Evening of Redger PUBLIC LEDGER COMPANY CYRUS H. R. CURTIS, PRESIDEN

FOHN C. MARTIN .. General Business Manager NEWS BURBAUS:

STATES BURBAUS:

RIGHT BURBAU ... Right Building
ORE BURBAU ... The Times Building
BURBAU ... 60 Friedrichstrass
BURBAU ... Marcont House, Strand
SURBAU ... 33 Rus Louis le Grand SUBSCRIPTION TERMS

marrier, six cents per week. By mail, d outside of l'hiladelphia, except where postage is required, one month, twenty-nts; one year, three dollars. All mail ptions payable in advance. Morion Subscribers wishing address changed must give old as well as new address.

BELL, 1000 WALNUT KEYSTONE, MAIN 2000 Ledger, Independence Square, Philadelphia.

ENTENED AT THE PHILADELPHIA POSTOFFICE AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.

THE AVERAGE NET PAID DAILY CIR-CULATION OF THE EVENING LEDGER FOR JUNE WAS 125,808

Philadelphia, Monday, August 7, 1916.

If a man does not make neu ecquaintances as he advances through life he will soon find himself left alone. Samuel Johnson.

Some Democrats are not only opposed to child labor, but are opposed to any labor whatever.

Mr. Wilson thinks that the Repubhe is likely to discover that the country regards it as so pleasant and agreeable a memory that it will prefer it to the nightmare which goes under the name of Democracy.

The Danes who think they are being cheated ought to pair off with the Americans who know that we are being done. Our only comeback is that the islands are worth five times as much today as they were when Denmark was considering five millions for the batch.

That Allied offensive that Berlin reported as finished two weeks ago had $274,431,000 in the purchases from one a sudden recovery these last two days. The fact that a mile of second-line trenches was taken is significant chiefly as an indication that the second line had not been taken before. But the offensive goes on, and that is Germany's worry.

Mr. Raymond Robins has seen the light. In return he offers Mr. Hughes a phrase superior in many respects to e candidate's own "America first and America efficient." Mr. Robins threw off this, "A self-controlled democracy, the goal of our generation in American life." It is true, thoughtful and provocative in its implications concerning another Democracy which has plenty of speed but no control.

America has apparently emerged from the furniture-designing horrors of the 70s of the last century. The pictures of chairs, tables, beds, sideboards, bureaus and the like which appear in the advertisements of the great stores having their annual furniture sales show that the designers have begun to study the work of the great cabinetmakers of the past centuries and to profit by what they learn. Where they cannot invent they reproduce, and they are working to such good effect that the descendants of the families who buy the well-made furniture of today will be as proud of it as are the few families who have inherited from the Colonial period the mahogany which met the approval of their ancestors, fantile paralysis in this city is having the usual effect of danger and sorrow in bringing mothers of all conditions to gether. In Brooklyn and New York, where the plague started, its ravages have been chiefly among the poor, and there is no good to come of concealing the fact. It has, long since, attacked the rich as well, and since no specific against it is known, only the stronger physiques of the children of the wealthy keep them from an absolute equality in danger. It is a scourging exhibit of the danger of ghettos, and possibly when the danger is passed the mothers of the city may do what the City Fathers never have been able to accomplish-abolish the ghettos.

Perhaps no city in the country has been the victim of so much misrepresen tation and misunderstanding as Philadel phia. Occasionally this misunderstanding is put into concrete form. We print elsewhere on this page the first of two articles by an investigator who was sent by the Chicago Tribune to "write up" Phila delphia. These articles are obviously the result of a very cursory study, but they are valuable as indicating the impressions a casual visitor may get. The man who sees only a "corrupt and contented" Philadelphia does not see Philadelphia at all. He is much like the Illinois youth who was fired with ambition to be a great law yer. So into Chicago he went and got a job as clerk in a law office. Four days later he reappeared on the farm. "How'd you like the law?" asked his father. "It ain't what it's cracked up to be," replied the youth gloomily. "I'm sorry I learned It." It takes more than two days to "learn Philadelphia."

