

members of the union and that only half of them have paid their dues in full.

The traveling public at least there has been very little disturbance. There has been virtually no disorder, although three men wearing tricorn hats and uniforms were arrested during the early hours today.

The tramping importance attached to the strike in this morning's edition indicates early this afternoon when P. R. T. trust certificates jumped from 18 1/2 to 19 1/2 on a sale of 50 shares.

The police department is prepared to cope with any situation which may arise. Policemen with riot clubs were stationed on all the elevated platforms in West Philadelphia and a number of officers were assigned to each of the eleven car barns in the city.

When asked whether he would station policemen on the elevated platforms if the strike assumed serious proportions, the Director replied: "We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

He also gave the same answer to a query as to whether he would allow buses to run in case traffic was seriously affected. In reference to the elevated platforms, he has already determined how they should operate and that he could make no rulings in regard to them.

Mr. Mitten, in an interview at the Bellevue-Stratford, said that he had not been a single day on duty since the strike began. He was asked if he was worried about what might develop. His answer was: "Well, the public needn't be worried."

Mr. Mitten said he had extra men at the barns this morning, but found no use for them. He was asked if he had made any appeal to the Mayor or Superintendent of Police in the matter of the strike.

The demands of the striking union men are for wages of 40 cents an hour for all motormen and conductors. The highest figure now paid to the most experienced men is 31 cents.

The Mayor returned to the city Saturday afternoon and was closeted for more than an hour with the head of the police force and the Director of Public Safety.

Lieutenant Smiley, of the Germantown police station, held policemen in readiness all night to answer any riot calls.

His large squad of officers were in service by the Bell Telephone Company today to bring an extra shift of telephone operators to the Kensington branch.

The seven lines operated from that branch were maintained by the regular time, according to Mr. Green.

The superintendent said that up until July 4 he knew of 25 men in his barn who were members of the union and he called them out at the time and a short time later five more withdrew.

A reporter who was instructed to find a representative of the union and find out what the strike was unable to find such a man.

There were no pickets, and but for the ten policemen on duty, there was no indication that a strike had been called.

William P. Cornell, superintendent of the Richmond street barn, Highways avenue and Richmond street, said that only six of his 400 men have responded to the strike call.

At the Callowhill barn, Fifty-ninth and Callowhill streets, the largest barn in the city, arrangements have been made to feed and lodge policemen called to protect property.

HUGHES PLEADS UNITY OF CAPITAL AND LABOR IN SPEECH AT DETROIT

Republican Nominee for Presidency Opens Campaign With Address to Welfare Leaders From Factories

APPEALS TO WORKMEN

By PERRY ARNOLD. DETROIT, Aug. 7.—Justice Charles E. Hughes' first appeal for votes on his campaign tour for the presidency was a plea for Americanism, expression of the hope for a spirit of co-operation of the public and labor and endorsement of a national movement for welfare among American workers.

The Republican nominee delivered the first of his campaign speeches in a stiflingly close room of the Hotel Ponchartraine to a committee representing welfare workers of more than a hundred persons who crowded in and mopped their faces in the withering heat between handshakes for the nominee.

It was quite a demonstration and it followed an unusual outpouring of the public early in the morning to greet him as he paraded through the streets in an automobile.

"Democracy can't stand strife between capital and labor," Hughes told the welfare workers. "We are not laborers nor capitalists," he continued. "We are all American citizens."

At the factory, he said, the welfare workers were introduced to Justice Hughes by J. M. Eaton, of the Cadillac Motor Company.

"Praise welfare work," he said. "Detroit takes the lead in a great many things, but there is nothing in which its advance is more important than in this work of the welfare of the people."

"There is nothing in which I personally take a greater interest than this. The United States was not founded for production alone, but for the well-being of the people to all for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. It is an awful thing to think of the man through whose work the production is made possible as a mere unit of production and not as a human being. We are all workers—I work as hard as anybody—and so saying the Republican standard-bearer mopped his perspiring forehead and wiped his eyes with his handkerchief.

