ROYAL ARCANUM LEADERS CONFER

Proposed Rate Readjustment Discussed and Details Explained Pennsylvania to Meet in Reading

One of the most important conferences of leaders in the ranks of the Order of Royal Arcanum held in recent years was that held Thursday evening last.

The mostling was called by Grand Regent

The meeting was called by Grand Regent L. R. Gelsenherger, for the purpose of thor-oughly considering questions affecting the general welfare of the order, and that mem-bers might be thoroughly informed upon the prospective readjustment of rates and be prepared for the increases which must of securative be made. sity be made.

necessity be made.

It is believed the meeting will prove of far-reaching benefit. Those present were thoroughly enlightened upon every phase of the rate question problem and its probable solution.

Tarough these representatives the message will be intelligently conveyed to the members of the unbordinate councils. Invitations were sent by the grand resent to some 60 prominent members of the traternity in eastern Pennsylvania to atomic adminer at a prominent local hotel.

Included in the list of guests invited to the conference were grand and supreme representatives, district deputies, collectors of councils and there active in the practical work of the organization.

The feeling expressed was most optimistic. In a breely admitted that the probable action of surrema council in September in increasing scale of rates might cause some sirrinking the quarter of a million members, but that i will only serve to safeguard the interests of the who remained loyal and steadfast.

It was stated that what was aimed at now as 90 per cent solvency, and that the order rould be satisfied with nothing less.

Edward Becker, past grand regent of New Jork and a member of the committee of five apointed by the supreme council to present a reort as to the best plan for rate readjustment, and a madress, in which he gave a comprensive raylew of the work of the committee, excluding the detail the various rate plans suggested and the advantages of each, and emphatically integrated anything suggestive of the nature of temporary expedient.

The keywards of his address was absolute adeemporary expedient.

Both speakers freely answered questions upon every phase of the rate problem, and those participating in the confarence can now better dissenting in the fellow members.

Bright are the prospects of this great brother-hood. It is boileved that with a stable foundation of the Supreme Council will surely revision of the Supreme Council will surely revision of the Supreme Council will surely revision of the action taken. Tall by the way-like, had been deadled the confinite its progressive march, growing in greater immerical strangist by reason of its known manufal stability. Among those who attended his important conference were H. K. Latly, E. B. Roedel, W. J. Stoltinger, James E. Norm, State Scholas, Theodore, Wallace, Jahn Klindwurth, E. B. Berrell, John fitsuss, C. PYTHIAN KNIGHTS

The Problem of Minimizing Suspensions Claims Attention of Lodges

Of the more than 56,000 members in the domain of Pennsylvania during the last year 2167 were suspended for nonpayment of dues. This number, while seemingly large, is not out of proportion to the sus-pensions recorded by similar secret orders.

It will, however, surprise many Sir Knights to learn that there are more sus-pended Pythian Knights in Pennsylvania than members in good standing. An analy-lis of official flavores for the years that sis of official figures for the years that have gone will demonstrate this fact.

have gone will demonstrate this fact.

These constant annual losses rapidly deplete the ranks. To lessen such and thus strengthen the brotherhood is a problem which has reserved the thoughtful consideration of more than one State officer. At the last annual session of the Grand Lodge the then grand chanceller. Hother Moore, commenting upon this condition, stated:

"Many methods have been proposed to stop, or at least diminish suspensions, but with each recurring six months our ranks are despised because many members at the state of the state of

Some lodges, in harmony with this policy, have appointed delinquent committees, but, while much good has been accomplished in some instances, the reasons for these numericus sumensions are so varied and complex that it is difficult to device a method which will minimize these losses to the extent desired.

THIRTY-FIVE TYPHOID FEVER CASES FOUND IN COATESVILLE

State Health Officials Begin Investigation of City Water Supply

COATESVILLE, Pa., Aug. 7.—State Health officials from Harrisburg who came to this city Saturday night to investigate an outbreak of typhoid fever announced last night that including suspects the town has 35 cases, scattered all over the city. Several of the patients, according to the State officials, were infected by bathing in Kurtz Dam, on Brandywine Creek, on the banks of which there are nearly 100 hun-galows owned by wealthy residents of this city. State officials say Kurtz Dam is relibered.

William H. Ennis, a State engineer, said some pollution had been found in the present water supply. He also said that filtration plants, particularly the kind that Coatesville has, are not infallible. It also was ascertained by the officials that the settling dam adjacent to the pump-that the settling dam adjacent to the pumping station has not been cleaned out as frequently as it should have been. Heavy rains have taxed the filtration plant to its utmost. The reservoir was cleaned out yesterday and thoroughly sterilized and the water will be given an extra dose of chemicals. Since the last epidemic in 1913 the city water has been treated chemically. Signs were posted today ordering householders to boil the water before drinking. Officials will inspect the industrial water supplies tomorrow.
