ORDER FAVORS SCHOOL BOARDS

Superior Court Lets Them Make Tax Appointments for While

SCRANTON, Pa., July 25.—School Boards in cities of the third class in Pennsylvania, until the autumn at least, can ignore the claims of the city treasurers for recognition in the parceling out of jobs of collectors of school taxes. The Superior Court has just granted a supersedens in the case in which the local court directed the School Board of Carbondais to turn over to duplicate tax list to City Treasurer P. P. Hughes for collection. The higher court's ruling permits William J. Evans, the board's choice as collector, to gather the taxes until the Superior Court hasrs the taxes until the Superior Court hasrs the property of the Review of Reviews, which continues: "It was not unusual for him as a boy to hide from his playmates in order to pore over atlasses, draw maps and study military details."

All Mr. Simonds's instincts and training, it appears, indicated a "war historian" in the making. Throughout his career as a hard working and highly successful journaist in New York in times of peace, at no time has he naglected his hobby, the study of war; even his vacations have been appent visiting the famous battlefields on the Continuent.

NOVELIST 'Q' WRITES HIS FIRST COMEDY

Teller Fails as London Playwright

Sir Artho Quiller-Couch, fondly known to the English reader as "Q." has written his first play. Originally a critic and wr ter of verse, later and more famously a teller of prose romances, he has now come into the theater with a piece called "The Mayor of Troy," on which the English reviewers passed a reluctantly adverse verdict. It was recently presented at the Haymarket, with Henry Ainley in the leading role, an Englishman, who, after ten years as a pris-oner of war in France at the beginning of oner of war in France at the beginning the last century, returns to find himself very much in the way of those who had long supposed him dead.

Says the writer in the Times; "A first play is apt to be like a first lec-ture, a first speech, a first symphony. There are generally too many ideas, too many 'movements' in it. 'Q's' first play, to be sure, has one main idea or thesis, but it has too many casual ideas, superfluous details, loose ends. His main idea is the inconvenience caused all round by the re-turn of the dead to life. Resurrection at any rate after sufficient lapse of time for wills to be proved, property resettled and griefs to have calmed down—is a so-cial nulsance. When the dead returns with fresh n tions, like Monte Cristo, you have another story. But when he comes back, like Major Toogood, without a penny, to an estate long since divided up among his heirs, he is certainly de trop and made to

MOLLA BJURSTEDT WRITES OF TENNIS

The Popular English Story International Champion Supplies Remarkably Good Book for the Woman Player

> "Tennis for Women," a straightforward description of the game for women, by Miss Molla Bjurstedt, in collaboration with Samuel Crowder (Doubleday, Page & Co New York), is the best work of the kind that has appeared in years. As she states in her foreword. Miss Bjurstedt does not attempt to make a critical analysis, but merely how she, holder of a host of tennis titles, plays the game.

Miss Bjurstedt says tennis for women and tennis for men are essentially different. and proves conclusively from her own experience on the courts of Norway and the United States that her play is simply the highest development of the woman's game, and is not patterned after that played by In her "Tennis For Women"

Bjurstedt does not confine herself to actual play, but touches on the questions of keeping in condition and maintaining it in a way which insures one's always being at top form for tournament play. On the whole "Tennis For Women" is an work, both for the female begin ner and the more experienced player. The heroic mood engendered by present international complications will Mary Raymond Shipman Andrew's

There have been so many cases of sunburn during the week that in various parts of the city parlors have been opened for the treatment of sunburn. Outside of these places a sign which reads "private room for the treat ment of sunburn" gives victims a guaran tee of needed privacy while their sufferings are being relieved. Last night the early promenaders on the Boardwalk greeted Kenneth Jaquith when he ar ived from Philadelphia in his new flyin, boat. He reached this city at 7:25 of keeping over the water. Many of the calookers applauded the daring airman more to express their delight at his success than with any thought of being heard by the occupants of the aeroplane.

"Mistress Mary, quite contrary," having read that the bare legs of feminine bathers attracted the sharks t e northern wate har shown her disbelief in that statemer by adopting a stockingless costume during the past few days. Only a few of the younger set went into the surf without hosiery until this week, and now it has come to be a fad which may or may not continue.

Although a few revisions have been made

Although a few revisions have been made in the draft of the new jitney ordinance, there is every possibility of its being made a law as quickly as legal machinery can put it through. Inasmuch as the nickel autos have been runnig as they pleased, on either of the two popular lateral avenues, much congestion has been caused and the restriction making them use only the ave-nue on which they are licensed to run meets with approval from most of the vis-Itors.

YOUNGSTERS TO DIVERT PARENTS ON CITY PIER

Party, Under Auspices of Board of Recreation, Will Have Varied Program

Two hundred boys and girls, ranging in age from 6 to 15 years, have been working for weeks preparing for the hig entertainment they will give their parents tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 e'clock on the Race street pier, under the auspices of the Board of Recreation of the city.

The youngsters have made their own cos-tumes. They have sewed and stitched with a will, and they have drilled and practiced for the entertainment. This is the first of a series of entertainments to be given each month this summer to interest the parents in the work of the Board of Recreation.

There is required no word of praise for such authors—they invariably write well. But it is to be remarked that within three months all of these noteworthy books-and many others-have appeared over one imprint-George H. Doran Company. The increasing number of letters complimenting us on the quality of our list impels me to urge that when thinking of new books for home or vacation reading you think of Doran and askyour bookseller for our books. If you send us your name and address we will keep you posted regularly as to forthcoming books.
