

HUGHES WINS CHEERS
ON HIS FIRST 'FLYING'
ADDRESS FROM TRAIN

Arrival of American Spirit
Theme of Republican Candidate in Speech to 1000 in Minnesota Town

AGAIN ASSAILS WILSON

WINONA, Minn., Aug. 9.—Charles E. Hughes today had his first try-out on the platform campaigner in the presidential election. It happened here this morning when he addressed a standard-bearer to a crowd of nearly 1000 persons that he looked for the arrival of the American spirit.

The Minnesota gave Hughes a rousing ovation. As the train came to a stop at the station the Governor and Mrs. Hughes just finishing their breakfast hurried out on the platform waving his hand, and the crowd yelled its greeting. Then the Governor spoke.

"I am very glad to have this opportunity of saying good morning to you. The fact that you are here at this time shows the deep interest taken in the work of this campaign. I have found this interest prevalent wherever I have gone and to see it is a very hopeful sign. It means that we want in this country a new kind of an American spirit. It means that we look to the future and want to safeguard all the interests of this country with upholding policies. I represent a reunited Republican party ready to go forward to an America tested as America has not been tested before when the world has stood the competitive strain that will come when a new Europe issues from the East and West, every part of the country, shall be benefited by an administration that knows no more partisan politics for the purpose of paying political debts, but an administration that is devoted solely to the rebuilding of this country and the conversion of its vast iron, steel, and copper resources into a new world."

When the Governor concluded former Representative Jim Tawney, whose home is in Winona, said he had been told by the candidate to tell the crowd that he was so tired to shake hands. Hughes smilingly responded:

"Yes, he interjected, 'what I said was that my voice was a little tired, but that I would be delighted to shake hands with everybody here.'"

Mr. Hughes' voice today was noticeably hoarse due to the effort of speaking last night to the vast crowd in Chicago.

FOUR NEAR DEATH IN PLANE

Machine Owned by Philadelphia
Wrecked in Shore Flight

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 9.—Racing down the inlet last night at 40 miles an hour, the Fifty-Fifty, a hydroplane owned by Horace B. Stetson, brother-in-law of Joseph Stetson, and John Shattell, of Philadelphia, dove in its bow with the owners and two women on board.

"BR-R-R! MERCURY'S DOWN TO 95,"
SAYS ENGINEER EMERGING TO STREET

He's Almost Chilled When He Leaves Room in Reading Terminal, Where Temperature Marks 130—Molly-Coddles Have No Right to Complain of "Hot Wave"

You who sit in your office with your collar and coat off, your sleeves rolled up, and your feet tucked under you, are you not as hot as a furnace? The thermometer registers a slight 92 degrees; maybe the humidity do seem to have conspired to make you repeat not having checked yourself to death last January, thus occupying, at least, the hot wave that is in the air. Maybe all these things are true, but you go to a boiler or engine room, laundry or tailor's establishment and learn there how hot, how humid, how unbearable the weather can become without causing immediately cessation of ambition, energy and breath.

High Dulles, night engineer at the Reading Terminal, transacts his business in a temperature of 130 degrees. When he gets out of that and walks upon Market street with the sun burning its way into the eyeballs, he murmurs not about the heat, but is just as satisfied as you would be if you were strolling down the Boardwalk in Atlantic City, where the ocean breeze laves him in its bow with the owners and two women on board.

Mr. Dulles is accustomed to the engine room, but he does suffer considerably from heat and fellow sweaters. There is a great deal of perspiration finding its way to the door in continual streams, probably a quart an hour from each man.

A visitor there yesterday, accustomed to the cooling registration of a mere 92 or 94 degrees, perspired a gallon during the first 15 minutes of his incarceration in the awful heat, while those always on duty, including the fire and tried to make the heat really cool, make it if they are needed to. Once upon a time, far back in the days that histories have since made legendary, there was a man in a different sort of land, where the ocean breeze laves him in its bow with the owners and two women on board.

There are sufferers other than those whose rooms and engine rooms, although the thermometer doesn't go as high as 130 degrees, the shirt that comes to you so clean and folded—and torn—has been brought into that condition by a girl whose dress becomes limp from the perspiration of her body, whose hair becomes all frizzy, whose complexion stands no chance whatever of retaining its lily-white delight. How she sighs for a breeze, for a fan, for a stroll upon the avenue with heat of only 95 degrees! But she is very fortunate, for every day when quitting time comes she has a happy vacation for hours and hours and hours—even until the next morning. And then when Saturday night comes, think of all the wonder and the glory and the relief the laundry girl can crowd into the next 26 hours!

And so with the tallorner who presses your suit. Think of all the drops of perspiration that have fallen from his brow as he put that artistic crease into your trousers and took the spots from your coat!

Verily, verily, 'tis not all said in the office, thou mollycoddle, thou pet of good fortune, with your collar, tie and coat off, your sleeves rolled up, coquetting to your elbows an electric fan—perhaps, a handkerchief, perhaps, a handkerchief—what right have you to kick about the weather?

Maybe it is hot; maybe the thermometer registers a slight 92 degrees; maybe the humidity do seem to have conspired to make you repeat not having checked yourself to death last January, thus occupying, at least, the hot wave that is in the air. Maybe all these things are true, but you go to a boiler or engine room, laundry or tailor's establishment and learn there how hot, how humid, how unbearable the weather can become without causing immediately cessation of ambition, energy and breath.