The peril to American shipping has stirred the National Marine League to new activity. It is opposed to Government-owned merchant ships because they will prevent the very thing which all Americans are demanding, namely, an increase in the number of American bottoms on the high seas. It has no definite plan for fostering shipping, but it believes that shipowners and shipping men know more about the problem than any one alse. It agrees with the Evening Lupour. to urging a shipping commission com possed in part of such experts to study all the laws and recommend such changes as their experience has taught them are neccounty. No investigation is needed to prove the felly of the administration's shipname plan, and we know already that tain sections of the La Foliette sea- actues nen's law should be repealed. The Government has deliberately refrained from enforcing part of this law because it was found to be impractical. The plan of the Marine League will be opposed by those demagogues who say that the proper way to frame a statute is to find out what those most affected by it think is best and then do the opposite. But the rest of us think it is a pretty good plan,

DON'T BLOW UP THE DAM

IF DURING the season of spring floods we should find a man weakening the foundations of a dam below which was a large city we should call him insane and lock him up. Then we would hasten to repair the damage he had done. And if we were wise we would strengthen the structure and raise it in order to prevent the impending disaster.

The business of the United States is at the present moment in the perflous situation of a city lying in the path of the flood from a weakened dam. The dam is the tariff law. The impending flood is the expert trade of Europe to be resumed at the close of the war, and the man who has weakened the dam is Woodrow Wilson, assisted by the Democratic party.

Though the war has been in progress for two years, that party has not lifted a finger to protect the nation against the disaster which is impending. It has talked about anti-dumping laws, which never work except when they are not nceded; but beyond that it has done nothing. The constitutional incapacity for action which has marked this Administration in the crises which have confronted it prevents it from realizing the peril. But it is impossible for a reasonlican party is only a reminiscence, but able man to consider the statistics of our European trade without being appalled at what they disclose.

> Take the case of our trade with Germany. In normal times the Germans sell us $189,919,000 worth of goods. These are the figures for the fiscal year ending with June 30, 1914. This amount fell to $91,372,000 for the year ending June 30, 1915, and for the eleven months twelve months has not yet been printed -the German sales here amounted to only $13,145,000. This is a falling off of country alone since the war began.

> Germany's normal annual exports to all countries amount to $2,131,000,000. That is, this is the surplus that Germany produces over what she consumes. The war has virtually destroyed all Germany's foreign trade. Her exports to England have fallen from more than $230,000,000 a year to absolutely nothing. Her exports to France have similarly stopped. And as we have already shown, we bought last year only a little more than thirteen million dollars' worth of stuff from her.

The war has not stopped German production. Her manufacturing industries have not all been diverted to the production of guns and explosives and army equipment. German statesmen, with the efficiency for which they are noted, are war with arms. German manufacturers are piling up surplus stocks ready to flood the neutral markets as soon as the way to ship them abroad is opened. The trade war will be carried on with the same thoroughness that has been shown in the

The United States is the great neutral market which Germany will attempt to control, because France and England and Russia have agreed to unite in what may be called a commercial union, organized for the purpose of destroying Germany commercially as they hope to destroy her military power.

Nothing but an adequate tariff law can protect American industry against the impending disaster. That law should be passed now, so that it can be ready for use when the need for it arises. In the framing of it all politicians of whatever party should join, for the crisis should wipe out party lines. The Republicans must lead in the work, for they are sincere believers in the protective policy. The Democrats, who happen to be in power, should follow in the great work of industrial preparedness. Patriotism calls. Loyal Americans should respond without delay.

A HUMILIATING EXHIBIT

PHILADELPHIA is a part of Pennsylvania. The whole Commonwealth shares in the prosperity of this city. Its interest in the development of the water trade of this port is vital. But the State does not yet realize it. But it must come to the relief of the port as Massachusetts has gone to the relief of Boston

Director Webster, of the Department of Wharves, Docks and Ferries, cannot serve the city better than by circulating as widely as possible his statement, prepared for the army engineers, showing the amount of money that has been expended on the port by the city and the State. According to that document, a paltry $1,775,000 has been appropriated from the State Treasury in the last fifty years for harbor and channel improvements. In the same time the city has appropriated $28,770,000 and the Girard Estate has spent $2,447,000, making a grand total of $33,000,000 to equip one of the greatest fresh-water harbors in the world for accommodating the shipping trade. When we remember that Hamburg, which is only a little further from the sea than Philadelphia, has spent $115,-600,000, and thereby raised itself into the command of more ocean-borne trade than any other port in Continental Europe, the slowness of this city and State to rise to their opportunities becomes humiliating. Fortunately, the city itself recently woke up, but the State is still Tom Daly's Column

ONE of Bert Leston Taylor's contribs complaining of a neighboring lady who has been practicing on a mouth organ the part of "Home, Sweet Home" that every one knows, opens a longlocked door in our memory. Some twenty years ago, down on South Fifteenth street, we lived next door to a young woman who, night after night, during a period of several years, as we recall it now, played over and over again these opening notes of "The Suwance River" tered the balance of the melody sectionally, also, and if she eventually put all the sections together and ever played the piece through to the end.

