ROBERT MAXWELL PICKS CHAMPION KILBANE TO RETAIN TITLE AGAINST GEORGE CHANEY

A Bad Sign

Old-time ring followers-and there are many here today—shake their heads at this excessive confidence on the part of the public and say that it is a bad sign. They boint out that^{*} in sports, more than any thing else, the grandoldope is kloked to pleces and surprises always are sprung Klibane is working under a terrible jinx shores of Lake Erie and acted just like one of the excursionists here for a day's outing. He is under no mental strain and will give the best he has when he meets Chaney, and Labratic bast is marked. Johnny's best is enough to win from any featherweight in the world.

The Baltimore boy arrived at the Break-ers last night, after motoring to Sandusky and crossing the bay in the boat. George and his manager, henry Bletzer, made their way through the crowd from the dock to the hotel, waving their hands in response
