The Young Lady Across the Way

The young lady across the way says she supposes all we have to do when our imports fall off is to get what we need from other countries.

Not Inempt

"I must apologize for a typographical error," stated the editor of the Plunkville Palladium. "In our last issue I stated that your wife wore ornaments composed of diamonds and whinestones. It should, of course, have read whinestones and diamonds."

"Let it go at whinestones," responded the leading citizen addressed. "She got the outfit by whining."
