SHIPS HUNT SUBMERSIBLES OFF U. S. COAST; NINE VESSELS SUNK

216 U-BOAT SURVIVORS LANDED BY U. S. WARSHIPS: NOT ONE INJURED DURING ATTACKS

NEWPORT, R. L. Oct. S.—Four American destroyers with 31d passengers and numbers of the crews of six vessels torpedued by German submarines off Nantucket, have reached Newport. The Ericeson, Jensen, Drayton and Benham, all with survivors aboard, arrived at dawn.

The four destroyers carried submarine victim passengers as follows:

Ericason, 81; Drayton, 68; Benham, 26, and Jensen, 31.

Latest information is that there has been no loss of life.

Dripping with brine, which stood out like swest on their steel sides from prodigious efforts of rescuing passengers of six torpedeed merchant ships, the four United States destroyers brought the first tories of the European war carried to America's doorstep.

White powerful searchlights flashed and whisties sounded, the destroyer Ericason—the first to arrive—nosed her way back from the scene of operations of Germany's U-boats, striking terror to shipping off the New England coast.

PLIGHT OF SURVIVORS

PLIGHT OF SURVIVORS

Of the eighty-one persons picked up from small boats by the Ericsson, not one was injured. Virtually all, however, had lost every personal belonging. They were without money or baggage of any description. They had only the clothes which they wore. For the first time in their lives officera and men of the Ericsson saw babies cooing en the grim warship. Fourteen babies were in the boats the Ericsson found bobbing on the water which had become the grave of the steamship Stephano, bound from St. John's to New York. Many were sleeping peacefully in the arms of their mothers or nurses as the lifeboats rolled and rocked with the gentle swell of the sea. Almost all night the boats had drifted. Only the dim light of a lantern in the life-saving craft and the soft rays of the moon, shifting intermittently through the clouds, served to light the scene, which but a few hours before had been one of American peace.

LOSS OF THE STEPHANO

LOSS OF THE STEPHANO

gatherings in salmons and hables hurriedly wakened from aleep to be hustled over the side and into lifeboats. Only a short distance away floated a sea-green monster. The submarine rested low in the water, her bulging sides and pointed snout giving her the appearance of a giant man-hilling fish. Four thousand miles from a home port, theoretically in "enemy waters" and with no known base for supplies or fuel, the Teuton was unidosing her wrath at the very doors of America. When the first alarm was given and a shot came screaming across the hows of the Stephano, many of the passengars refused to believe they were being attacked by a submarine. They laughed when an officer rushed by shouting that all must don life preservers and take to the boats. But the serious mice of the children, the hurrying about of the crew and a glimpee from the dock of the ship convinced them.

THOUSANDS AT WATERFRONT

THOUSANDS AT WATERFRONT THOUSANDS AT WATERFRONT Thousands thronged the Newport waterfront as the destroyers put into nort with their cargues of human freight picked up from the sea. Newport society turned out in force. Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt sent her limousine down to the wharf, and four women pasengers from the Stephano were taken to her home. Other society women also sent their cars to the dock, and mothers and bables taken from the U-boat's victim ships are being cared for today in the pulatial homes of Newport's elect.

Stepharfo's passengers and crew had their first meal in sixteen hours.

CHEF IN THIRD ATTACK A. C. Tickell, chef of the Stephano, cele-brated his third submarine sinking. He was on the troop ship Marquette when she was sunk without warning in the Darda-nelles. Shortly after this Tickell was on the troop ship Manitou, which was sunk off Malta by a German submarine. The chef was wounded. Tickell's only remark today was:

"What difference do a few submarines make? What the hell do I care for sub-marines?"

This last remark of Tickell's might stand

This hast remark of Tickel's might stand as expressing the attitude of virtually all of the passengers and members of the crews of the stricken ships arriving here today. Almost without exception they took the stuation calmly and said they were not frightened when the first shot was sent whintling across their vessel's bows or when they were being put into the lifeboats.

STEWARDESS NOT ALARMED

Miss McDonald, stewardess of the Stephano, was one of the last to leave the LOSS OF THE STEPHANO

The passengers of the Stephano took to she small boats at 6.30 Sunday evening.

They were adrift until about 2.30 this morning.

There was no sign of hysteria or fright as men, women and even an eight-year-old and the stephano's crew, told of seeing the perinage of the U-boat some distance from the ship before the submersible actually appeared in full bloom. He hurried below to report, but heard the shot fired at the Stephano before he could give warning.

