t-Mayor, as Early as 1912, Pointed Out Inequality of System

SCHEME WAS SMOTHERED

dvecacy of Mayor Smith's proposition to and the system of assessing real estate being employed in Philadelphia, which est to be unequal and untair in its distinction against owners of small propa, is strongly urged by Rudelphia the strongly urged by Rudelphia semburg. Mayor Smith's Immediate lecessor, and, in many other matters, one is most active opponents.

smbers of the Board of Revision of as which first the values at which real is a taxed, have expressed themselves aver of the present method, asserting the Mayor and his aupporters are a wrong impression. To change present methods for those suggested, the dimenbers say, would lead to guesse, on the part of assessors and operate not the city's benefit.

Its contention is answered and Mayor has stand in the main indorsed by Mr. Benburg, who advocates also taxation personal property as well as other cost of revenue which the city might us to increase its annual income.

This Mayor of the city Mr. Blankeng devoted a considerable portion of one

The whole development of the city is a retarded and its general prosperity sched by tax truancy, favoritism or ipable negligence, made possible under present untrustworthy system. A proper rision of tax burdens will never be desid or obtained until there shall be shown broader public spirit on the part of those lite able to bear their full share and until my shall co-operate in an effort for the neral equalization of not only real este taxes, but all other taxes. Until such the it appears that any growing burden at necessarily fall upon real estate. It is refore all-important that every effort suid be made at this time to force a sentile, businessifice and just administration on the Beard of Revision of Taxes, so at this burden may be made as light as suble, and, above all, that it may be nartially and fairly distributed."

Mr. Blankenburg then recited the appointment by Councils of the committee "to confer with the Mayor to consider the finances of the city" and the recommendations for amendment made by that body. This report, through failure of the Councils, but was submitted by Mayor Blankenburg as part of his measure.

INDEPENDENT LEADER KILLS MEXICAN BANDITS

Guttierrez, Who Recognizes Neither Carranza Nor Villa, Puts Four to Death

FIELD HEADQUARTERS IN MEXICO, Oct. 16.—Followers of General Guttlerrex have captured and siain four of the bandits who robbed Taylor Brothers' store in Colonia Juarez, recovering nearly all the loot.

News of Guttlerrer's exploit reached Major General Pershing's headquarters to-day from the American cavalry squadron sent out on Saturday to protect Mormon colonies at Colonia Juarez. Gutierrex is a strange product of the Mexican revolutions. He has about 100 men and refuses to swear allegiance to either Carranza or Villa. His men have always respected foreign property.

Reports that a regiment of American cavalry had occupied Namiquipa were denied at headquarters today. These reports are supposed to have grown out of the movements of a scouting expedition sent out from El Valle toward Las Cruces, twenty miles south. The Americans did not approach within thirty miles of Namiquipa.

PHILADELPHIA YOUTH CALLED "VIOLINIST OF YOUNGER GENERATION"

Sascha Jacobinoff, Now Home Praised by Europe's Great Teacher-Education Provided by Germantown Women

PLAYS HERE THIS SEASON

Out of the melting pot district of Philaelphia has come a youth characterized by one of the world's greatest teachers as "the violinist of the younger generation." He is Sascha Jacobinoff.

Twenty years ago, on September 8, 1896, to be exact, he was born in a small, dark room over his father's butcher shop at 225 Fairmount avenue. There, in the shadow of the old North Second street market, he played the violin for the first time when he was a child, and by persistent pfodding gained the interest of some woogen in Germantown, who sent him to Europe, where he received the best of training.

Now he has returned to his native city

Now he has returned to his native city Now he has returned to his native city to be heard for the first time in this country. He already has repuid his benefactors by procuring an engagement to appear as soloist with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra at the Academy of Music during the winter. This is the first time such an honor has ever been accorded a Philadelphian.

Sascha Jacobinoff is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Jacobson. When the young violinist returned to the United States he learned that a New York artist had the same name, so, I norder to avoid any confusion, he decided to change the "son" to the Russian equivalent, "inoff," and thus his name—Jacobinoff.

GREAT TEACHER'S PRAISE

When Jacobinest took his first lessons he was "graduated" from the neighborhood "professor" in six weeks. Three years later he was graduated from the Philadelphia Musical Academy after instruction under Paul Meyer. The following year he was beard in a recital at Griffith Hall, playing a Wieniawski and a Mosart concerto. Then it was that Mrs. F. B. Huriburt, of 621 West Hortter street, Germantown, became inter-Hortter street, Germantown, became inter-ested in the youth and through her influence several other patronesses were found who sent the young man to Europe.

In Europe the fourteen-year-old boy went at Carl Flesch, the master teacher, with determination. Flesch takes only six pupils a year, and it required colossal nerve on the youngster's part even to attempt to ask a hearing. But Flesch heard him and took him.

It was Flesch who called him 'the violinist of the younger generation," and when Jacobinoff sailed for America the teacher gave him a letter of recommendation to the conductors of every large orchestra in this country. Jacobinoff also studied under Ar-rigo Serato and Leopold Auer, after which he appeared in concert and recital in most he appeared in concert and rectal in most of Germany's music centers. The war made it necessary for him to cancel engagements in Russia, France, England and Germany and return to Philadelphia a year ahead

Jacobinoff is not only a temperamental musician, with the attendant shock of hair and an artistic appearance; he is a great baseball fan as well. He met Pat Moran and the Phillies while they were in spring training at St. Petersburg, Fla., this year. Many seasons ago he sat on the fence enjoying the game between the Athletics and Detroit at Columbia Park when that structure gave way and nearly cut short his promising career.

The violin which Jacobinoff uses is worth

The violin which Jacobinoff uses is worth at least $8000. It is an original Guarneri fiddle 144 years old, and formerly belonged to the concertmaster of the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra, who was compelled to sell ft because he had to leave for the front and had no money with which to provide for his family.

NEGRO KILLS WOMAN AND FLEES TO HILLS

Posse Pursues, but He Escapes. Believed to Have Come to This City

COATENVILLE, Pa., Oct. 16.—William, better known as "Pie," Johnson, a negro, last night shot and killed his housekeeper, "Hun" Hill, twenty-two years of age, as she was fleeing from his home in "The Eightiea," a negro settlement. The woman fell at the first shot. Coming up to her, Johnson, stooping over her almost lifeless form, fired two more shots into her body. A growd soon gathered.

A crowd soon gathered.

One of the first persons on the scene was Policeman Jackson. Johnson had started to run away and Jackson gave pursuit. The policeman emptied every chamber of his revolver at the ficeing negro, who stopped to return the fire. The policeman sought protection behind a telephone pole, and two bullets from "Pie's" gun lodged in the pole. Every policeman of the city and a big posses scoured the hills and country east of the city, in which direction the fugitive headed, all last night, but failed to find him. Assistant District Attorney Sproat, of West Chester, joined the posses at midnight. The police of nearby towns and cities have been notified.

cities have been notified.

It is thought Johnson headed for Philadelphia, where he is known to have friends.

He has a long criminal record and has cerved many years in jall for various crimes. Only ten days ago he was convicted in the County Court of carrying concealed deadly weapons, but was liberated under head resulting application for a new under bond pending application for a
