GERMAN MILITARY EXPERTS PREDICT DRIVE THROUGH RUMANIA TO THE BULGARIAN FRONT

Advancing on an 80-mile front, the Germans and their Bulgarian allies have swept across the southern boundary of Dobruja province, occupying the towns of Dobrich, Kurt Bunar and Akkadunlar.

The Rumanians have the advantage of heavy reinforcements of Russian cavalry in Dobruja, and at some points they are already in contact with the Germans and Bulgarians.

It is understood here that four separate columns of Russian troops, heavily supported by artillery, have entered Rumania to fight the German allies.

The German-Bulgarian armies are advancing in a northerly direction, but only at one point have they reached the Danube, where it forms the northern boundary of Dobruja province.

WILSON DOESN'T WANT AN ESCORT OF SUFFRAGISTS

"Meet Him at Theater," Word Sent to the Delegates

NO INDOORSEMENTS GIVEN

Women Decide They Will Not Back Any Candidate in Fall Campaign

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 6.—President Wilson today expressed a desire not to have a file of women escort him through the streets of Atlantic City when he arrives here Friday evening to address the emergency convention of the National Woman Suffrage Association.

The suffragists planned to have a "special escort of honor" to lead the President to the convention, but today the nation's Chief Executive notified Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the association, that he preferred to have the escort meet him at the theater where he is to speak.

WORKING ON PLATFORM

To no party or no candidate will go the indorsement of the National Woman Suffrage Association. This much was decided upon after a struggle in the executive committee, which began early yesterday afternoon and lasted until toward morning today.

Six women are working on the platform of the association, which will be reported in executive session to the Executive Council tonight and presented to the delegates on the floor of the convention Thursday, according to the announcement of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt.

The suffragists are meeting here today in an emergency convention. It was called by Mrs. Catt, president, to consider the immediate program for the suffragists to follow.

BIG STRUGGLE COMING

It seems to be the hope that out of this convention will come a way for the National Association and the Congressional Union to fight under one organization.

Mrs. Catt makes the point that regardless of how much progress has been already made the biggest fight is yet to be staged. She groups in the enemy crowd what she calls the reactionaries, the knaves and the liars.

It is the president's idea to have the nub of the situation fought out at the beginning. After that she believes the delegates, some 3000 of them, can take on their shoulders the other questions, such as method, organization and the like.

This amendment calls for congressional granting of woman suffrage.

'DOPE' VICTIMS AND SYNDICATE FOIL U. S. LAW

Courts' Decisions Help Criminal Band to Escape Punishment

SUFFERINGS OF 'FIENDS'

Throng Drug Stores, Seek Out Unscrupulous Doctors and Chemists

This is the second article of a series on the alarming spread of the drug evil in Philadelphia. More than 15,000 persons are slaves of 'dope,' which is smuggled into the city by a criminal syndicate, in spite of the Harrison act.

BY HENRY JAMES BUXTON

When the underworld was forced by the workings of the Harrison act into the light of day for the first time in its history in this city last summer, when by the hundreds the "dope fiends" fumbled for their untimely bread of life, had to take the unheard-of step of publicly confessing their vice, gathering from all corners of the city to Ninth and Chestnut streets, and there seeking the office of United States District Attorney Kane to beg him for relief, it seemed that the narcotic drug evil here was in its death throes.

The Federal law was doing its work, with the might and prestige of half a continent behind it. The Harrison act prohibits all persons from selling or giving away narcotic drugs, except on a physician's prescription. More than that, Section 8, most vital to fighting the attempts to evade the law in big cities, makes it a crime punishable by five years in prison or a $2000 fine or both to have the drugs in one's possession unless a license has been taken out, and licenses are, of course, obtainable only by physicians and druggists.

UNSCRUPULOUS DOCTORS

Frants at their plight—For it is impossible to stop the drug habit suddenly—those among the 15,000 "fiends" in this city and vicinity who dreaded to confess and receive treatment by the reduction system at hospitals found what seemed the weakest link in the law.

It was awful. Sometimes we had forty or fifty drug fiends in our store at one time. Groups of eight or ten would pool their money, each putting in a dime or a quarter. Some of them would nearly collapse while they were waiting for their prescriptions to be filled.

LAW IS CRIPPLED

This drug store acted within its rights in filling prescriptions evidently in proper form. Others did not wait for the prescriptions, but sold the drugs to those they could trust.

For many of the "fiends" are members of respectable families—scores of them are skilled for the conservation of health and entrusted with work requiring consummate property—lawyers, bankers, even surgeons, men who do their work well, but who are trembling on the verge of disaster.

Internal revenue officers were elated at the success of the Harrison act. Social workers saw an early solution of the problem. The "dope syndicate" was cowed and dug itself into the subterranean chambers of the Tenderloin.

Then, like a bolt from the blue, came the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of the "dope fiends."