United States, to believed to be the U-Li, which stopped at Newport Saturday.

There is apparently ground for belief, however, that there were two, and perhaps three, submarines engaged.

Survivors of the Stephana, who arrived here on board the Ericsson, said that the ship was warned and the passengers and crew gives a chance to take to the boats. German seamen than went on board and opened her sea cock. She was neither torpedoed nor shelled.

TRY TO AVOID RESAU WITH

TRY TO AVOID BREAK WITH U. S. This, it is believed here, indicated that the submarine commander was taking pre-cautions to prevent a break with the United States over the latest outbreak of subma-rine warfare.

The Ericason was followed by the United States ship Drayton. She had on board the master of the West Point. He was taken to the Brigish cruiser Birmingham in a launch. He retused to make a statement until he could confer with the owners of his ship.

Reports that nine ships were attacked and that three submarines were engaged, instead of one, were contained in a wireless message from the Nantucket station, picked up by the Ericason.

An important part was played through-message from the Nantucket station, picked up by the Ericsson.

An important part was played throughout by this destroyer. She was in plain view of the attack upon the Stephano. Officers said that the British passenger ship was halted by three shots fired across her bow by the submarine. The Stephano carried seventy-three passengers, many of them citizens of the United States.

TWO PHILADELPHIANS SAVED

TWO PHILADELPHIANS SAVED
Two of the passengers were Charles T.
Evans and his wife, of Germantown, Pa.
He was responsible for the statement that the Stephano had been sunk by filling her bold with water.
"Most of the passengers were at dinner when the vessel was fired on," Mr. Evans said. "They were given time to put on heavy wraps after a steward had passed among them telling them that the capitain had given orders to lower the lifeboats.
"We did not know then that a submarine was near nor why we were to leave the ship.

The sea and weather were calm and the officers acted very quietly so that there was officers acted very quiety so that there was very little confusion on board.

"My wife and I went to our rooms and put on our coats and went on deck.

"One of the sailors told us we had better put on life preservers. Neither my wife put on life preservers. Neither my wife nor I saw any submarine.

"In the meantime we were assigned to places in a lifeboat, which was quickly lowered. We had gone about a mile and a half is this boat when we were picked up by the United States naval boat. "Mrs. Evans and myself had been at St. Anthony, N. F., and were on our way home. We lost all our baggage."

BROOKLYN WOMAN'S STORY. Mrs. Marion Cutter, of Brooklyn, sale that the Stephano was held up about $

"We had just seated ourselves when a shot was fired across the ship's bows." carolina coast, with instructions that merchant ships at sea be notified. The warships are expected to haunt the lanes of travel quickly as possible, and as we were doing on two more shots were fired. There was amazement, but no disorder.

"The expension told us that we were to get into the boats, all of which were quickly lowered.

"Darkness had fallen by that time and we did not see the ship again."

SOCIETY FOLK HELP

Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt, Mrs. R. Livingston Beckman and other members of the millionaire colony here had automobiles at the pier to give aid to the survivors. Mrs. Cutter was one of those assisted by Mrs. Vanderbilt.

The chef of the Stephano. A. C. Tikket, of New Tork, said that the captain had been warned by a wireless message at noon that a German submarine was in the neighborhood.

"I was working in the galley when I heard the first shot, about 5:45 o'clock," said Tikkel. "We had just started to serve dinner. Stewards came running down, maying a shoil had struck the water about five yards from the ship. Captain Smith immediately stopped the wessel and sent down word we should all be prepared to leave at once. Women and children were placed in the boats first and we all made off.

"I distinctly saw the submarine. As we approached the Ericason I saw her decks cleared for action and we wondered if she were going to open fire on the German boat.

We were all taken on board the Ericswe were all taken on board the gric-son. I was standing on the deck watching the submarine when her conning tower opened up and four men appeared. In some mysterious way the side of the submarine seemed to open and a small boat appeared as if by magic. It started for the Stephano just as the last lifeboat left the ship.

CAPTAIN LAST MAN TO LEAVE "Captain Routh was the last men to leave his ship. He was only about 200 yards away when the German scamen boarded the vessel. They scurried about on the decks for a while and then went below. Five minutes later they reappeared and immediately the Stephano began to settle."

Lee Burton, fourth engineer, and John Kavanaugh, third engineer of the Stephano, corroborated Tikkel's story.

