. A special train from Gettysburg will arrive at 9 a. m., Wednesday, bringing about 400 Christian Endeavorers. Pittsburgh will send a large delegation. Many are expected from Wilkes-Barre, Luzerne County. Allentown and Lehigh will have large representations.

ASK NEW TERMINAL RATES FOR NEW YORK

Civic Associations Want Schedules for Freight Handling in District 'Equitably Revised'

WASHINGTON, July 10.—A complete revision of terminal rates at New York city and various Jersey City points was asked for in a petition filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by various civic associations of New York and New Jersey. The New York rates are held to be discriminatory in view of the terminal charges at Jersey City, Newark Hoboken, Trenton and Elizabeth.

In charging New York costs, which provide for compensation for extra terminal service performed on New Jersey traffic when this cost is not incurred, the cost is saved to the carrier and the existing rates are held to be unreasonable. The fact is recognized by the practice of roads, the petition sets forth, in providing in their tariffs a separate charge for the floatage, lighterage and extra terminal service on the New York and Brooklyn tariffs.

The petition alleges that the river transfer should be treated as a separate and distinct charge, and if not, it is unreasonable. The New York Central, having the only continuous lines into New York, forced other roads to meet traffic charges. These charges are reflected in the New Jersey rates, which were also declared to be unreasonable.

The reciprocal switching service is asked to be established. The petition was filed by a Committee on Ways and Means to prosecute alleged railway rates and service discrimination at New York, the Board of Commerce and Navigation of New Jersey and the cities of Newark, Jersey City, Hoboken and Elizabeth.