"In your welfare work," he continued, "you are doing something which is really worth while. You are buttressing democracy. After all, the human factor is the only real factor. The man who works must feel the country is doing right by him. He should be placed in the position where his life, limb or health is subjected to risk. That's good Americanism and it's good work."

"After the war we've got to look out for ourselves. I'm delighted with every means to provide betterment of living conditions of workers so that every one in the community may be secure and happy in the thought he is being taken care of."

CIGARETTE "STUMP" SMOKERS INVITE DREAD DEATH-DEALING GUTTER GERMS

Pernicious Habit Among Boys Holds Double Menace in Direct Infection and Disease Agencies Accumulated on Streets, Say Experts

This is the picture of a boy smoking a cigarette. The boy found the cigarette in a dirty gutter. See how his little friend looks up at him with envy. He thinks that the boy who is smoking is a big man.

Dr. N. A. Christensen, chief resident physician of the Children's Hospital, Twenty-second and Walnut streets said: "It is possible for boys to contract infantile paralysis from what is commonly known as a 'stump.' Physicians have recently found that this disease can be contracted from the secretions of the nose and mouth of a person who has a 'stump' in his mouth."

ONE MORE DEATH AND TWO MORE CASES OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Of the 62 cases treated in the Municipal Hospital, there have been 10 deaths; of the 19 cases treated at home, there have been 2 deaths. "Which speaks well for the hospital treatment," added Doctor Cairns.

The two deaths reported in this city were: Helen Abry, 10 months old, of 1426 North Fourth street. This was classed as a new case.

Other new cases reported were: Leslie Martin, 3 years old, of 845 North Newkirk street.

Other new cases reported were: Elsie Conner, 3 years old, of 5339 Darrah street, Frankford.

Other new cases reported were: Joseph Catabalano, 10 years old, in the rear of 808 South Darien street, Third Ward.

BERLIN REPORTS RECAPTURE OF GROUND NEAR POZIERES; FRENCH ATTACK HALTED

BEILIN, Aug. 7.—The recapture of ground lost to the British north of Pozieres, on the Somme front, was announced by the German War Office today.

Further west the French attacked the German positions at Moncau farm, but the assaults were repulsed.

The official report follows: Several attacks on the French sections temporarily gained by the British near Pozieres have been recaptured by means of a counter-attack.

Since yesterday evening engagements have been going on along the Thiepval-Basentin-Le-Petit line. North of Moncau farm, the French made a minor attack last night and a strong attack this morning, but both were repulsed.

Fighting on Thiaumont ridge has ceased without the enemy gaining any success there.

Hostile forces advancing against the British south of Zereze, on the Stokhod River, which was taken by us on Saturday, were repulsed by counter-attacks. Russians tried without success to advance northwest and west of Zalezce.

Further south fighting is in progress on the right bank of the Sereth.

There is nothing to report from the front of the General von Bothmer.

English Troops "Fire Away" Money at Rate of $10,000,000 Daily, Lord Northcliffe Declares

DESCRIBES FRENCH FORTS

By LORD NORTHCLIFFE. LONDON, Aug. 7.—The cost of the preliminary bombardment in the great Somme battle on July 1 was $50,000,000 worth of shells by the British army alone.

These are a few of the details of the intense superiority of the British and French troops.

It is to be hoped that some of these underground fortifications will be preserved in order that future generations may realize what this kind of warfare is like.

MOVIES TO CLOSE

Moving-picture theaters will be closed tonight to children under 16 years, and at midnight tonight the State quarantine against these children from other States, especially New York and New Jersey, will go into effect.

The information bureau of railroads reported that hundreds had made inquiries concerning the quarantine. All of the questions were answered by the bureau.

Doctor Cairns, whose office carried a full working force yesterday for the first time since the outbreak of the epidemic, said there were no new cases reported yesterday.

Doctor Cairns ordered a quarantine on both houses.