It does seem to us that the Sunday paper which printed on its front page an 'aeroplane view" of Atlantic City at the bathing hour might at least have mentioned the St. Charles Hotel, on the top of whose new building the aeroplane appears to have rested to steady the

It has often seemed to us in looking over country exchanges that folks who dwell in quiet rural places must lis awake nights for months before the christening thinking up odd names, Here are a few we gathered in one evening out of six papers published in widely separated counties:

(Miss) Phinaph Rit- (Miss) Iona Hus ter Hammond Daggs Hollar Halp Simp Sipe

(Miss) Lemma Na

Speaking of Names

Rev. O. P. Eaches

F. G. Justice, a retail coal dealer, of tomers. He says this amount represents the excess charges he made on orders so as to meet the coal tax before it was declared onstitutional last fall.-News Item.

Even J. Pierpont Morgan, Sr., could be adily stung. In appraising his estate the fourt found worthless securities that had not upon a time pretended to be worth $7.000.000 .- Cincinnati Times-Star. Zasso? And did the appraisers learn what, if anything, J. P. M., Sr., paid for

KAISER TAKES SCYTHE

AND HELPS WITH HARVEST FOOD PROBLEM NOW SOLVED -Headline

Ha! the grim reaper! But why didn't he think of it before?

Chats With Famous Athletes

Mr. J. R. Maxwell, the well-know "After trying thirty-seven distinct types of putters for several years I am convinced that to be a good putter is quite as important as to have a good putter. How-ever, I have heard that there is a thirty-eighth type, and I shall endeavor to obtain one of them;" August issue entirely to "Some Philadel-phia Convention 'High Lights." Fine! but why isn't Rowe Stewart, chairman of the General Committee, one of the some? We # don't find his name or his picture there.

By Elizabeth Hanly, The forest, dark and grim, returns An echo of my wild halloo, The pebbles slip and slide beneath The gunwale of our green cance, And soon our first camp-fire lifts A thin smoke-spiral, dim and blue.

Across the lake, one hermit-thrush Pours out his soul in promises. A sudden stir within my heart, That yesterday could never guess. Foretells the man that I shall be When I forsake the wilderness. -In Contemporary Verse for August.

The Philadelphia Gear Works good called in to fix those signs we pointed ou ude finger at. Meanwhile, J. H. C. writes You missed another sign on the same wall:

ORDERS CANNOT COME TO FAST.

And now if the circ, dept, will only mark this paragraph and send a copy to Doc Mellon who, in spite of our mocking aughter, continues to urge readers of the Mt. Pleasant Journal to have their "teeth prepared to withstand the stress of mastification at the Mt. Pleasant Dental Parlers," some good may come of it.

Our Serial Poem

(CONTINUED FROM SATURDAY.) Fast rushed the train, with all their souls and headlong into the burning

bridge

Which crossed the dangerous gully beyond Just hidden from sight by the wooded ridge. had seen the stationmaster stop trains

By waying as a signal a red flag; But there was no one here to stop this train By even waying a single red rag. et the train must be stopped from such a wreck, And I thought how such a thing could

While in my tears I frantically rushed
To save them from danger, on a dead run.
Then I thought of my bright red petticoat,
Which was hidden from sight beneath my dress. And I knew if I could but wave it high,

The train full of people my act would I tore it off of my hips in great haste As the flaunting of colors swung into and wildly waved it to the engineer

Whose swiftly rushing train filled me Whose swiftly rushing train filled me with fright.

I ran over the sand and the sleepers,
Half stupefied in my horror and fear.
Waving and praying for the train to stop,
As the heavily loaded cars drew near.
Soon they saw my danger signal flying;
The engineer madly shut off his steam;
The air-brakes haited the cars at my feet,
And I was so giad that I had to scream.
The passengers stared out of the windows
To see their bridge burning with lurid flame;

flame; ney saw me laughing with my petticoat, While the tears of joy down my red checks came. Out of the care the passengers acrambled And came front to see what was the were happy to avoid such a wreck,

(To be concluded),

"THANK GOODNESS, I'M PREPARED!"

