Germans Claim Victories in Transylvania and Macedonia Operations

LONDON, Sept. 22.—The Rumanians have again taken the offensive against Field Marshal Mackensen's army of Germans, Bulgarians and Turks, after beating off hostile attacks in the Dobrudja.

An official statement from the German War Office this afternoon reported that the Rumanians attacked near the Danube and southwest of Topraler, where the Germans claimed a victory in Thursday's fighting. In both places the attacks were repulsed.

The Bulgarian War Office reported that about 20,000 Rumanians attacked the Bulgarian wing Thursday, but were beaten off. The Bulgarians counter-attacked and pursued the Rumanians until Thursday night. The Rumanians apparently reorganized during the night and launched fresh attacks early yesterday.

In both Transylvania and Macedonia, however, the Teutonic War Offices announced victories over the Allies. German forces have captured the Vulkan pass through the Transylvanian Alps and now threaten Rumania with a fresh invasion on the northwest.

East of the Vardar River, in Macedonia, the Bulgarians announced the capture of two villages and a camp from the Allies.

The fighting on the Russian front is slackening, official statements from both Petrograd and Berlin indicate.

RUMANIANS HALT RETREAT
IN DOBRUDJA, BERLIN SAYS;
ALLIED ATTACKS FAIL

BERLIN, Sept. 22.—The Rumanians have halted their retreat in the Dobrudja and are attacking the German-Bulgarian line, it was officially announced this afternoon. Rumanian attacks southwest of Topraler and along the Danube were repulsed.

Severe fighting is going on in Transylvania, where the Teutonic forces captured Vulkan Pass three days ago on the northwestern frontier of Rumania. The Rumanians attacked on both sides of Hermannstadt, but were repulsed with heavy losses. Near St. Janesghyur Teutonic advanced posts were withdrawn.

In Macedonia the Allies have evacuated south of Belasica Planina as far as Krushtalnik.

Allied attacks on the Somme front yesterday were unsuccessful. The French attacked on the Rancourt-Cambles line and the British attempted an advance near Courcellette. Eleven enemy aeroplanes were shot down.

The fighting in the Carpathians is slackening. Russian attacks near Korytnica failed.

The text of the official report follows: Western front—Army of Prince Rupprecht—North of the Somme the battle was resumed. The French attacked the Cambles-Rancourt line without success. The British did not attempt any advance near Courcellette. On the night of September 21 English attacks on Monquet farm and Courcellette were repulsed.

North of the Somme we shot down eleven enemy aeroplanes.

Eastern theater—Near Korytnica Russian attacks failed.

Army of Archduke Carl—There is no change north of the Carpathians. In the Carpathians fighting is slackening. Heavy attacks were unsuccessful.

In the Siebenburgen (Transylvania) sector, on both sides of the Hermannstadt, two Rumanian divisions attacked our positions. They were repulsed with losses. In the course of counter-attacks we made three officers and 325 men prisoners. Near St. Janesghyur our advanced posts were withdrawn during the night. We have taken Vulkan Pass.

Balkan—Army of Field Marshal von Mackensen—In the Dobrudja sector Rumanian attacks near the Danube, southwest of Topraler were repulsed.

In Macedonia the enemy made futile attacks. The territory south of the Belaschitz plateau as far as the Krushtalnik was evacuated by the enemy.

Bancroft's Carelessness Enables Smith to Score in Initial Period

SCHULTZ OPPOSES PHILS

By CHANDLER D. RICHTER
PHILADELPHIA BALL PARK, Sept. 22.—The Reds got off to a lead on Alexander the Great, in the first game of the double-header with the Phillies today. Carelessness on the part of Dave Bancroft put Alexander in trouble and gave the Reds their start.

Jack Smith, the Montreal recruit, who has been hitting the ball at a terrific clip, opened the inning with a solid single to left and after Groh had fled to Cravath, Roush singled cleanly to center. Smith went to third on the hit and should have gone no further, but Bancroft carelessly muffed Paskert's throw and did not watch Smith at third. The ball only rolled a few feet from Bancroft, but Smith made a dash for the plate and scored.

Henie Schultz, Mathewson's star south-paw, who has been pitching brilliant ball, was picked to face the Phillies.