There were ten children among the refu-

There were ten children among the refu-gees on the Ericsson, one of them an infant in arms. The total number of refugees on the Ericsson, the Drayton, the Benham and Jenkins was 216.

FIVE ALLIES' VESSELS DEFY U-BOAT; SAIL FROM NORFOLK

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 2—News of the arrival of the U-53 at Newport, R. I., atthough immediately transmitted to Allied merchant ships in the harbor and to shipping agents, failed to check sailings., Three British and two French merchantmen, carrying cargoes of food, horses, etc., cleared for European ports.

The presence of the submarine was also made known to warships off the Virginia-Carolina coast, with instructions that merchant ships at sea be notified. The warships

RAIDERS OBEYED LAW JOHN F. LEWIS'S VIEW; U. S. COURSE CORRECT

Authority on International Law Holds U-Boats, Were Wholly Within Rights in Sinking Nine Ships

COULD NOT INTERN U-53

German submarine attacks on belligerent ships off the American coast are not in violation of international law, according to John Frederick Lewis, an authority on in ternational and maritime law.

Mr. Lewis today said that the undersea boat U-52 was within her rights in putting in at Newport and that the subsequent commerce raiding, in which nine ships were reported sunk, was within the bounds of in-

The possibility that the commander of the U-53 before leaving Newport Saturday afternoon acquainted himself with the movements of vessels and took on a pilot familiar with the Nantucket waters was hinted at by Mr. Lewis.

COULD NOT HOLD U-51

"In answer to your question at to whether or not the United States Government should have interned the U-53 when it arrived at Newport, I am of the optnion that the United States would not have been justified under international law in attempting to interne the boat," said Mr. Lewis. "A submarine war vessel has the same rights as any other kind of war vessel."

reasel."

These rights, according to international law, include the right to twenty-four hours' stay in port for the purposes of making repairs and taking on supplies sufficient for the trip to its nearest home port.

"As you have informed me, she took on no supplies and did not reft," Mr. Lewis continued. "She probably obtained copies of the published information given out by the New York Maritime Exchange as to the movements of vessels to and from port, and may have obtained a local pilot.

RAIDING NO VIOLATION "Her errand, that of commerce raiding States Government, if it operates determined waters.

"In answer, to your question as to whether or not the acts of English shippins agencies in advising their vessels of the presence of the U-58 were a violation of American neutrality. I am of the opinion that there were not such a violation. These acts are those of individuals with reference to their own property or the property of their pompanion, and are not the acts of the Government of the United States."

U. S. RESCUERS FAIL TO FIND CREW OF BRITISH FREIGHTER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The Navy De-partment was advised by Admiral Knight by telegraph today that United States de-atroyers had been unable to find the erew of the British freighter Kingston, sunk by a German submarine off Nantucket. If the crew has been saved, Knight re-ported, it was by a merchant ship which has failed to report the fact officially.

WEST POINT WAS TO HAVE LOADED ITS CARGO REPL Ill-Fated Vessel Carried an All-Bea Crew

NEWFORT NEWS, Va., Oct 3. The British freighter West Foint, sunk by a U-beat raider, was in command at Carlad T. V. Harnden and carried a crew of there sight.

All members of the crew are Brhish subjects, it was aunounced at the sime of Furness. Withy & Co., local agents for the steamship. The agents said the West Point left London September 22 for Newser News and carried 250 tons of freight chiefly fortillaer, to be discharged her Her last departure from Newport News as acquist 22, when she left with a carry of general merchandise. On this trip as was scheduled to load part of her carry here and complete loading at Philadelphia. The West Point was of 2413 gross tanges and had been plying between Newsger News and English ports for a number of years.

Men's $8.00

A very superior quality, of course! And because of its quality, a very economical "buy," into the bargain!

BRITISH WARSHIPS SEARCH SEA OFF NANTUCKET FOR SUBMARINES

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 9.—Three British erulsers that arrived off Nantucket Shoals early today are scouring the Atlantic for the German submarine or aubmarines that sank at least sky merchant ships during the

A wireless report picked up by the United A wireless report picked up by the United States deatroyer Ericsson that the total STEPHANO, British passenger ship, 2145 tons, number of victims was nine ships had not been confirmed up to an early hour.

KINGSTON, British freighter, destination and

Been confirmed up to an early hour.

Reports of further attacks on merchant ships were hourly expected, as there are more than a score of freight and passenger ships in or near the danger zone off the New England coast.

Of the imperiled fleet thirteen are British ships and two are American. A fleet of United States men of war is patrolling the coast to protect American neutrality.

