Developments of great importance are foreshadowed in the situation on the three fronts where large operations are now in progress.

On the Somme front, where the British have established themselves at Pozieres, penetrating the third line of German defenses, feverish preparations are being pushed in expectation of the heaviest counter-attack the Teutons have yet delivered since the commencement of the big Anglo-French drive. The British are now occupying a most favorable position, the ground from Pozieres to Bapaume constituting for the most part a low plain with hardly any ridges intervening. Pozieres is also the key to the Albert Ridge, forming the last line of powerful defenses guarding Bapaume, the immediate obicctive of the British troops.

That the British drive has succeeded in relieving the French at Verdun is evidenced in the virtual cessation of German infantry attacks on the Meuse line and the continued transfer of large masses of Teuton troops and artillery from that front to the Somme. This enabled the French to move forword their positions west of Thiaumont. The French have also gained ground south of the Somme, the Paris War Office reported today.

British elation at the continued Angio-French successes on the Somme front is coupled with the satisfaction generally felt because of the frankness and definite language of the War Office statements. This has become true since the assumption by Lloyd George of the war portfolio. Contrary to the late Lord Kitchener's reticence on the progress of military events, a policy of copious reports and open discussion has been adopted by his successor.

Heavy rains are impeding the progress of the Russian drive into northern Galicia. The Styr, Stokhod and Lipa Rivers are swollen over their banks and the sticky marshes hedging the Stokhod, in particular, have been rendered even more impassable. Russian forces are battling against the elements as well as against the Teutons, but are steadily forcing onward. Brody is harassed on two sides by a Russian battering ram which is gradually crushing the resistance of General Boehm-Ermolli's Austrians.

On the extreme north General Kuropatkin's forces are successfully repulsing furious assaults by General von Hindenburg, inflicting heavy losses on the Teutonic columns.

The victorious armies of Grand Duke Nicholas are pushing three separate drives into Asia Minor, determined not to give the fleeing Turks any respite. The Russians are advancing in three directions, southward toward the Bag-

Submarine May Be Delayed by Fault in Submerging Apparatus

BALTIMORE, July 27 .- The German supersubmarine Deutschland has encountered mechanical difficulties which may indefinitely delay her departure from Baltimore. Tests of the submarine's submerging apparatus have developed defective parts, which must be replaced before the Deutschland is ready for her perilous dash through the enemy-filled waters of the Atlantic.

Naval Constructor Prusse, who superintended the building of the boat at Bremen and who came to Baltimore as her supercargo, is working day and night on the repairs. He believes he will have the submarine ready to sail within 24 hours.

WASHINGTON, July 27 .- The British admiral commanding the cruiser squadron off the Atlantic coast indignantly denies that a British warship entered Chesapeake Bay, as reported to the Navy Department yesterday.

WASHINGTON, July 27. - Complaint hardly will be made to the British Government on account of the invasion of American territorial waters by a British cruiser two days ago. The report of Captain Phelps, commanding the battleship Louisiana, now in the hands of the State Department, has convinced officials there that the British vessel violated neither Federa nor local laws. The captain's report fol-

The commanding officer of the Louisiana reports that about 2:30 a. m., the 25th, while he was at anchor in Lynn Haven Bay, and using his searchligts and signal lights and otherwise indicating that he was a man-of-war, he was passed by a vessel that was barely discernible, excepting for two man-of-war lights displayed aft. As this vessel passed the Louisiana she made the signal which read, "English cruiser." The vessel then was standing apparently up the channel toward Hampton Roads. The lights disappeared very soon after the signal was made and nothing further was seen of her, though the Louisiana was seen of her, though the Louisiana kept a bright lookout for her. Evidently the British cruiser went to sea afterward, as she was not seen anywhere the temperature in Philadelphia was bout the Virginia capes today, so far a official information goes.

Officials of the State and Navy Departments made it clear that should any British vessel of the coast patrol enter Chesapeake Bay after the undersea liner has reached Norfolk or Newport News and is preparing to go out, the United States will be forced to seize that British vessel and detain it until 24 hours after the departure of the German submarine. That is the usual course, officials said, in the observation of American neutrality.

The most serious charge that can be placed against the commander of the British cruiser, the identity of which is not yet known, is a violation of the unwritten code of courtesy of the seas. The British Embassy today cabled the

Police Superintendent Says He "Heard Rumors Others Had Received Graft"

JAMES ROBINSON The Superintendent of Police, on this, his forty-fifth birthday, is ap-pearing before the Grand Jury in the vice investigation.

Definite steps to learn who is responsible for the existence of disorderly houses in the Tenderloin were taken this afternoon when District Attorney Rotan requested the Board of Revision of Taxes and Bureau of Surveys to send him a list of the owners of houses in that district.

Mr. Rotan made that request immediately after the Grand Jury adjourned for the

UNITED BUSINESS MEN FIGHT SMALL COUNCIL; OPPOSE CITY MANAGER

Association's President Tells Charter Revision Committee Changes Are Needed, but Not Radical Ones

WANT NO EXPERIMENTS

William Hancock, president of the United Business Men's Association, has outlined what he says will be the attitude of that organization toward the proposed new city charter in a letter to Thomas Raeburn White, a member of the Charter Committee. On the general proposition of revision as already outlined, Mr. Hancock says the United Business Men agree; but, he says, there are two things they will be against: a city manager and a Council of only 16

ONE PARALYSIS DEATH: FOUR NEW CASES FOUND: FAMILIES QUARANTINED

Infant Stricken Last Monday Succumbs to Disease-Parents Refused to Send Him to Hospital

HE ATE HAM AND CABBAGE

Another death from infantile paralysis and four new cases of the disease have been reported to the Philadelphia health authorities.

Two of the cases appeared last night in the district bounded by Wharton, Christian and Broad streets and the Delaware River, where three other cases had beer reported within the last five days.

The child who died was Jacob Fink, 22 months old, 409 Sigel street. He was stricken last Monday. His parents refused to have him taken to the Philadelphia Hospital for Contagious Diseases. It was learned that not long before the baby became afflicted he had been fed ham, cabbage and boiled potatoes. Dr. A. A. Cairns said it was improbable that the child got the disease from eating this food, but it was improper dist for a baby. The two new cases reported were Rocco Steppin, 7 months old, 721 Kimball street, and Cocsino di Blasi, 2 years old, 735 Man ton street. They had been under observa tion since Sunday. Mrs. Steppin, mother of the baby, and her 2-year-old son are under quarantine at their home. Six boarders and seven children are under quarantine at the di Blasi home.

Helen Bauxbaum, 314 years old, daughter of Rudolph Bauxbaum, of Buffalo, N. Y. was reported suffering from the disease at 2914 Poplar street, the home of August Friess, cousin of Mr. Bauxbaum. The Friess home was quarantined with 11 persons who live there. Helen was removed to ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 27.—Davy Lane had something to say today—his birthday eve-about vice.

This sage of the Republican party in Philadelphia, David H. Mr. Lane was ruminating on the tremendous influence of the clergy in politics; an influence exercised in such a way that things were left undone by legislators bacause they feared the wrath of the puipit publicly expressed, and on Sunday. He told many stories to illustrate, including that time-honored story about Jim Me-Nichol's losing out in his effort to have hotels permitted to serve table guests with liquor on the Sabbath, and that led to the question of whether he would favor the turning over of this vice problem to the clergymen for settlement.
