

BOARDWALK SWARMS WITH LODGE VISITORS TO CITIES NEAR SHORE

Shriners, Elks and Others Arrange to Come East Via Nation's Famous Resort

SCALES PLEASE WOMEN

ATLANTIC CITY, July 17.—The first of the eight big Sundays was even bigger than expected. Saturday night's arrivals were more numerous than owners of hotels looked for, and the assurance that on Sunday were 20 per cent bigger than on the corresponding day a year ago.

ELKS GIVE PARADE The city has been alive with visitors from the Shriners' and Elks' conventions, held last week in large cities many miles from here. Visitors from the Elks' convention are the temptation of spending a few days in the most-noted seaside resort in the country, so this place was included in the itinerary.

Farm wagon rides are getting to be thefad, no longer being merely a curiosity, inasmuch as the price of that commodity has made the use of hay or ruga compulsory. Young people love to use these primitive conveyances, springless and not very comfortable even on good roads.

MIRROW HELPS SCALE The owner of one scale has attracted the bulk of the trade from women who have been installing a mirror on the top of his weighing machine, placed at such a height that any woman may get a glimpse of her hat while she is finishing out her shopping.

Polyanna is the fitting name selected by a fashionable set of Philadelphia for the contributors to the fund for the Seaside Home. The gladness this will bring into the lives of many poor children will not be any greater than the gladness of the contributors to the fund.

Word also comes from Washington that $25,000 has been marked in the next appropriation bill to be used for the dredging of the inlet here. It is firmly believed by many of the residents that this city will eventually become a port of entry, and that in a few years a ship canal will be cut from here to the Delaware River, giving ocean liners a direct route to Philadelphia by a much shorter route than by way of the Delaware Bay.

ELECTRIC LIGHTING AT NOMINAL PRICE FORECAST BY SCIENCE

Paris Inventor Announces Discovery Making Possible a Rate of 15 Cents for What Now Costs $1

GLOWWORM A TYPE

For every dollar the citizens of Philadelphia have been paying in the past for electric light, they may only have to pay 15 cents in the near future. If the discovery of how to produce cold light as announced from Paris by M. Dussaud is a fact, M. Dussaud says he has discovered what has long been sought by inventors and scientists in every civilized country, namely the secret of how the lightning bug and the glowworm produces their perfect light.

The heat incandescent electric lamp of today can only turn 15 per cent of the electric energy it receives into light, the other 85 per cent is turned into heat and waste. An expert in Edison's establishment speaking of M. Dussaud's discovery says that if all the energy of the electric current can be converted into light one small dynamo would light a whole city.

Dr. Horace Clark Richards, of the University of Pennsylvania, said he had seen several announcements of M. Dussaud's discovery, and while he could not say whether or not it was true, yet it was quite possible. In commenting on the statement of the Edison expert, Doctor Richards said it all depended on the size of the city to be lighted and on the size of the dynamo.

The mercury tubes invented by Hewitt and the Welch incandescent mantle, Doctor Richards says, come nearest to the quality of cold light, but in both of these a great deal of energy goes into heat.

Where the Philadelphia Electric Company has recently installed a 30,000 kilowatt and a 35,000-kilowatt generator to light the city, if M. Dussaud's discovery is a fact, they are to return at midnight tonight. This is the first Chinese excursion ever held in Philadelphia.

CANADIAN MISSIONARY AND WIFE MURDERED

Preacher and Wife Stabbed to Death in Japanese Settlement

TOKIO, July 17.—The Rev. W. A. F. Campbell and his wife, Canadian missionaries, were stabbed to death by a burglar early yesterday morning in their summer cottage at Karutawa, an American missionary summer centre 87 miles northwest of Tokio.

At 2:30 o'clock, according to the police, a Japanese dressed in foreign garb entered the cottage and demanded money. This was refused. The burglar plunged a short-sword into Mr. Campbell's breast, mortally wounding him. Mrs. Campbell struggled repeatedly, succumbing to her wounds a few moments later.

The Rev. W. A. F. Campbell and Mrs. Campbell were sent to the Far East by the Methodist Church in Canada. They had been engaged in evangelistic work in Japan since September, 1915.

"CAMDEN COUNTY NO PLACE FOR ME," LINGO SAYS; WILL GO WEST

Pardoned Negro Convict Asserts Old Haunts Offer No Attractions to Him—Still in Cell

FEARS "WHITE FOLKS"

TRENTON, July 17.—"Camden County is no place for me," said Francis Lingo, the Matamoras negro, sentenced to 20 years for attempted abduction and forgery, once convicted of murder and indicted for rape and high misdemeanor, and now about to be freed from prison by grace of the Court of Pardons. In an interview with an Evening Ledger correspondent today, his term expired in 1915, but he was held pending the payment of a $3000 fine which the Court of Pardons remitted last Thursday, despite the protests from residents of Camden County, who feared the negro would return to his old habitat near Merchantville. He was convicted in 1897, accused of having lured Miss Katherine Yassar Berry, a Philadelphia teacher, to a lonely spot near Pennsauken, where he had her grave dug. With the aid of the teacher, a trap for the negro had been arranged and was sprung before the girl was harmed.

Lingo said that Camden County offered no attractions for him. "I am going to Harrisburg where a friend will give me a job on a farm near there," he declared. He refused to discuss the abduction case except to say that he had been "framed" and that he was innocent. He gained considerable time off his term because he was a native of Camden County, but the fine hanging over him kept him from his liberty for three years.

It is not known definitely when Lingo will be released. The law requires the prison officials to demand security that each freed convict shall have employment upon leaving the prison or else they must have the assurance of a relative that he will be taken care of. No such assurance has been forthcoming as yet in Lingo's case.

Lingo said he is 55 years old. He is the father of six children, two boys and four girls. One of the latter died upon his time in prison. His wife, who was a constant visitor during the early years of his incarceration, has also died, partially restricted.

"I don't know where my sons are," Lingo said. "I suppose they don't want anything to do with me." The sons are Alfred and Louis Lingo, and were reported to be living in Philadelphia.

"I'm going to work to save enough money to get out West and spend the rest of my life there," declared Lingo. "The people of Merchantville needn't fear I'll come back. A peep at the old place would be good, but I mustn't go there because the white folks have it in for me. I don't want to come back here again. The big outside looks good to me." While in prison Lingo has read a lot and has devoted much time to music.