Besides Smith, Mathewson had two other recruits in the game. One of them was Bill Kopf, the utility man for the Athletics in 1914, while the other was catcher Emil Huhn, the former Federal Leaguer.

Kopf had been with the Baltimore International League since leaving the Mackmen and was looked upon as the best minor league shortstop in the East.

Schultz was wild at the start of the game, passing both Paskert and Bancroft. Stock failed to sacrifice, forcing Paskert at third, and Whitted and Cravath went out on easy chances, spoiling a promising rally.

The ideal weather and the closeness of the race attracted a large crowd, despite the lowly position of the Reds. Fully 17,000 fans were on hand when the game started and they were still coming, indications pointing to a record crowd.

SAID WIFE KILLED HERSELF;
SHE FACES HIM IN COURT

Camden Man Held on Bigamy Charge by Justice Sheridan

A wife thought to be dead suddenly put in appearance with the result that her husband, Daniel Hartman Bates, also known as Daniel Hartman and Daniel Donaldson, was held in $100 bail by Justice of the Peace Sheridan, Camden, today, accused of bigamy.

Mrs. S. Genevieve Snyder Hartman, wife No. 1, read in the papers of her suicide at Stone Harbor, following a quarrel with her husband, who left her. Tracing the origin of the story to her husband, detectives located him in Camden. He had married Miss Mildred B. Walter, of 403 Walnut street, September 8, after telling friends that his first wife had committed suicide, according to the police. The supposed suicide faced Hartman in court today.

When members of the firm entered the place this morning they were hardly able to open the doors because of the articles scattered about the floor. The police of the Fourth and Race streets station were notified and are making an investigation in an effort to discover the culprits. According to members of the firm, spite is believed to have been the motive which prompted the vandalism.

The police discovered finger prints on the glass door, which were photographed. A number of blood stains on the scissor and the door led to the belief that the miscreants received severe cuts from the broken glass when they entered through the door.

William S. McCartney, son of James S. McCartney, general manager of the Hotel Majestic, fell from an upper window of his home at Ulva, N. Y., this morning and was impaled on a fence. It is believed he will die.

Young McCartney, who is an engineer, went to Ulva some time ago, where he was acting as an inspector of war munitions for the British Government. He visited his father here about two weeks ago. He was unmarried. His father left shortly before noon in the hope that he would reach the bedside before he died.

MISS STIRLING

MRS. VANDERBECK

Southern Champion Defeats
National Titleholder in Berthelmy Cup Final

WINS BY THREE AND ONE

Big Gallery Follows Players
Around Over Links at Noble
in Final Round

NOBLE, Pa., Sept. 22.—Miss Alexa W. Stirling, golden-haired gem of Georgia, overthrew the woman golf champion of the United States today at Huntington Valley in the final for the Berthelmy Cup. She won in a hard-fought struggle, 3 and 1, from Mrs. Clarence H. Vanderbeck, champion.

Miss Stirling, nineteen-year-old champion of all Dixieland, was two down at the turn and showed her wonderful nerve by shooting a forty on the last hole, a woman's record. She did not hole out on the home hole, but had two putts for a six.

A large and gorgeously bedecked gallery followed the match under the perfect cloudless skies, and was gripped to the end by the marvelous shots of the two feminine stars. Miss Stirling was beaten last year in the semifinals for the national championship in a twenty-two-hole match.

"I'm going to make up for that today," said the youthful Atlanta champion, before the match, and she did. She got better on every shot coming home, after she had been missing everything on the green.

One of the most brilliant shots ever made by a woman in Philadelphia was made by Miss Stirling at the 14th. Her drive was fubbed somewhat and only carried to the bunker.

From behind the three-foot barrier, the little purple-hatted figure stooped and made a sturdy swing at her ball, buried in the rough. The club head found it sweetly and amidst the gasps and cries of the onlookers, Miss Stirling saw her shot carry all the 190-yard distance in a white line right straight to the pin. Miss Stirling missed the putt, but had a splendid four after the drive. Mrs. Vanderbeck had a fine drive and an elegant high flier to the green. But she was above the pin and needed three putts.

The thrilling match was all Mrs. Vanderbeck's for the first ten holes, at the end of which she was three up. She went out in 44 and was going beautifully. It looked impossible for the little southern champion to overcome the lead built up by the steady national champion. But Miss Stirling was even fours for six straight holes of the second half, which is almost unbelievable for a woman. Mrs. Vanderbeck was four over fours and rapidly dropped back.

