Tentative Suggestions to Control Size, Nature, Location and Height of Buildings, Public and Private

ZONES FOR RESIDENCES

Action of Councils yesterday in authoris ing the Mayor to appoint a commission to recommend to Councils new regulations for the erection of buildings in this city was described today by Andrew Wright Craw-ford, executive secretary of the Art Jury, as "a highly important and splendid piece of legislation."

When the resolution was introduced in Councils it was unanimously adopted by both chambers, but there was apparently no understanding upon the part of the mem-bers of its real importance. The measure was introduced by Joseph P. Gaffney, Common Councilman and chairman of the Fi-nance Committee, but Mr. Gaffney con-fessed that he did not know what it actually provided.

The resolution had been presented to him for introduction by Director George Dates-man, of the Department of Public Works, he said. The measure was introduced in accordance with an act of the Legislature. passed at its last session, giving Councils the power which they exercise. According to Mr. Crawford, the commission will have power to draft new building regulations and present them to Councils

If action on the recommendation of the commission is favorable, buildings to be erected in this city in the future will not be permitted to rise above a specified height. The commission will attempt to regulate the size and nature of structures and to fix zones in which residences shall be con-structed exclusively. There will also be sones for office buildings, but the proposed regulations would not affect buildings already erected.

On the commission will be the Director of the Department of Public Works, the Di-rector of the Department of Public Safety and representatives of the Housing Com-mission, the Art Jury, the Chamber of Com-merce, the Philadelphia Operative Builders' Association and similar organizations. The new plan would in no way conflict with the prerogatives of the Art Jury.

"We are glad to hear that Councils took this action," he said. "We expect to co-operate with the commission in every possi-ble way."
