

SEWING ADVICE—COMMENT OF M'LISS—CORRESPONDENCE—MARION HARLAND

HOW MANY WOMEN ARE YOU?
IS QUERY M'LISS PUTS

Those Gifted With Fatal Fascination, Eminent Writer Tells Us, Are Always Possessed of as Many Temperaments as Chameleon Has Colors

HOW many women are you? You can't just be one any more and get away with it. At least you can't from the feminine point of view.

remote whims, tinsel and spangles for the capricious, scintillant frames of mind, dull blacks for introspective, meditative poses, baby blues and pinks and immaculate whites when one is feeling very young and foolish, and almost any woman could be as different as a chameleon. But few women can afford so comprehensive a wardrobe, and must, perforce, unless they have naturally barometrical temperaments to depend upon, content themselves with being just a few tones to one or two men.

SEEN IN THE SHOPS

INEXPENSIVE AND ATTRACTIVE FROCK

FINE pin-striped percale is used for this practical little frock, which may serve equally well for school or play. The collar, cuffs and belt are of fine white linene. The latter being trimmed with crocheted buttons. The collar and cuffs are finished with double rows of self-colored or contrasting stitching. This is placed slightly above the normal waist line, attached to box plaits at the front and back reaching the length of the dress.

The frock comes in sizes from two to six years, in blue, corn or black pin-stripes, with fancy stitching in blue, corn and red, respectively. It is very moderately priced at $1.25.

The name of the shop where these articles may be purchased will be supplied by the Editor of the Woman's Page, Evening Ledger, 605 Chestnut street. The request must be accompanied by a stamped self-addressed envelope and must mention the date on which the article appeared.

THE WOMAN WHO SEWS

Readers who desire help with their dress problems will address correspondents in the Fashion Experts, care of the Editor of the Woman's Page, the Evening Ledger.

TRULY the queerest fashion season is ushered in with the golden leaves and velvet touches this year. Any style is distinctive, because each gown, coat, hat and suit is a law unto itself. The association of women's tailor, or whatever it is that sets out to define the styles every year, solemnly decreed longer skirts, panner hips, no hoop and a summer silhouette that we had last season. And with true feminine contrariness women set about selecting the fullest, widest skirts they could find and the most distended of hoops.

Dear Madam—Your assistance will be very highly appreciated in this matter. I have a dress of gray wool in black and white (sailor collar (deep back) and cuffs of same. I would like to add a good looking element to it with deep blue skirt, panel back and front, with lower skirt gathered up like the skirt worn up the waist, but I don't know how to do it. I would like to see what you think of it. I am also sending sample of green material, which I would like to see if you could suggest a style for me, what trimming and so forth. Thanking you very sincerely for past favors, I remain, gratefully, Mrs. G.

I would use chiffon or georgette in self-tones on the material you enclose. A bodice of georgette, surplus style, cut to a V back and front, will make you look thinner. Have a narrow girde of your material outlined with iridescent beaded trimming, which you can buy by the yard. Get something with blue, purple, gold and green in it. Make your skirt fairly full and fitted slightly at the hips. A cord, instead of a hem, makes a pretty addition, if you care for it. You might veil the entire gown in black chiffon or net.

Dear Madam—What kind of lace would you get to use on a fresh pink georgette blouse? You might use it at the neck and waist to make it fancy. Your advice will be appreciated. N. G.

Real flit and Valenciennes would be best. Cluny—the fine kind—and baby Irish are also used.

Letters to the Editor of the Woman's Page

Dear M'LISS—A recent inquiry in your column from some one who was asking questions of a geological friend of yours, who told me to write and ask you if you could put me in touch with the latter. I am at the present time enjoying myself in my new hobby—tracing the branches of my family tree—less to know just what are the usually known and am now at a standstill. I am sometimes at a loss to know just what I should do. I have a list of names and dates of births and deaths, but I am not sure that I should put them in a book or not. I am sure that you would be glad to help me. I am sure that you would be glad to help me. I am sure that you would be glad to help me.

Population Statistics of 1911

Gertrude M. asks what is the largest city in the world for population and commerce. I give you the figures, according to an atlas of 1911: London, England, to my knowledge for years is and always has been the largest city in the world, by a large margin for population. It is also the leading commercial city and financial center. Greater London has a population of 7,252,963. Paris, France, ranks second for population, which is 2,888,110. New York comes third in population, which is 2,762,522. As a commercial and financial center, New York comes next to London. The figures for population have, no doubt, increased in the last few years, but London leads.

Marriage of Jefferson Davis

In an "Abridged History of the State of Iowa" is an account written by Clay Dillon of the elopement and marriage of Jefferson Davis to Knox Taylor. According to Dillon, the elopement was from Prairie du Chien, where Davis was stationed to Genoa, Ill., where they were married by Elijah Charles, Judge of the Probate Court of Jo Daviess County. They sailed on a boat called the White Swan. Afterward the pair went to Louisville, Ky., and from there to Lexington, Ky., where they received mail from General Taylor that they should be married "decently and in order" by an ordained minister. They were again married by the Rev. Mr. Ancho, a minister of the Church of England, at Lexington, Ky. This occurred in 1835. I have in my possession a copy of the history.

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB

One never knows until one tries what one can do in one's small niche. I never have remarked a more impersonal remark than which...

MARION HARLAND'S CORNER

Glue for Panama Hats. WHILE studying abroad I lived with a French family, of which the father was in the wholesale hat business. He gave us all pieces of translucent hard glue and showed us exactly how to block our Panama hats. I brought one piece home with me, but have long since used it up and have never since been able to get more. If any other reader can tell me where it may be bought, I will gladly give the reward of one dollar for reblocking, provided she still needs them. MRS. M. B. H.

Potato Water as Cleanser. I wish to say whenever any of my warts get faded from coat linings I take two or three raw potatoes and cut them into small pieces without peeling. Boil them in cold water. Immerse the whole wart or articles in the potato water, holding the faded parts in it until the stain disappears. This is an unfailing remedy, but, of course, on white goods. I never tried geriatric crepe, but see no reason why it should not work upon any white material. SELMA K.

The Washerwoman's Song

I see that much is said in the Corner about the Washerwoman's Song. It is by Eugene F. Ware, and I prize it highly. To me it is a wonderful poem. I might have some time to find it, but I am willing to hunt for it should any one desire a copy. I will send you a copy if you will send me a stamped envelope. I shall mail a copy. MARY A. B.

Slip of Stone Plant

In answer to the query of Ione, who asks about stone plants, I have two large ones. They might also be called ice plants, for they are as cold as ice the warmest day in summer. I should be pleased to give you this curiosity to Ione if she will answer my letter. MRS. J. T. P.
