

ETIQUETTE QUERIES—ROYAL SPORT OF GOLF DISCUSSED BY M'LISS, MARION HARLAND

GOLFING ON COBB'S CREEK STRENUOUS, M'LISS FINDS By the Time Local Alps Have Been Climbed and Streams Forded the Ardent Enthusiast Is Ready to Enjoy Scenery

PLACING golf at Cobb's Creek is more than just good fun. It's a real adventure, involving the climbing of mountains, the fording of streams, the mowing of grass and the digging of turf. Given the strength of a Dora Keen, the endurance of a Ted Meredith, plus the agility of Blondina, the tight-rope walker, one might be able to arrive at the 18th hole of that very picturesque course without feeling like John Willard's opponent at the end of the 20th round.

But to all ordinary mortals I recommend after the first game a softly padded stretcher, a speedy trip home, a week in bed with the daily attendance of an expert masseuse. Those who follow this treatment may in time learn to forget that they possess innumerable shoulder muscles they had not known before and all of the vestigial parts the physiology books record. There are some, however, I venture to predict, who will carry the memory of their first golf game to their very graves.

The first thing that impresses the beginner at this sport of kings and statesmen and causes her soul to shrivel within her is the taciturnity of the caddies. The Mona Lisa herself does not wear a countenance more baffling.

The tyro, sticking her elbows into her ribs in the unnatural position that her companion has told her is the only proper one, prepares to drive off. A terrifying gallery, consisting of impatient golfers waiting to get on the course and the ubiquitous caddies, watch her with an inquisitive air. After describing three circles in the ozone which would make a whirling dervish green with envy, the beginner, by a miraculous stroke, feels her stick come in contact with the ball. The ball, however, instead of whizzing through the air after the manner of a bird on the wing, hops like a disabled toad for a couple of feet and lies down in a nice bushy hazard to die.

Out of the corner of a self-conscious eye she regards her caddy. Surely he will be laughing at her. But no! No humor, no ridicule, only an unmistakable bore.

Time and time again she was rebuffed at the Galt hole. Thirteen unsuccessful attempts she made. The fourteenth time she called the home on the telephone. She got a tiny interview. Wet, bedraggled but happy, she returned to Philadelphia. It was not a pleasant day. But that sort of thing happens every day in the newspaper office.

There are joys to offset the disagreeable experiences. A newspaper office is the liveliest place in the universe and newspaper people the liveliest people. Many men would rather be on a local staff at $30 a week than in a business office at $60. A poor woman reporter cannot make more than a beginning stenographer. An adequate woman reporter can make as much as a man. It is true, and all city and managing editors will tell you this, if you prefer a man's opinion, that few women are good newspaper assets. Initiative, aggression, the gift of observation, the ability to write clean, comprehensive English are the qualifications of successful reporters. If in addition to these attributes you have originality and a sense of humor, it is quite possible that you will "hit the high spots"—which is to say that you will be enjoyed and delight to your editors with the prospect of some day sitting with them on the heights of Olympus in editorial chairs. The most necessary qualification of all is persistence. Hang on to a story with hands, feet and teeth until you get it. A reporter that I know was sent to Washington to get an interview with Mrs. Galt at the time of the announcement of her engagement to President Wilson. It was a wet, soggy day.

GOOD FORM

Good form queries should be addressed to Deborah Rush, written on one side of the paper and signed with full name and address, though initials ONLY will be published. This column will appear in Monday's, Wednesday's and Friday's Evening Ledger.

Invite Fiance. Dear Deborah Rush—I received a letter from my fiancé recently in which he asked me to invite him to the wedding. I had no objection, but I felt that I should mention it to you. Would it be better to ask the bride's parents to invite them to the wedding? I would like to hear your opinion on this matter. Yours truly, DOROTHY H. S.

Garden Party Appeal. Dear Deborah Rush—I have been invited to an affair in the garden by a young man. I like to know what would be suitable for a man to wear. Does one keep one's hair at the top? Yours truly, J. H. H.

A dainty frock of gossamer crepe, chiffon or a fine dimity or lawn would be appropriate. Unless one is receiving the guests at the special request of the hostess a hat should always be worn.

Corrections in Public. Dear Deborah Rush—At a home where I was invited a call recently one of the guests made a mistake in her remarks. I would like to see if you could mention it in your column and I would like to see if you could mention it in your column.

As the deed probably made no manner of difference in the story it would have been more courteous to allow the mistake to stand uncorrected. It is very embarrassing to be corrected abruptly in public for a mistake in connection with a party to which you are invited. I am sure you will be glad to see the correction in your column.

For Guests Spoken or Forks. Dear Deborah Rush—When I was out at lunch one day last week I noticed that the waiter had set out two silver forks at each place. Which fork?

Dear Deborah Rush—At a home where I was invited a call recently one of the guests made a mistake in her remarks. I would like to see if you could mention it in your column and I would like to see if you could mention it in your column.