CHICAGO DIAGNOSES PHILADELPHIA

Henry M. Hyde, of the Chicago Tribune, Thinks the City Is a Railroad Siding on the Main Line-Other Observations That Make for Fun in Hot Weather

Reprinted by Courtesy of the Chicago Tribune.

I was told the other and and give Philadelphia the "once over." WAS told the other day to run down The idea was to discover if there was any thing Chicago enjoyed that Philadelphia lacked-a sort of municipal muckraking expedition. It was an awesome assignment. When a provincial person from the Middle West visits the great cities of the East he expects to be overcome with admiration and envy. He knows too well the manifold shortcomings of his own vast village by the lake. He is aware that in sophisticated circles it is taken for granted that Chicago is an impossible place. He has been amused by the patronizing condescension of eastern visitors. So it was with the feeling of a small boy who is expected to be impertinent to his elders and betters that I took one of the fast trains for the city of William Penn. Now Chicago is the terminus of some twenty-seven railroad systems. Of the scores of through trains which are down on Chicago time-tables, one-half start from this city and the other half end their runs here. None goes through. From the railroad standpoint Chicago is the beginning and the end of all things.

Not on Schedule

It was startling, therefore, when the first bit of information I picked up was that Philadelphia is not on the railroad at all. So far as the fast through trains are concerned that statement is exact. In ustice it should be quickly added that Philadelphia is by far the most important siding on the main line of the Pennsylvania between Chicago and New York.

It is also to be admitted that the fast trains run through a suburb called North Philadelphia where they can be flagged to take on or discharge passengers. And North Philadelphia is connected with the city proper by a regular hack line. As the typical Philadelphian rarely leaves the city limits and is quite indifferent to the coming of visitors this arrangement is generally satisfactory.

Local trains on the "Pennsy" do run into the Broad Street Station and that great railroad, which has something like a proprietary interest in the city, has within recent years permitted two or three other minor railroads to come into town, or at least to establish modest stations in adjacent suburbs.

At that, far from being a railroad cen tre, Philadelphia is hardly a spot on the circumference. From the railroad standpoint, calling the city the most important siding on the main line of the "Pennsy" is doing it no injustice.

Saving of Streets As the visitor drives on into the business district he is struck, first of all, by the narrowness of the streets. All the land between the two oceans was available when William Penn laid out the city 300 years ago, and it must have been the earliest manifestation of the proverbial Philadelphia thrift which made Wil liam so saving. At any rate, most of the downtown streets are so narrow that street cars and other traffic can only use them in one direction. When the dignified members of the old Union League Club come to luncheon it is even necessary to park their automobiles half on the sidewalk and half in the gutter to leave room enough for the street car to get by.

It is largely due to the narrowness of the streets that Philadelphia has one of QUIZ 1. Who is Dr. Ramon Valdes? the worst records in the country in the may be, by the time the warrant is pro-

No Transfers at All

would be astonished if they got on one

City Railway Company in Chicago.

the conductor for the purchase of what a bit of paper costs three cents-in addiallowed to ride for eight cents a head.

streets near the Delaware River, he sees banked in the gutters on either side vast tifies-in age, at least, may well be coniferous as some of those in Philadelphia-

(To be continued tomorrow.)

TIME FOR EVERYTHING

HORSE SENSE, TOO

Inited States subject to draft for military

APPREHENSIONS

Many Americans entertain a pronounce with Japan now reported. Syracuse Her-

ce. "And in respect to lack of train-remarks the New York Sun, "they to find them.

Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Speaking of street cars, Chicago people cured, many miles away.

What is chocolate made from matter of automobile accidents. Ten or 3. How many States must ratify a constitu-tional amendment to make it effective? 4. What is fuller's earth? twelve people a month are regularly killed in the downtown district. It is also . Who is Frank L. Polk? true that as part of the amazing mix-up

6. Who is the Librarian of Congress About how many square miles of territory are included in the National Parks?

What Do You Know?

of State and city authority in Philadelphia the city is not permitted to arrest 8. What and where is the deepest lake in the world?

automobilists on sight for violating the 9. Which is larger in ground area, the City Hall or the National Capitol? laws. No matter how plain is the violation, it is first necessary to swear out a 10. How many Americans last their lives in the sinking of the Lusitania? warrant and serve it on the offender, who > Answers to Saturday's Quiz Tueson is pronounced as though it were spelled Tuson.

