tional railway heads, who had been called, would be here until this evening, and it was expected that the next conference with the President would take place at 10 resolutions from morning.

This program, however, was interrupted by the President's call to meet him this It was learned here that a group of the blasest bankers in New York city today were carefully examining the situation to determine whether their influence should be thrown to the Fresident. The fact that a strike, even though of the briefest duration, would absolutely shatter stock values and bring about a con-dition of financial chaos, the outcome of which would be difficult to determine, was ed eventually to swing these men to the White House compromise. And if they do may the word there will be nothing for the railway executives and managers now bere to de but to accept.

The action of the President in sending Colonel George Pope, president of the Na-tional Association of Manufacturers, a rather sharp denial that his present plan in effect, an attack upon general arbitra-tion and his attitude "neither weakens nor discredits but strengthens" the principle of arbitration, has materially strengthened position, officials say. Although many telegrams have reached the White House demanding that arbitra-tion of all of the issues involved—including the eight-hour day—be forced, there have also been received many messages indorsing the President's plan, and declaring that it is his duty to prevent a nationwide strike, even though it may be necessary to apply for the appointment of Federal receivers to operate the roads.

The brotherhood representatives are marking time. They met in their head-quarters again today and talked things ever but took no action. They have made it plain to the White House that if the railroads refuse to accept the peace plan they will go ahead with their original program and call the strike, putting the blame on the roads. But they have promised President Wilson they will make no radical move whatever without first consulting

"JUDGE" CALL INDICTED IN VICE CLEAN-UP

real estate to serve as security for the ball HURRIES TO CITY HALL. When the indictment was presented to Judge McMichael, of Quarter Sessions Court, the news was flashed to Call via the "ward heeler" message route. Call immediately bearded a trolley car and hur-ried to City Hall. He presented himself before Judge McMichael, and thereby saved himself from service from a bench warrant which the court was about to issue. Ball was fixed in the sum of $1000 for Call and the amount was furnished by Michael Spatola, a lawyer. Call had on a brand-new Panama hat, and when he came forth from Judge Mc-Michael's chambers he wore a smile, but appeared nervous. He also perspired freely.

"I expect to be able to prove my inno-cence without much difficulty," he said as he rubbed his handkerchief over his forehead. He refused to discuss the situation further.

CALL SWEATS AND FUMES.

A little later, when reporters called at the "Judge's" office at Twelfth street and Girard avenue, he had lost much of the optimism which he appeared to have when he talked in the City Hall corridor.

"Is it true that chips can be bought at your club?" Call was asked.

The stout Magistrate looked as though about to explode. His eyes bulged angrily from their sockets, his face turned from bright red to a purplish hue, and the big veins in his neck swelled as if they were veins in his neck swelled as if they were going to burst.

"I have nothing to say, nothing to say," he susped, waving his questioners away with a pudgy hand.

"Is it true that professional dealers are subployed at your club?"

The Judge became even more irritable. He looked at his questioners as if he wished that a look could slaughter them. He conched his teeth as if to bite off a savage retort.

"Very busy, very busy," he panted as he removed perspiration heads with the back of his hand. "Did you say you were going to 'get

Lieutenant Haines for quarantining your club"

The Judge wet his dry lips with his tongue, grabbed hold of the edge of his deak as if to steady his nerves, and fairly

"Go away : can't you see I'm very busy? r God's sake, don't peater me any more." THE INDICTMENT.

The indictment against "Judge" Call and an fellows:
"Magistrate Jecopis Call, unlawfully,

Roste Morani, Bessie Tessass, Eather Miller, ida Russell, Catherine Webber, Lillian White, Helene Burns, Mary Smith, Helen

ficient security, unlawfully and corruptly with the intent to obstruct and impede the execution and administration of justice."

The indictment against "Judge" Call is the first of the kind to be presented against a Magistrate in this city for many years. The last indictment of this kind was drawn about 12 years ago against Magistrate Harry Fletcher, now deceased. Fletcher was accused of malfeasance in office. SLUMP IN CALL STOCK. The indictment of Call caused something akin to panic among political corruptionists who in the past have been given reason to feel that the "Judge" was immune from warrants, indictments, police interference and other uncomfortable legal processes.

"Judge" Call's stock fell rapidly when the news of the indictment spread among ward heelers, p.ckpockets, cadets and disorderly women, who have learned to look upon the "Judge" as the best man before whom to e arraigned. It became known today that Joseph Perrotti, who furnished the straw ball ac-cepted by Call, was at the Hotel Mascagni cepted by Call, was at the Hotel Massagn, in Atlantic City.

He called up from Atlantic City this morning and asked if the 'Grand Jury devils' were still working. He became excited and hurriedly hung up the receiver when teld that Call had been indicted. The Auton Canad Lury has wanted to hear Pergust Grand Jury has wanted to hear Per-rottl's story concerning the straw ball, but Perrottl has kept out of sight.

