

NANCY WYNNE TALKS GAILY OF DOINGS AT THE VARIOUS RESORTS

Narragansett Pier, Newport, and Other New England Places in Full Swing of Activity—Jersey Coast Towns Are Centres of Summer Gaiety

IT LOOKS as if this season at Narragansett Pier and Newport would be and is already a pretty gay one. Of course, now that most of the troops have passed through Philadelphia and gone down to the border, and no war has as yet developed, our splendid women who have worked so hard and earnestly for their division of National Preparedness, feel that they can go to their homes in New England and other places for the summer months and enjoy the good times provided, if things remain as they are.

At Narragansett, so writes me, dancing holds full sway and there are weekly fox trots and one-step contests at the Casino on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights of every week, and, my dears, these are to continue until September, so fond are the people there of dancing.

On the 27th of this month there is to be a "Ball of Chapeaux" and on August 18 there will be a Hawaiian ball, and from the whippersnappers of the costumes planned for this little episode in a summer's passing, believe me, it will be some little dance. I wonder what Dorothy Norris has planned for that occasion? Certainly her costumes have been hitherto the most admired of any of the fancy dress affairs, for she has shown such wonderful taste in the selection and combination of colors in the various costumes she has designed for herself. I remember at "The Gambol of the Gods," given last season for some charity affair, Dorothy appeared in a sort of Eastern dance. She had exquisite tulles and a peacock feather in her hair and the combination of gold, red, orange, rich blue, soft yellow and rose in her costume was one of the most successful conglomerations of color I have ever seen.

How little one realizes when safely under a tent and apparently far away from the madding crowd, the voice carries farther than is usual. Had this not been the case, I would not have been able to tell you of this little incident, which seems to me a rather and little incident, as it shows the want of thought of the entertainers of today and the entertained. There had been a party over the Fourth and two of the girls and several men were discussing it. The thing had been given by an older man and evidently there was much of the "flowing bowl that cheers" for the delectation of the guests, for said one of the prettiest and most popular maidens at this resort, "Well, I've been on many Fourth of July parties in this small town, but, believe me, this was the worst I ever knew; why I went home and attempted to write to —, but I am sure he never could have read it. I never felt so queer in all my life, it actually took me hours to recover." To which artless remark, one of the callow youths replied, "I never saw anything to beat it, why I only had two tries at that — and I knew nothing at all afterwards."

Haven't we come to rather a serious stage in our development when girls of tender age and mere boys are entertained by a man many years their senior with such strong refreshment that they get to be, in a way, politely intoxicated, and then boast of it afterward? Where are the girls of yesterday?

Hop—hop—hopping on one leg will never win the race—to win, one must run on two strong, swift legs

Twins—one working when the other isn't—two legs exactly alike, sharing the load and giving the right balance to the human mechanism—these are necessary for man's efficient and speedy locomotion.

Twins—six pairs—now drive the Packard car.

We have divided the six large Packard cylinders into twelve smaller ones—thereby giving the motive mechanism better balance—greater power—and a nimble smoothness that is the result of minimized vibration.

The two blocks of small cylinders impart greater power—and respond with greater alacrity—than did the larger and heavier single block of cylinders.

Now—it's twelve against six—two for one—six plus six.

The new type motor has smoothed out the vibrations, transferring them into applied power.

It's the greatest Packard success—time tested by six thousand delighted users.

You'll want a Packard now—more than ever before. Prices, $2750—$3150 and upward—f.o.b. Detroit. Packard Motor Car Company of Philadelphia, 319 North Broad Street. Branches at Harrisburg, Bethlehem, Trenton, Williamsport, Wilmington, Lancaster.