GASOLINE PRICE CUT IS PREDICTION HERE; OTHER STATES MOVE

Big Oil Companies Plan Reduction, Following Action in Jersey, New York and Louisiana

PROBE MAY BE CAUSE

It is probable that the price of gasoline in this city will take a drop in the immediate future. It was learned from several large oil companies operating here that such action has been seriously considered. The present prevailing cost per gallon to consumers in Philadelphia is 25 cents. It may go to 23 or 24 within a few days.

The forecast of a reduction follows the report that it is generally understood Congress will be told the remedy for the high cost in gasoline lies in a regulation of gasoline manufacturers to insure real competition. The Federal Trade Commission has completed its final report on the subject and it will be sent to Congress next week.

Efforts will be made to regulate the price of gasoline in this city to correspond with the New Jersey rate per gallon, which is 24 cents to consumer per gallon at the present time. The 1 cent difference has created great dissatisfaction among local owners of automobiles.

The Standard Oil Company of New York announced a one cent reduction yesterday. The new price are 23 cents to garages and 24 cents to consumers. In several New England States and New Jersey a reduction has taken place. A report from New Orleans shows a decrease of two cents against the price one month ago and a further cut is expected in the near future.

The local manager of a large company in Philadelphia said today that the break in crude oil brought about the changes, despite the fact that the demand was greater than ever. The enormous demand for gasoline for Europe continues, but that he had found that the gasoline consumed in this city per automobile was less than in 1915.

The enormous demand for gasoline for Europe continues, but that he had found that the gasoline consumed in this city per automobile was less than in 1915. It was given by the high prices primarily, and a few weeks of rainy weather in the early summer.

PAPERS HERE TO REDUCE SIZE

Philadelphia Dailies Agree to Save Eighty Pages a Week

Announcement of an agreement among all publishers of Philadelphia newspapers to reduce the size of their publications to meet the serious situation created by the shortage of newspaper print was made this morning. A total saving of 80 pages a week, apportioned among all the newspapers, morning, evening and Sunday, was effected.

It was further announced that beginning September 1 next the privilege of returning unsold copies of all morning, evening and Sunday newspapers, heretofore enjoyed by purchasers, would be discontinued, this new rule applying to newspapers, news agents, news stands and carriers.

The newspapers which subscribed to the agreement were the Evening Ledger, Public Ledger, Evening Bulletin, Evening Telegraph, North American, Philadelphia Inquirer, Record and Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Declaring that Progressives were not going to be delivered by any leader or group of leaders to any of the presidential candidates, Mathew Hale, of Massachusetts, acting chairman of the Progressive National Committee, said that he would do all he could to help re-elect President Wilson, but would urge the Bull Moose to vote for the Progressive electors in the States where such electors are put in the field.

QUARREL OVER BEER; ONE SHOT

Men Clash on Question of "Too Hot to Buy Can"

Andrew Schrobono, 35 years old, of 453 East Rittenhouse street, and Andrew Slatfenello, 33 years old, of the same address, quarreled last night about whether or not it was too hot to buy a can of beer. Schrobono is said to have ended the argument by shooting Slatfenello above the heart. Slatfenello is in the Germantown Hospital with a serious bullet wound, and Schrobono attempted to escape a mob by jumping into a passing automobile after the shooting. He was arrested later.

The two men had returned from a meeting of quarry strikers when the quarrel started.

P. R. T. IGNORES 'STRIKE'
AS CARMEN TURN DEAF
EAR TO UNION'S APPEAL

Closed Incident, Attitude of Company Regarding Few Men Who Obeyed Walk-out Order

QUITTERS BARRED OUT

The definite refusal of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company to take back any of the motormen or conductors who walked out two days ago at the call of the union has virtually made the trolley strike here a closed incident.

Although President Harry P. Flynn, of the union, and National Organizer P. J. Shea have denounced and ridiculed the statement from Thomas E. Mitten, president of the transit company, their efforts today proved insufficient to persuade any more employees to join the ranks of the strikers.

The action of the union men in striking at the call of President Flynn, of Division 477, Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway Employees, was denounced last night at a meeting called by C. O. Pratt, head of the group of carmen, who were expelled from the union in 1911. A telegram was sent to Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, urging that they be restored to union membership and that the men responsible for the present strike dismissed from the union.

Two men will be arraigned in Central station today charged with bombarding a northbound Ridge avenue car at Twenty-seventh street. The men who were arrested are John Berry, 29 years old, of 2515 West Allegheny avenue, and John Garvin, 28 years old, of 2808 Bainbridge street.

by Colors, Says "Scientist"

CLEVELAND, Aug. 9. IF YOUR little girl tells a fib or hops the ice wagon, buy her a pale blue pinafore. If your small boy discards his shoes, have his bedroom papered a sky blue. If you want to do some hard mental concentration hang a yellow curtain across the window. This is the advice of the Rev. J. F. Grumbine, of the Psycho-Science Church here.

"Clear red makes folks affectionate and dark red makes them emotional," Doctor Grumbine stated. "White makes folk feel spiritual and pure. Every color has its effect on the human mind." "Blue is the color that will help the child go the right road."

BALL THROWER BREAKS ARM

Criterion Club Member Suffers Double Fracture—X-ray Used

An X-ray picture taken yesterday revealed the fact that the throw of a baseball had broken Edward F. Mahoney's arm in two places. The young man lives at 241 North Marine street, and last Saturday pitched a game between teams representing the William Mann Company and the Central National Bank. The game was played on the grounds of the Manco Country Club.

Mahoney had pitched eight innings for the Mann nine, and in the ninth round "wound up" for a delivery. There was a sudden jerk of his body as he let the ball go and it rolled toward third base. His arm was fractured in two places by the throw.