More British warships are expected on the scene.

The known victims of Germany's submarine wartare at the very threshold the United States are:

STRATHDENK. British freighter. 4321 tons. New York for Mordeaux. WEST POINT, British freighter. 2413 tons. Lon-tonnage unknown.

BLOOMERSDIJK. Dutch steamship, 3201 tons.
New York for Rotterdam.
CHRISTIAN KNUDSEN. Norwegian tanker.
2583 tons. New York for London.

ONE CREW STILL MISSING

So far as is known this morning no lives were lost, but the crew of the Kingston was stilling missing. The German war submersible, which brought the war to the doorway of the

Mahogany

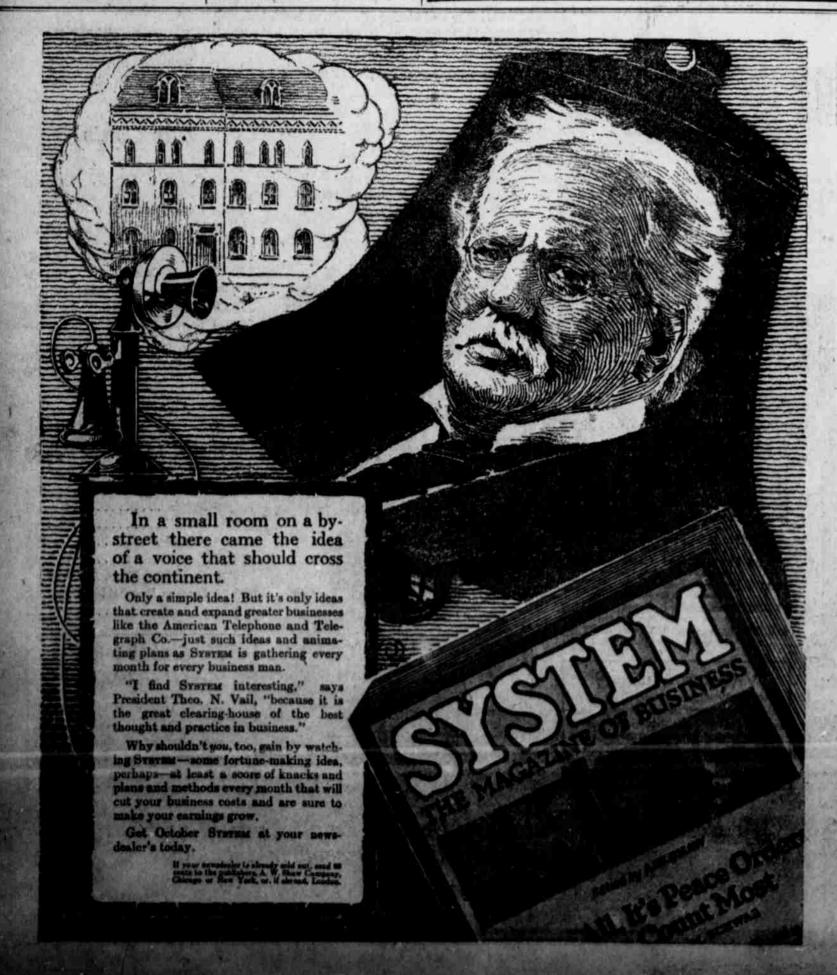

Wedding Gifts

Tea Wagons Tea Tables Tea Trays Sewing Stands

Book Ends Chimes Tabourettes Floor and Table Lamps

Illustrated booklet upon request Wright, Tyndale & van Roden, Inc.

1212 Chestnut Street

NE night while Mother and Daddy were away, Nursie went out and locked us in. We were putting our dollies to bed when Brother cried, 'Ooh, look.' I turned around quick and saw the curtain afire. We screamed, Bruce barked. Pretty soon Mr. Dobbs, the man who lives next door, broke in the window and put the fire out with his Pyrene."

It was a close call for the Kiddies. Mother and Daddy had a bad fright. That was enough. It took almost a tragedy to make them realize the danger from fire. Next morning they bought Pyrene.

Today, October 9th, is National Fire Prevention Day. Thousands of fathers and mothers have come to realize the vital necessity of fire protection in their homes and have protected them with Pyrene.

Have you? $7.50, complete with bracket. Pyrene Manufacturing Company

Makers of a Complete Line of Fire Appliances ( FULLER, Division Manager Exclusive Direct Factors PHILADELPHIA