

Photo by Evening Ledger Staff Photographer.
"DAREDEVIL JOHNNY" REYNOLDS IS UP TO HIS OLD TRICKS
Although he has been out of the hospital only a short time, Johnny Reynolds came back to Philadelphia long enough to mount to the top of the Bell Telephone building and balance himself on four chairs far above Arch street and the Parkway.

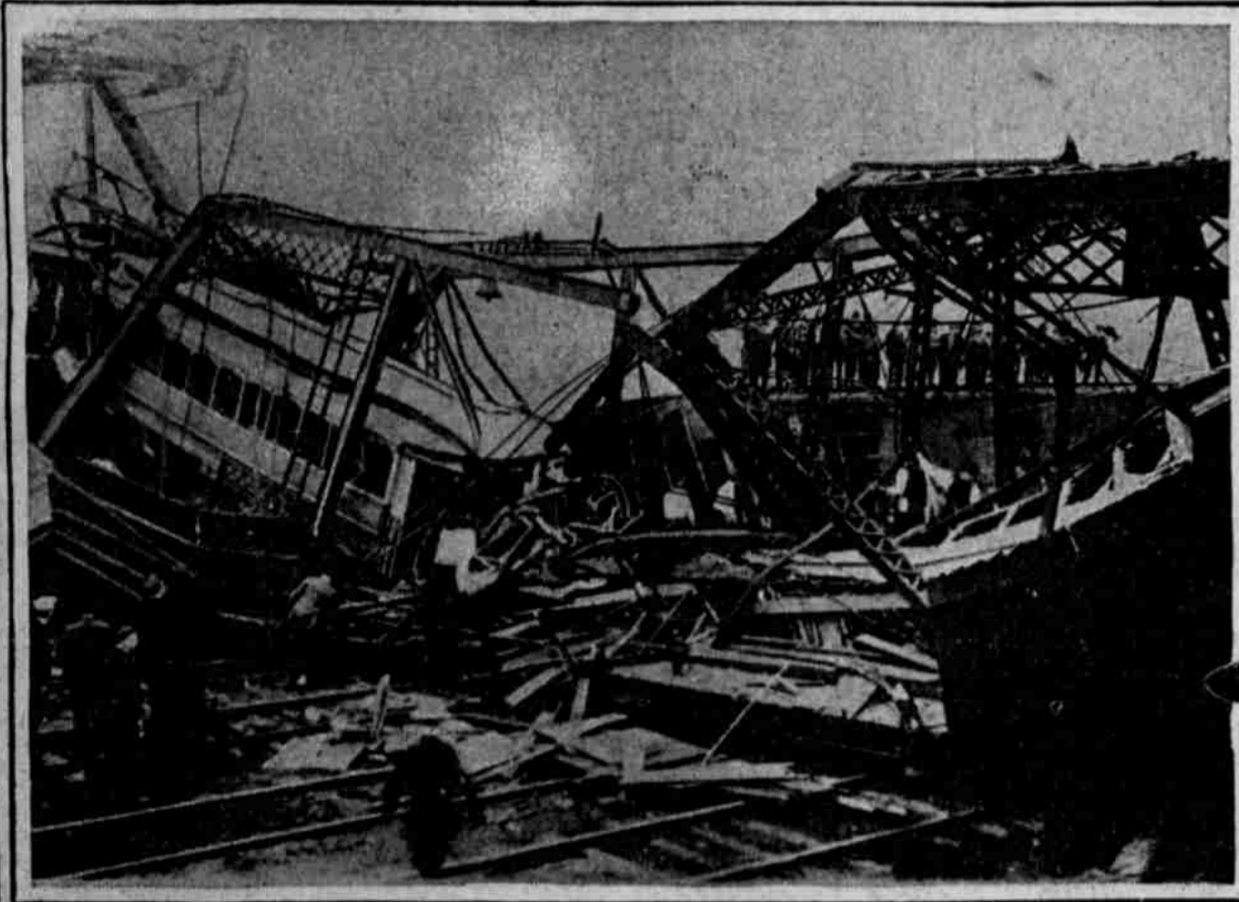

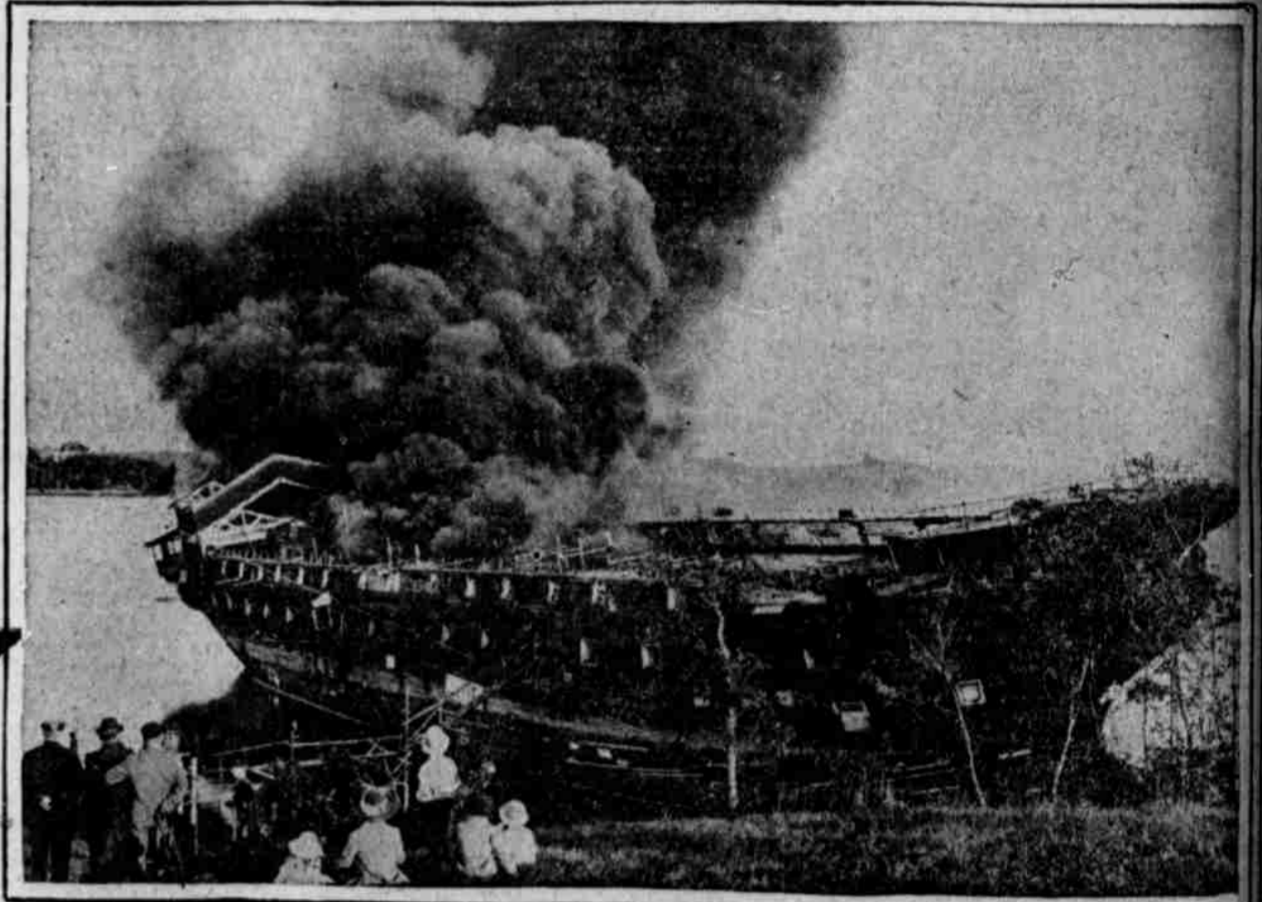

Photo by Evening Ledger Staff Photographer.
CALMLY DANGLING HIS FEET OVER ARCH STREET
Johnny Reynolds, after defying death in the manner shown in the picture to the right, sat on a chair balanced on a broomstick, which, in turn, was stretched between two chairs standing within an inch of the edge of the Bell Telephone building, and calmly let his feet stretch out into the chasm.

Copyright, International Film Service.
FAMOUS OLD FRIGATE FRANKLIN GOES UP IN SMOKE
Hitler's Sons, of Philadelphia, purchased the old wooden dreadnought Franklin, built sixty-one years ago, and burned it to the water's edge after having the decrepit vessel towed to Eastport, Me. The United States Government stripped the vessel of several tons of metal, but the Philadelphia firm expects to more than compensate itself by the yield of copper that will come from the ruins.

Photo by International News Service.
CLEVELAND BRIDGE COLLAPSES AFTER FATAL TROLLEY WRECK
This is a general view of the wreckage of the West Third Street Bridge, Cleveland, Ohio, after the structure collapsed from the shock and vibration attending a trolley smash-up. Two persons were killed and many others were seriously injured.

PENNSYLVANIA NATIONAL GUARD IS CONDUCTING AN ACTIVE RECRUITING CAMPAIGN
The entrance to the Second Regiment Armory, Broad street and Susquehanna avenue, is plastered with appeals intended to captivate young men desirous of adventure. From left to right are Major B. A. Peacock, Captain W. F. Mackey and Private Lawrence Thome.

GEORGE HEERSCHAFT, MAYOR OF TAR DITCH, THE BOAT-HOUSE VILLAGE ON THE SCHUYLKILL, OUT GUNNING FOR LAWBREAKERS

AUSTRIAN COMMANDER HAS NARROW ESCAPE
The photograph shows what an Italian shell did to the house in which the Austria commander at Gorizia had established headquarters. It was only by the narrowest of margins that he escaped death.