2. Roger Casement was born on September 1, 1864, and was hanged on August 3, 1916. 3. The Chew mansion, 2 famous Colonial residence about which the battle of Germantown was fought on Detober 4, 1777, is at the corner of Germantown avenue and Johnson street,

4. Senator Newlands is from Nevada.

of the Philadelphia vehicles and asked for a transfer. No such thing is known in the City of Brotherly Love, though

 Paul Wayland Bartlett is a sculptor, who designed the figures in the pediment of the House wing of the National Capitol.
 The Washington Monument is 550 feet high. the present head of the system is Thomas E. Mitten, who once presided over the Memorial Hall, Horticultural Hall, the Eng-ilsh building and the Ohio building erected in Fairmount Park for the Centennial Ex-hibition are still standing. Failing a transfer, the Philadelphia

 The first brick house in America was built in Philadelphia for William Penn in 1682. street-car passenger may negotiate with 9. Washington did not sign the Declaration of is locally known as an exchange. Such

Antigua is one of the Leeward Islands, be-longing to Great Britain.

tion to the regular fare of a nickel-and Questions on Art once in possession of it the passenger may transfer to certain other lines. Nor

Editor of "What Do You Know"-Will ou please state (1) where the "Mona Lisa" do the Philadelphia street car companies is now. (2) who decorated the Sistine Chapel in Rome and (3) what distinguished Ameripay any percentage of their profits into the city treasury. Where Chicago gets completed the art decorations in the Pennsylvania State Capitol at Harrisburg? V. C. HESTON. 55 per cent of the net profits of all the surface lines, Philadelphia is lucky to be 1. The "Mona Lisa" and all the other aluable old masters owned by France The great charm of Philadelphia is, of been taken from the galleries and placed in subterranean vaults for safe keeping. Just where those vaults are has not been disclosed. 2. The Sistine Chapei was decorated by Michelangelo. 3. Violet Oakley decorated the Capital. course, its multitude of historic buildings and other relics. An American can hardly visit Independence Hall, where the Violet Oakley Fourth of July was made famous and the decorated the Capitol at Harrisburg. Liberty Bell is enshrined, without a thrill. But he gets a thrill of another kind when, driving through some of the narrow Editor of "What Do You Know"-1. Could you kindly give me the cost of a paper compressor? 2. How many pounds does a paper hale weigh? 3. What do they (bales) sell for? mounds of relics, which—as the nose tes-(balen) sell for? BUSINESS BOY.

Value of Waste Paper

1. A paper compressor or baler costs sidered historic. If there are anywhere from about $15 up. 2. A bale, as ordinarily produced, weighs between 400 and 500 in the country streets so filthy and odorpounds. 3. Baied waste paper sells for about 40 cents per 100 pounds. The price and that close to the business center-one varies according to the nature of the paper. set of fairly observant senses has failed

United States and the Irish Rebellion

Editor of "What Do You Know"-Please settle a discussion. Did the United States, through the President or any other official, warn the English Government of the pend-Two Scotch soldiers who steaded the men at a critical moment by playing mouth-organs have been given medals, which does warn the English Government of the pend-ing Irish rebellion in any way? If so, kindly relate the incident very briefly. The argument is that the President warned Great Britain of a fillbustering expedition. not alter the fact that the average mouth-organ player should be shot without the pre-liminary of a drumhead court-martial which warning resulted in its capture. this true? FRED KANE.

Sympathizers with the Irish rebellion and German papers publish Official reports show that there are 21,-071,000 citizens and 21,166,000 horses in the and German papers published in this coun-try have insisted that the Von Igel papers contained information concerning the re-bellion, or some part of it, possibly the landing of Roger Casement, and that the American Government landing of Roger Casement, and that the American Government communicated the contents of these papers to the British Ambassador here. The only reason for believing this statement is that the statement has been made. Not a shred of evidence has been published and it is almost needless to say, the United States Government repudiates the idea altogether. are on an entirely equal footing." The horses, however, have the advantage of the men. They can be trained quicker.—Ta-conviction that of all the foreign countries Japan is the one we have most to fear; that sconer or later our possession of the Philippines will bring us into collision with the greatest of the Asiatic Powers, and Editor of "Wast Do You Know" Was Rutherford B. Hayes's father Americanborn or was he an immigrant, and if an immigrant, from what city and country did he come, and when?

Ancestry of President Hayes

A. P. that the ostracism of Japanese subjects on our Pacific slope is always a potential bone of contention. It has been a sort of antidote to this apprehension that Great Britain, Japan's present ally, is our friend. But this consolidation will be to some extent modified if Russia forms the close alliance Butherford B. Hayes was a descendant in the sixth generation from George Hayes, who left Scotland in 1886 and settled in Windsor, Conn. The father of President Hayes was born in Brattleboro, Vt. He red to Oble when he was a young man. Hopkins and Harvard.