VANDALS WREAK HAVOC ON LADIES' FASH MODES

Use Scissors and Acids on Stock in Arch Street Loft

Vandals, armed with scissors and several bottles of carbolic acid, broke into the establishment of Goldstein & Eisenberg, manufacturers of ladies' garments, at 530 Arch street, during the night and destroyed stock and fixtures valued over $2000.

The agents of destruction entered the building by breaking the glass of a door, cut the right sleeves and skirt fronts of 150 women's suits, sprayed carbolic acid over more than 300 yards of goods, placed acid in the machines, the pressing irons and even cut the rubber gas iron hoses, in addition to turning everything in the establishment upside down.

When members of the firm entered the place this morning they were hardly able to open the doors because of the articles scattered about the floor. The police of the Fourth and Race streets station were notified and are making an investigation in an effort to discover the culprits. According to members of the firm, spite is believed to have been the motive which prompted the vandalism.

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL
At 3 o'clock this afternoon a couple of football teams will mingle on the green at Franklin Field, tear up said sward with their cleated shoes and officially open the 1916 football season in and around Philadelphia. At the same hour other teams will tear up the sward on other gridirons and also will officially open the season in their respective districts. This is the football dope for today, and everything will go off as per schedule regardless of the baseball matinees which seem to be so popular this year.

According to the football guide, last Saturday was kick-off day, but no honest-to-goodness stuff was put on, although one game was played. California clashed with the Olympic Club out on the coast, and it was such an important battle that we don't know the score yet. Penn frolicked with the Farm School, but that, too, cannot be classed as a big league performance.

THEY-OUT FOR PENN
The game this afternoon between Penn and Vincome A. A. is not on the schedule and was arranged by Coach Fowell early this week to give his possibilities a chance to try out some of the plays he has taught them. For two weeks the Red and Blue candidates have been rehearsing at Langhorne and the time has come to see what they can do against a strange team.

No doubt the followers of Old Penn will be agreeably surprised when they see the team in action. Fowell has the same eleven that made such a miserable showing last year and is trying to convert it into a winning combination. He is using his "miracle system" that put Washington and Jefferson on the gridiron map, and, judging from reports, his new changes are developing into first-class players. It will be interesting to see just how good they are this afternoon.

In meeting Vincome, Penn has departed from a long-standing custom. Year after year the management has ignored all athletic clubs, preferring to take on college teams instead. Fowell, however, realized that he could not get the practice against any of the smaller elevens at this time of the year and Vincome was asked to play.

There will be no admission charged, and

TO BURY THOMAS MARTINDALE, NOTED HUNTER, ON TUESDAY

Body Will Arrive Here From British Columbia Tomorrow

Funeral services for the late Thomas Martindale, who died while on a hunting trip in British Columbia, will be held next Tuesday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, in the parlors of the Oliver H. Bair undertaking establishment at 1820 Chestnut street. The Rev. Dr. Floyd W. Tomkins, of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, Nineteenth and Walnut streets, will conduct the services. Private interment will be made at Westminister Cemetery.

A telegram from Mr. Martindale's youngest son, James J. Martindale, of Detroit, dated from Minneapolis, to Thomas C. Martindale, of this city, advises that the body will arrive in Philadelphia some time tomorrow.

The funeral arrangements were made this morning, after the message was received. Dr. W. Wayne Babcock, who accompanied Mr. Martindale on his trip, and James J. Martindale, who joined Dr. Babcock in the West, sent word that they expected to leave Chicago today on the Broadway Limited and would arrive here either tomorrow morning or afternoon.

10-CENT LOAF OF BREAD
URGED AS STANDARD

Master Bakers Argue That Large Size Means Cheapness and Better Quality

Change of the standard loaf of bread from the five-cent to the ten-cent size was recommended to every baker of the city today in a circular letter sent out by the National Association of Master Bakers. Similar letters were sent to bakers of all parts of the United States.

According to the letter, the evidence of careful cost accounting has proved that the ten-cent loaf is the most economical to manufacture and to market, and represents the maximum value to the consumer. It is said that the change would mean the saving of $125,000,000 annually to the people of the United States, figuring on the basis of a consumption of 5,000,000,000 small loaves at present.