Dear Deborah Rush—I have been invited to an affair in the garden by a young man. I like to know what would be suitable for a man to wear. Does one keep one's hair at the top? Yours truly, J. H. H.

Dear Deborah Rush—At a home where I was invited a call recently one of the guests made a mistake in her remarks. I would like to see if you could mention it in your column and I would like to see if you could mention it in your column.

Dear Deborah Rush—At a home where I was invited a call recently one of the guests made a mistake in her remarks. I would like to see if you could mention it in your column and I would like to see if you could mention it in your column.

SEEN IN THE SHOPS

FOR the motorist, whether for her who drives the car or a mere passenger, this is a noble sports hat that will be found quite useful. It is a jockey model, fitting the head snugly, defying the wind and with a visor protecting the eyes is quite practical. Other sports, such as tennis, golf or even bathing. It is made of taffeta in brown, navy, gray, tan and black and white check, and is finished with a patent leather strap. Price, $1.

Practical Sports Togs. This regulation sports waist is of white Japanese silk finished with pearl buttons. It has a convertible collar that may be worn either opened or closed, and also features a yoke from which fullness is introduced. It is smart and correct for all sports. Price, $5. The crepe de chine tie comes in various striped color combinations or in plain colors at 50c.

SHOP FELLOWSHIP WORK A WORTHY EXAMPLE

By WILLIAM A. EVANS, M. D. I AM interested in the fellowship work of the Commonwealth Steel Company of St. Louis, as described in the April bulletin of the American Iron and Steel Institute. What is being done by and for the workers in that concern is paying direct returns on the investment as well as being of great indirect benefit to the company and direct benefit to the men.

Decorating Grapefruit. If you have week-end guests and want to make the breakfast table look really festive, decorate the grapefruit in the manner illustrated. The fancy edge looks like a work of art, but it's merely a question of tooling for a little while.

Borden's Malted Milk. Borden's Malted Milk is the most perfect food for infants and invalids. It is made from the finest quality of milk and malted wheat.

YOU GET EVEN GREATER VALUE IN THE Nemo Corset. At the New Standard Prices THAN EVER BEFORE! The slight advance in the price of certain Nemo Corsets represents only a fraction of the actual increase in cost of materials and making.

MARION HARLAND'S CORNER

Offers Stamps and Patterns

I have many elegant stamps from foreign countries and shall be glad to send them to all who fancy paper who wishes them. If they can also send pretty crocheted lace patterns to my fancy paper who wishes them. If they can also send pretty crocheted lace patterns to my fancy paper who wishes them.

Stories for Invalids

This is my first contribution to your Helping Hand Corner. I have wondered if a lot of interesting stories taken from various magazines would help some dear shut-ins pass the weary hours. I will gladly pay postage to the sick who want them. If you wish to have them does not find it convenient to do so. I wish you all success in 1916 love, M. H.

Sugar Cookies

For the purpose of giving you something to eat, I enclose a good recipe for sugar cookies. Cream one cup of butter, add slowly two cups of sugar. Beat three eggs and add the butter and sugar. Sift one cup of flour into the bowl. Beat three eggs and add the butter and sugar. Sift one cup of flour into the bowl.

Canning Vegetables

A correspondent asks for directions for canning vegetables from those who have been successful in the work. When I say that out of 15 quarts I have lost but 2, I think you will agree that I'm rather successful.

Holds Her Breath

No little girl, 2 years old, has a habit of holding her breath, crying, after being hurt or crossed. "I don't think it is all temper, as some people say, as she is a good-natured child. Is there any danger, and what can I do to make her catch her breath?" W. M. C.

Puritan Pump

White Canvas, White Covered, Louis Heel, Great value, $2.25

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES

Advertisement for schools and colleges including Pennsylvania Military College, Villanova, and Nazareth Military Academy.

Advertisement for Borden's Malted Milk, highlighting its nutritional value for infants and invalids.

Advertisement for Nemo Corsets, emphasizing their quality and fit, and mentioning the New Standard Prices.

Nasturtiums Edible

Nearly every garden has nasturtiums in it, but few people realize the good things that can be made of them. Did you ever eat nasturtium and cream cheese salad? Pick both leaves and blossoms of the nasturtiums and wash them thoroughly.

For Baby

Of course, the new baby's things must be the pink of perfection. Hence the new face cloths, marked with dots, either pink or blue, in the corner and scalloped around the edges to match. Turkish towels go with the set, soft, woolly ones to rub him down after his bath. They may be bought stamped and ready to work in mercerized cotton, too.

Advertisement for Dalsimer Shoes and Hosiery, featuring Colony Pump and Puritan Pump designs.

Advertisement for the Educational Bureau Ledger Central, promoting various schools and educational institutions.

Advertisement for Resinol Scalp Treatment, showing a woman's face and describing the product's benefits for hair health.

Advertisement for Horlick's Malted Milk, featuring an illustration of the product can and text describing its use for infants and invalids.