

THIS VOTER IS NO PHANTOM. SECURE IN HIS PHYSICAL WELL-BEING, HE SMILES, CYNICALLY, UPON THE QUESTIONING POLICEMEN FROM HIS THIRD-STORY WINDOW.

Rooming-house keeper signing name to answers she has given policemen verifying registration lists. At least the landlady, who cannot write, is being assisted by a neighbor.

POLICEMEN BEGIN CANVASS OF CITY TO WEED OUT PHANTOM VOTERS
Two hundred and eighteen policemen are ringing doorbells to find out if all the registered voters are alive. The photographs were taken in the vicinity of Sixth and Vine streets. The one above shows two policemen cross-examining a rooming-house keeper.

FELLOW GUARDSMEN HONOR TROOPER WHO DIED AT THE BORDER
The funeral of Henry Chicone, a trooper of the Sixth United States Cavalry, who was killed at Presidio, Texas, last Friday when his revolver was accidentally discharged, was attended by guardsmen just returned from the border. Six members of Company M, First Pennsylvania Infantry, acted as pallbearers.

FRENCH AEROLOGICAL CORPS AT WORK

Engineers connected with a 320-mm. battery along the Somme are sending up a small balloon to gauge the direction and velocity of the wind.

DELEGATES FROM ENTIRE COUNTRY MEET IN IMPORTANT CONVENTION OF GARMENT MAKERS
The thirteenth biennial convention of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union is now in session at Scottish Rite Hall, Broad and Race streets. This is one of the strongest organized unions and has won several important victories for the workers. The strikes in New York and this city during the early part of the year were the most important.

TRADE OPENS BETWEEN PHILADELPHIA AND LATIN AMERICA
City officials and others prominent in commercial circles watch steamship Carlyn's start for South America.