AN OLD GARDEN IN PHILADELPH

it Was There That Mauric Egan, Diplomatist and M of Letters, Began His Dreaming

THE fame of Maurice Francis native Philadelphian, poet, no ssayist, teacher and diplomatist, w est on his relation to the treaty senmark for the sale of the islar

St. Thomas, St. John and folted State He will doubtles remember in the future s a man of letter rather than as liplomatist, b knows him, ar the court which lin represented United State since 1907, wil to credit MAURICE F. Re him with the possession of rare tag quality without which no man car ceed in diplomacy. Mr. Egan, perhaps he should be

Doctor Egan, for he can write aft name the letters standing for cholarly degrees, has proved that man of tact. Notre Dame Univ made him a doctor of laws in 1878. next year Georgetown College mad doctor of civil and canon law, a 1907 Villanova College decided th was worthy to be a doctor of philos He is a Catholic and one of the mo inguished literary men in that chu Denmark, to which he was sent a voy Extraordinary and Minister potentiary in 1907, is a Protestant ry. Of its 2,600,000 population, 2,5 are Prostestant. The Catholics m less than 5000. Yet this man, wh been closely identified with the act of the Catholic Church all his life succeeded in becoming and rem persona grata to the powers that one of the most Protestant countr Europe. If this is not evidence th possesses urbanity, savoir faire, an various other qualities deemed ess to success in diplomacy, then we give new meanings to words,

The appointment of Doctor Egar diplomatic post was in line with A can precedent. Bancroft, Lowell John Hay are only a few of the Am literary men who have represented country abroad. We have now at Thomas Nelson Page, and at The I Henry van Dyke, and at Brussels ! Whitlock, who, along with Doctor are keeping up the literary tra-Doctor Egan is a poet, but he doe take his verse writing too seriously

"I began to write sonnets year years ago," he said once, "and I spoken of by the critics of my youth as a promising young poet." He paused and smiled the indi smile of a man within a year of fift, continued "I am still referred to as a pron young poet. I write a sonnet a year Yes, one every year. I am writin

Still Remembered in St. Philip's F He was born in a house on the side of South Sixth street, between tian and Carpenter streets, on Ma 1852, and is consequently 64 year He is still remembered pleasant Mother Laurentia, of the school att to St. Philip's Church, in Queen ! above Second. He married his W Philadelphia in 1880. She was Katharine Mullin. A son and two d ters have been born to them. I

Egan likes to talk of his Philade life. Once, when in a reminiscent he said: "Our house is still standing then the garden, of course, has long gone, and the house is now a tene It was a very quaint old place, but bricks brought over from England arched door and two or three low m steps opened into the vestibule, and rear was a wonderful garden. That den was my first recollection. There a great tangle of old-fashioned fle running riot all over it-sweet wi hundred-leaf roses, larkspur, four o'c mignonette-all those delicious old garden flowers. That garden, the and a few of Sir Walter's books ar first and pleasantest recollections of delphia and had been regred with q and old-fashioned simplicity. She i great lover of Shakespeare, and, of or of Scott, Addison, Steele and Oliver smith. She would read to us in the childhood. My mother was the teacher of myself and my sister. St longed to one of the old families of

Didn't Like the Law

"I never reached the 'adventure' most boys had. The atmosphere of home was so quiet, simple and t tentious that-well, I don't supply had any chance for fighting India running away to sea. I went to a school not far from our home, St. Pl Academy, and did my elementary there for La Salle College, which tered at about fifteen. I graduated La Salle-oh, yes, with the A. B. de and then went to Georgetown Co where I studied law, The lawyer's tion I found neither to my talents I my taste, so I commenced writing as ning.

New York, where I edited the Freed Journal. In 1888 I decided to 8 Leipsic to reside, but the professor of English l'terature at Notre Dame offered me. So I took up the line teacher and lecturer there." He remained at Notre Dame until when he went to the Catholic Unive in Washington to share with Co Warren Stoddard the chair of En literature. He occupied that chair President Roosevelt, with whom he on terms of friendly intimacy. him to Denmark. He has writte books and done considerable transle as I left college. At length I settle in addition to his work as teacherwas decorated by the King of Bel in 1906 for his work in literature. has received the Lasture Model Notre Dame and has lectured at 2