The claim is also made that the quality of the larger size loaf is superior to that of the five-cent loaf, even though made of the same dough, on account of the different time required in baking and the smaller amount of crust in comparison to the entire weight of dough.

In view of the stress taken by the larger bakers of the city and of the chain stores to maintain the five-cent size, it was said by a number of the smaller bakers that no concerted action was likely to be taken in Philadelphia.

Patriotism Lesson to Be Taught
by Proposed Celebrations

Plan to Greet Soldiers of City Indorsed Here

HOME-COMING celebration for Philadelphia troops boosted by city officials and prominent citizens. Mayor Smith: "I am in favor of giving a warm reception to our soldier boys." State Senator Edwin H. Vore: "We should show the boys that Philadelphia appreciates what they have been doing on the Mexican border." President of Select Council James E. Lannon said: "The Philadelphia boys went to the front with a fine spirit of patriotism, and Philadelphia should respond with a home-coming celebration that will long be remembered." Dr. Russell R. Conwell said: "It is our duty to extend the warm hand of appreciation to our soldier boys. Every patriotic citizen should parade."

A movement to give the Philadelphia troops a rousing reception when they return from duty on the Mexican border next month, was warmly indorsed today by city officials and prominent citizens in all walks of life.

Many were of the opinion that the home-coming of the Philadelphia soldier boys should be made the occasion of a peace jubilee which would rival the festivities attending the return of the Philadelphia troops who participated in the Spanish-American war in 1898.

It was the consensus of opinion that not only would such a celebration show Philadelphia's appreciation for the service of the men on the border, but it would be the means of teaching a powerful lesson in patriotism and preparedness.

Many of these soldier boys when they marched away for service to their country were raw recruits and unused to military discipline. They will return trained and seasoned troops and members of the Old Guard in this city say that it will be good for Philadelphia to watch a review of a brigade of real soldiers.

MAYOR SMITH IN LINE

Mayor Thomas E. Smith, when interviewed at his home in Atlantic City concerning the proposition for a jubilee, said:

"Our soldier boys certainly should have a warm reception. Just what form this reception should take I have not decided. I would have to talk with men who are closer in touch with the situation than I am. Whatever public sentiment demands I am willing to give all in my power."

State Senator Edwin H. Vore said: "I will support heartily any movement for a rousing home-coming for our soldier boys. They have done their duty at the front without fear or favor, and they should be made to know that Philadelphia appreciates their service. We should have a parade and maybe patriotic exercises at Independence Hall."

President of Select Council James E. Lannon said: "The boys went to the Mexican border with the idea that they were going to see service. All of them were ready to give up their lives for their country if necessary. The fact that they saw no active service does not detract one iota from the spirit of patriotism by them. Philadelphia should show its appreciation for this fine spirit of patriotism displayed by them."

Philadelphia should show its appreciation for this fine spirit of patriotism. We must give them a reception which will demonstrate to them that we realize what they have done for their country. The Mayor and members of Council should participate in this reception. We should have a parade in which members of the Old Guard, Grand Army, Vets of Veterans, Spanish War Veterans and marines and sailors at League Island should participate. We should not half do this thing, but should give the boys a home-coming that will long be remembered."

Howard B. French, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said: "I favor a review of the returning troops in front of the Union League. Such a demonstration would provide a convincing lesson in patriotism and preparedness for Philadelphia. I am heartily in favor in giving the boys a good home-coming."

Wendell P. Bowman, member of George G. Meade Post, G. A. R., and past judge advocate of the Grand Army, Department of Pennsylvania, said:

"The boys should be given an escort of veterans the minute they land in Philadelphia. We should have a parade, and refreshments should be served to the home-comingers."

The Rev. Dr. Russell R. Conwell, educator, lecturer and a veteran of the Civil War, said:

"It is our duty to have a celebration which will show our soldier boys of Philadelphia that we appreciate the fine thing they have done. These boys went to the border with the expectancy of facing battle, and yet not one of them flinched in his duty. They are coming home better and more soldierly men. Philadelphia's response to the patriotism of her loyal sons should be spontaneous. No one with an ounce of patriotism will oppose such a celebration."
