SHOULD A WORKING GIRL MARRY A COLLEGE MAN?

Is It Necessary to Have Tastes in Common to Make a Happy Marriage, or Is Love Enough? Asks Correspondent

CAN two persons of opposite tastes get managed to make a fairly good meal out of what looked to be a hopelessly excluan old question my correspondent asks sive menu. I suppose the modern ver-me to solve and as impossible to foretell sion of the tale would be that they made as the outcome of the great war.

"Dear madam," writes she, "will you please give me your advice as to what shall do? I am a working girl, engaged to a man ten years my senior. This man has a responsible position in the office where I am employed. He is a college graduate and has many friends who are both wealthy and cultured. I have not even a high school education, because circumstances forced me to seck employment before I got through school. Now, I this man too much to make him feel the least bit of embarrassment on my account before strangers. There are many little things about deportment that I don't know, and many more things about history and literature and current he can teach you, if you have no other events that I never heard of.

"Do you really think that it is possible for a girl of my type to make this man happy? We do not enjoy the same things, we do not read the same books, we do not know the same class of people. I want to know your own opinion in the matter before I act, because if I made a mistake it would ruin my whole life.

"GEORGIA." I doubt if any one would take the reaponsibility of answering your question definitely, Georgia; at least, I won't. The fact that you realize your limitations is very much in your favor. Nothing could be a greater stimulus to you to learn the things you wish to know than the fact that you need that knowledge and the affection you have for your flance.

You remember the nursery rhyme about Jack Spratt and his wife. They gia's problem for her?

To Make Christmas Gifts

may be a little early to begin Christmas but I am asking Cornerites for bits of n. silks or velvets that I might convert pretty fancy work bags or lace for baby I do nest embroilery and should like time in the way of alerts and pilow cases mbroider: also guilt piews J. C. R. MRB. J. C. R.

One "forehanded woman" whom I know begins preparations for "next Christmas" upon the first of January. She boast truthfully that she is never hurried or be-hindhand with her Christmas gifts. It is certainly wise to forecast the demands of the holiday season by six months or there-abouts. Hence the request of our esteemed member for materials for the graceful love work she has in mind should be honored at delay-and generously.

Front Room Needs Carpet

scrapple. Can't you effect a similar compromise?

Why not talk this over with your flance? Tell him that you want to study. Get him to read his kind of books to you and to tell you why he likes them. Make up your mind to like his kind of amusements. If you do not enjoy symphony concerts, or Bernard Shaw (for which nobody can blame you), or G. K. Chesterton, or the works of Matisse and his assoclates, don't make a bluff that you do. Develop your own tastes to the best of your ability. Preserve your own individuality by all means; if you become a mental image of your flance your attractiveness is lessened. Learn all that means of instruction.

The points of etiquette which you feel shaky can be cleared up by asking some one who knows these things. You have no reason to feel ashamed of your ignorance. Any one who is well bred will answer your questions in the spirit of helpfulness that you expect from your friends. Don't be afraid to meet his friends. Be natural, courteous and considerate.

More than this, Georgia, I cannot say, The outcome of a match like this is on the knees of the gods. No two marriages are the same. They are as different as the autumn leaves you see on the ground -alike in general appearance, but each one differing in some slight detail of color or form.

Short of Pieces

De you know of any kind correspondent who has allk pieces she dees not want? I have begun a slik patchwork quilt and find I have not enough pieces to finish it. I will pay postase if any one has some to share, and will certainly appreciat-them. Perhaps some day I could help give in some way to a member of the Corner. MADELINE L.

We have been chary with requests for patchwork pieces of late, being unwilling to weary the patient benefactors who have reweary the patient benefactors who have re-piled so long and generously to our repeated calls for these. But, with characteristic aversion to incomplete enterprises, we can-not overlook this poor woman's plight. Let us have bits of ribbon and sik, satin and velvet to enable her to carry forward to a friumphant conclusion what is now an eye-more and heartache sore and heartache.

GOOD FORM

Good form queries should be ad-dressed to Deborah Rush, written on one side of the paper and signed with full name and address, though initials ONLY will be published upon request. This column will appear in Monday's, Wednesday's and Friday's Evening Ledger. Ledger.

Knife and Fork for Fruit

Dear Deburah Rush-Is it the proper thing to eat fruit with a knife and fork? I am told that this is done in England. What is the cortest, way here?

way here? INQUIRER. Using a knife and fork for fruit at breakfast or any meal at which uncooked fruit is served is a distinctly English cus-tom. It has been infroduced in this country by a number of persons who are especially fond of English ideas, but it is not usually and of English ideas is the server is cordone here. Either way, therefore, is cor-rect. An orange, for instance, may be cut in half and eaten with a spoon or it may be peeled with a sharp knife and placed se-curely on the end of a fork and eaten in this way. A pear or a peach may be peeled this way. A pear or a peach may be peeled with a knife and sliced and eaten with a fork, but one is apt to lose much of the juice of the fruit when manipulating it with a fork. Fruit should always be peeled be-fore eating, but the use of a fork when eat-ing is a matter of personal taste purely.

Put Bride's Initials

Dear Debergh Rush-We wish to send a wed-ding present to a man of our accusalntance and we do not know his wife. They were mar-ried last week. Would it be all right to have ibs aliver we intend to send marked with his initials or with her married initials. A says even if we do not know the bride we should send the present to her and mark it with her malden name initials. Would like to hear your opinion.

A wedding present should always be marked with the initials of the bride's maiden name. It is not in good form to use the bridegroom's initials nor the bride's married name if the gift is a wedding present.

Do Not Write

Do Not Write Dear Deborah Rush-About a month ago I was taken through one of the large hosiery milis in this city. The manager of this mili gave each one of our perty a box of hosiery. Of course, we thanked him, but I have been wondering whether it would be proper to write and thank him and tell him how well the hosiery wore. EDTTHE. As you thanked the manager at the time, there is not only no necessity for writing a letter a month later, but it would be rather bad form to do so. DEBORAH RUSH.