MAYOR ASKS TESTIMONY

About the time the indictment was presented to Judge McMichael, Mayor Smith went to the office of Judge Rogers. The Mayor asked the Judge for a copy of the testimony given before the July Grand Jury. On Saturday District Attorney Sam-uel P. Rotan notified the Mayor that he did not have the power to give him this testimony. He suggested that the Mayor seek permission from Quarter Sessions

In speaking of his interview with Judge Rogers, the Mayor said: "Judge Rogers told me that it was against the law to give out testimony before a Grand Jury. I am satisfied with his decision and will make no further effort to obtain this testimony. The Grand Jury would have indicted Call last week, politicians say, had it not been for a police blunder which forced from town Perrotti, the principal witness, That blunder, which had the form of a raid, looked so much more like collusion than stupidity to critics of the police, that the orders went out to show Call he was not a favored one. The quarantine on his club followed, and no small part of the significance in that quarantine is the fact that the club is in the 20th, Dave Lane's ward, and Joe Call is one of Lane's most faithful followers.

CLUB GAMBLING.

When Magistrate Joe Call couldn't get in his own club yesterday he blustered this way and that, threatened to "get" the policemen who kept him out, threatened also to "get" the lieutenant, who, in this case, hap-pens to be "Chick" Haines. But with all the threats he didn't get in the clubhouse, and that was his only reason for coming up from Atlantic City. He wanted to show his followers that nobody could keep him out. He wanted to see the Mayor about it, but hasn't been able to the Mayor about it, but hasn't been able to get to him yet.

The club was quarantined instead of being raided, because Police Lieutenant Haines felt that they could not get the evidence in a raid. He is satisfied the club is hardly more than a gambling joint, principally draw and stud poker.

Men say that anybody can sit in the game simply by joining the club, which game simply by joining the club, which meant the payment of a $1 initiation fee. There were supposed to be monthly dues of a half dollar, but these were not often collected from the card players. Their game was support enough, for the house used to draw down a 10 per cent commission. HOW THE GAME RUNS.

Joe Segal is said to have run the game for the club. Magistrate Call's son-in-law. Bill Davison, sold the chips, and that kept the business end of things in the family. Professional dealers were obtained at 75 cents and a $1 fee for an hour and they headed the table in the big eight-handed games.

They say that many of the stud games had no pots worth less than several hundred dollars. They weren't pikers. Drinks were free out of the 10 per cent rake-off Segal drew down for the house.

Business was good at this time other follower of David Lare.
So they are saying now Joe Call has run down on his luck. He had it easy there, too. The house would furnish him with chips and he stood only to gain, never to lose. They would even send him home in a taxicab when he left; and the house

Ward heelers in the Twentieth Ward were mnerved by the blows at the Call dynasty unnerved by the blows at the Call dynasty. They term the actions against Call "political attacks." They say that some of the Vare politicians have suspected for some time that the "Judge" has been slashing Vare candidates in favor of McNichol, therefore the Vare men are "out to get the Judge."

But there was plenty of evidence today that the Call dynasty was crumbling. Even his closest friends criticized what they had consest friends criticized what they his closest friends criticized what they termed Call's lack of judgment. One of these was Isadore Reinheimer, 1741 North Eighth street. In speaking of the acceptance of $5400 in straw ball by Call for the release of 18 disorderly women. Reinheimer

'The Judge is a good fellow, and he is 'The Judge is a good fellow, and he is always ready to come through with a bone or two for anybody in trouble. But he ought not to go outside his own ward to help anybody in trouble, as he did in the case of those women. He should be content to keep his own people out of hot water." water.

How the Value of Cunningham Pianos Is Recognized

A Cunningham Piano was frequently advertised within the last twelve or fifteen months by a certain store, which stated in each ad that its original price was $400.00 and their selling price $95.00 They, however, fearing we would ascertain its pedigree, carefully obliterated the exposed numbers of the instrument.

The real history of this particular piano is as follows: First and foremost, its real number is 5457, and it was sold to James Toy, of 4908 Lancaster Avenue, on July 27, 1893, which is now over twenty-three years ago. We suppose it was purchased by the store in question for the purpose of attracting buyers to their store, as Cunningham-made pianos always do.

We also note a Mayer upright piano, No. 6578, in a walnut case, which was taken in trade by us on one of our Matchless player-pianos, and we sold it to a Benjamin Gordon, of 1613 South Thirteenth street, on April 3, of this year, for $80.00. We now see it on sale by one of the stores selling pianos as a supposed special piano bargain for $100.00.

We don't object to our pianos being advertised by competitors, if they come by them in an honorable way, but we are surprised at big houses using the tactics that were common in the days of long ago piano selling.
